Sir.—The great charity event of the year, the Bradford National Show, takes place on Nov. 21st. Entries close Nov. 17, and the schedule will be found in your advertising columns this week. The committee, under the able leadership of Mr. H. H. Towers, have put in a lot of real work, and all that remains now is for exhibitors to respond with a good entry. The stewards are genuine fanciers, and every care and attention will be paid to the birds. The valuable specials include silver cup for best Yorks, in show, special, value £1 ls., for most points by an exhibitor outside Yorkshire (providing ten compete) up to and including class 31. Open Yorks, 10s. most points, also 10s. 6d. (value) most points any one class. Yks., Greens, blouse length, most points cock classes; ditto hens. Open novices (not won more than three firsts in open competition), framed plate most points. Y.U. novice (Yks.), 10s. 6d., value, most points in any one class; Nor., blouse length, most points. British and Hybrids, 10s. most points, also 10s. 6d. (value) most points any one class. Y. and L. B.B. and M. Club members, 3s. for most points, and 1s. 9d. (value) second most points. Selling, fountain pen most points, and blouse length ditto any one class. In the open stock bird class, through the kindness of Mr. W. H. Shackleton, the prize-money will be 12s., 8s., 6s., 4s., 2s. Mr. Dawn, president Sheffield O.S., is thanked for two 10s. in money for open Yks. and British and Hyb. Mr. J. W. Ramsden presents a shaving mirror for best yellow, silver mounted cigarette case for best buff, and crumb brush and tray for best bird shown by a novice, providing birds have been colour-fed solely on Ramsden's Peppers. Competitors must write "Ramsden's" against each competing entry. Members of the various specialist clubs should see that entry forms are all marked correctly.

The Shows.

SHEFFIELD.

The Sheffield O.S., on Nov. 7, held what one might style an Inter-club Show. The societies competing were: Sheffield O.S., Sheffield C.B.S., Attercliffe, Wadley, Stocksbridge, and Rotherham. All profits made go to the Lord Mayor's War Fund. The entry was one of 220 upwards. The Forsters' Hall, in which the exhibits were tastefully staged, is well lighted, free from draughts, and centrally situated. Yorks. led the way as regards merit, yet were very closely pressed by the chubby Nor. Brit. were capital, and For. choice. The management throughout was as usual A1; one expects no other from such men as Messrs. T. Dawn (chairman), J. A. T. Woodhall (vice-ch.), Dr. Craig (treas.), E. C. Job (sec.), and R. Colton (assist. sec.), who are to be heartily congratulated. They are truly a very fine band of officials, full of enthusiasm. We must not omit to mention the capital assistance rendered by the stewards, Messrs. G. Fletcher, W. Baxby, J. Milne, H. Thornhill, and J. W. Allen.

The valuable special prize (cash) to the society making most entries went to the Sheffield C.B.S.; that for best in show to Mr. G. Fletcher's lovely Barraband; spl. most entries in For., Mr. W. Baxby. Other spl. for best in various classes fell to Dr. W. Craig, H. Cadman (Yorks.), A. H. Walters, J. H. Griffiths (Nor.), J. Evans (Crest), F. Falding, F. Bearder (Brit.), G. Fletcher (For.). Points spl.: Dr. Craig, C. Tow, A. H. Walters, G. Stallord, J. Evans, and G. Fletcher (3). Judges were Messrs. H. W. Battye and H. H. Towers, and their awards were well received. Judging was over in quick time, show opened by noon, visitors plentiful, and everything pointed to a huge success.

GLASGOW & WEST OF SCOTLAND.

25th annual show, Oct. 31, Good Templars' Halls, Ingram Street, under the patronage of the Scottish Plainhead Club. A splendid classification was offered, and the open classes were fairly well patronised, but the members' classes appeared to have suffered somewhat through classes being thrown open, although both in the open and confined there were many birds of real merit. The management, which is headed by the genial Mr. Matthew Craig, with Mr. A. Maxwell, Vice-Pres., and Mr. A. K. Chalmers, Sec., backed up by many leading fanciers as committee, is sufficient guarantee that all birds entrusted to their care would receive every attention. Mr. W. Hutchinson judged Norwich and Crests; Mr. G. Hislop, Yorks and Bord., and Mr. W. Loan the remainder. All accomplished their duties in good time, and to the general satisfaction.

MEMBERS' YOUNG BIRDS, NOR. CL. OR TKD. YELL. (5): 1, Maxwell, lovely size, col. and qual., proportionately made, A1 trim; 2, McLeod, well up for size and col.; 3, Colley; 4, no name. METROPOLITAN C.B.A.

Annual show, Kelyvedon Hall, Nov. 7, a well lighted room, very cosy. An energetic sec. and chairman, and an equally helpful committee went far to make things run pleasantly and smoothly. Entries, although good, were not quite up to the average. Depression is a mistake, as the sure way to keep the flag flying is to keep the members' shows in full swing. Mr. H. F. Bowring, hon. sec., was most courteous and kind to all, and deserves credit for the way in which he carried out the show. There was a splendid entry of Yorks., quality also being A1. Norwich were not so numerous, but there were one or two 'ripe peaches' staged nevertheless. Borders also were an excellent show, although without close criticism, we could not quite follow the judge's award of the special, our choice being the yellow hen, a really nice one. British birds made quite a nice show, some smart Bramblings, Linnets, Goldies, and Siskins being staged. The show was generally pronounced a success. Mr. J. E. Shepard judged. Special winners: Best Nor., Gregory, for a smart yellow; best Yorks., Easterling, for a typical lovely feathered unbuff, yell.; best Border, Green, a natty little yellow cock; best Brit., Larking, with a well mtd. and rich coloured Bramble.

CHAMP. NOR.: The 10 classes contained only 5 entries, all Whitmore. YORKS. CL. OR TKD. YELL.: 1, vhc. Easterling, leader a slasher, must have given the special winner a tyeing up; 2, Hall, hardly the length, but very smart; 3, Whitmore, neat, just a trifle open at chest; he. Hall; c. Jeffreys. BUFF: 1, 2, Easterling, full size and rare style, good in feather; 3, Hall, nicely tapered, hardly so good in leg. HEAVILY MKD. OR GR.: 1, 2, Easterling, smart ones, leader varieg yell. HENS. YELL.: 1, he. Easterling, very good pos. nicely modelled; 2, 3, Hall, stylish and ladylike. BUFF: 1, vhc. Easterling, fine pos., tight plumage, lovely shape; 2, 3, Hall, former very quick mover, latter we liked much. HEAVILY MKD., ETC.: 1, King, neat and stylish; 2, vhc. Easterling, rattling varieg.; 3, Hall, smaller, but stylish. UNFLIG. YELL.: 1, vhc. sp. best Yorks., Easterling, rich feathered bird, of good length; 2, 3, Hall, very nice birds, of good breed points; he. c. Jeffreys. BUFF: 1, vhc. Hall, grand varieg.; 2, Whitmore, very typical; 3, Whitman, neat; he. Easterling; c. King. HENS. YELL.: 1, Whitmore, tall, rather feather; 2, King, lovely cinn. tkd., well Easterling; BUFF: 1, Easterling; 2, he. Hall; 3, Whitmore; vhc. King, all very close to the Yorks. standard in most points. CRESTS: 1, 2, Jeffreys, varieg., little to choose. BORD., 6 classes, and 4 entries, all Plank, very jaunty and close feathered. NOV. NOR., 5 classes, with but 4 entries. Mr. P. Gregory annexed the prizes in yell. and buff cocks, and Mr. Robertson 1st and 2nd in unbuff. YORKS. YELL. CL. OR TKD.: 1, Piggins; 2, Slade; 3, Bowring, all clean cut birds, of nice feather. BUFF: 1, Bowring, grand style, well on the leg; 2, 3, Slade. HENS. YELL.: 1, Robertson; 2, Bowring; 3, Piggins, winner rare style, but a trifle strong. BUFF: 1, Slade; 2, Piggins, neat and quick movers. HEAVILY MKD., ETC.: 1, 3, Piggins, leader nice back, stands well up; 2, Slade. UNFLIG.: 1, vhc. he. Bowring, promising; 2, Slade, neat and nervy; 3, c. Piggins. BORD. YELL.: 1, vhc. section sp. Green; 2, he. Piggins; 3, Harrison. BUFF: 1, Green; 2, Piggins; 3, c. Harrison, all typical and nice feather. HENS. YELL.: 1, 3, Green, former a grand little hen that must have given the winner of sp. a fright; 2, Piggins, very sweet and jaunty; vhc. Harrison. BUFF: 1, Piggins, level and good carr.; 2, Green, just a trifle slacker in feather; 3, Harrison, neat. GOLDF.: 1, Newberry, nice and hard in feather; 2, Hall, best face, rich col. BULL.: 1, Garrud, nice breast fac. GREENF.: 1, Hall, good size, but a trifle dark; 2, vhc. Mrs. Jeffreys, we thought best col., and rare size; 3, he. Garrud, close feather. LINNET, ETC.: 1, vhc. Hall, really nice Linnet; 2, Thomas, smart little Lesser Redpoll; 3, Larking, well mtd. Linnet; he. c. Garrud. A.O.S. SEED-EATER: 1, Larking, grand Brambling, sown section sp.; 2, c. Garrud, rattling Siskin, beautiful marking and bib; 3, Hall, Yell. Bunting, not yet at its best; vhc. Easterling; he. Thomas. SOFTBILLS: 1, Larking, nicely spotted Song Thrush. HENS: 1, Garrud, Brambling; 2, Hall, Chalcid. FOR.: 1, Larking, very sweet Himalayan Goldie, remarkably nice bird.

Leicester Has Wonderful Record Show.

Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. held its 15th annual show Nov. 6-7. Entries proved absolutely a record for the society, and quality was of the very best. The large room in which the exhibits were staged is lofty and well lighted, but was severely taxed for space on account of the good entry. As usual Norwich were a show in themselves; there has never been such a show of the cobby ones held here before. Messrs. S. Cook, Houghton, Thomas, Crawshaw, and Vardy had very good teams out, which, of course, were all staged to perfection. Norwich Greens were quite good classes. The two classes for Yorkshire had some splendid exhibits. British were capital classes, and many well-known winners were on view. Hybrids also were grand classes. Quite a new exhibitor came along with the finest Bullie-Greene seen for a long while. There was some sharp competition in claims to obtain this specimen. The birds were all splendidly staged and looked after in the very best style. The society should be very proud of their hard-working and willing secretary—Mr. A. Freestone—who worked hard and well the whole of the day, and had things carried out in perfect order, being backed up by a splendid committee, including Mr. W. A. Gibbin (president), Messrs. Dulso, Noakes and Wood (vice-presidents), and Messrs. Sturgess, Lamdon, Allen, Jolley, Hale, Hayce, Pole, Moores, Kilsby, Gilbert, Herbert, Walton, with Mr. F. Peberdy as treasurer. Mr. J. Trengove judged Canaries, Mr. H. J. Chick Brit. and Hyb.

WINDSOR C.B.A.

Successful Show, Guildhall, Windsor, Oct. 28. Entries came up well, the hall being well filled. Yorkshire are the favorites, and they made quite an imposing display. Mr. Simms was the chief exhibitor in the Norwich section, his grand buff securing 1st and special. A few good British were on view, also a nice collection of Foreign, sent in by Dr. Ansler, not for competition. These naturally attracted considerable attention from the many visitors who quite filled the hall during the day. Chief special winners were Messrs. King, Turner, Clarke, Montgomery, Buckingham, Cooper, Tilly, Wiggins, Simms, and Mrs. Philcox. The silver cup for most points was secured by Mr. King. Mr. H. Nonan judged.

NORWICH ALLIANCE C.B.A.

This year, through the war, it was deemed advisable by the Committee to hold a Members' instead of an Open Show. The response from members was exceedingly good, and just over 400 entries were made. The Chairman of the Association (Mr. J. J. Smith), with only eight entries, secured six 1sts and two seconds. There were birds, especially in ticked buff cocks, of grand substance, true type and carrying magnificent head. Clear yellow and buff ticked hens were beautifully shown. In champions the true Norwich type was very marked, while the Novices came out with marked success. Crests and Crest-breds were undoubtedly the best seen for many years, and Mr. A. Woollard's buff Crested cock carried all in front of him, winning special for best Crest. Evidently Crests and Crest-breds are coming very much in evidence here, and specimens which only a few years ago would have been noticed stood carelessly. Birds were given by members of the Association for the benefit of the Lord Mayor's Fund, and these were sold by auction by Mr. Fred Nash on the first day of the show. The sale was very successful, and thanks are due to those fanciers who so generously gave their specimens to the good cause. The show was admirably carried out, thanks to the ability and perseverance of Mr. E. C. St. Quintin, who was ably assisted by the Committee. Messrs. W. E. Greeves and J. Mackley judged to the satisfaction of the exhibitors.

BRECHIN'S RECORD OF OVER 500 BIRDS.

Brechin C.B.S. held its 51st annual show Nov. 7, in the Temperance Hall, an ideal place for such an exhibition. Entries numbered 40, a record for Brechin. The Secy, Mr. Crabb, had everything well in hand, and although this is his first venture as Secretary he carried out his duties very successfully. President Mr. Finlayson and Vice-Pres. Mr. Craig saw to the dispatching of the birds, and were well backed up by a hard-working Committee. Cup for best Norwich was won by Mr. A. Maxwell, Glasgow, with his unlighted yellow cock. Cup for best Border, Mr. J. Paterson, Chirnside, with a nice bull cock. Rose bowl for most points in British, Black and Hendrie, Brechin; B.F.C.C. medal, Mr. J. Paterson; R.F.C.C. Novice medal, Mr. E. Lyall, Brechin. The judges were: Nor., Mr. E. Paterson, Glasgow; Bord., Mr. J. Hamilton, Eskbank; Brit., Mr. C. Sykes, Musselburgh, and their awards gave general satisfaction. The show stewards (Messrs. Hodgey, Burnett and Robertson) proved themselves capable of fulfilling their duty. Marked catalogues were in the hall 10 minutes after the judges had finished, which fanciers thought very smart work.

KIRKINTILLOCH.

Annual show, Nov. 7, in the Temperance Hall, a very suitable one for the purpose, leaving abundance of light and being free from draughts. Entries totalled about 50 and were really staged. Quality was all that could be desired, Norwich being the mainstay, as was expected, this quarter being noted for this variety. The 12 open classes were well filled. Brock challenge cup for best young bird was won by Mr. D. Peritt with a champion yellow Plainhead, a bird with a bright future. Cup most points in Nor., A. Chalmers; cup, ditto, Brill, Jas. Quinn; cup, ditto, Borders, Aitken Bros. The secretarial duties were in the very capable hands of that genial and well-known old fancier, Mr. Jas. Dick, who had all the arrangements in good order. He was ably assisted by such capable fanciers as the president, Mr. D. Thom; vice-pres., Mr. D. Peritt; committee, Messrs. J. McLay, A. Chalmers, A. Marlin, J. Stewart, J. Findlay, and J. Chalmers. Unfortunately Mr. Calderwood, the appointed judge, was unable to appear, owing to illness. Mr. Andrew Sloan (Glasgow) acting in his stead, took Nor. and Cross, and Mr. Dan Hamilton the remainder. LARKHALL.

9th annual members' show, Y.M.C.A. Hall, Oct. 31. The hall is commodious, cosy, and well lighted, and the birds made a very attractive show. Secy, Mr. A. Thomson effectively superintended; he was assisted by an energetic band of workers, and everything worked smoothly. Entries numbered 250, an advance on previous shows, and the gate also showed an improvement on former records. Mr. W. P. Campbell won points' cup; Cuthbertson, Norwich cup; Kennedy, Bord. cup; Perrie, young bird cup, with a very nice Skikin Mule; Smith, novice points' cup; and McLean the rose bowl, with a lovely Redstart. Treasurer, Mr. R. McEwan, was in charge of the staging, and saw that every bird was placed to the best advantage. Judges were Messrs. W. G. Muir and P. McQuiston, and their awards gave satisfaction to all.

A RECORD GOES IN IRELAND.

Ulster O.A. Scores Heavily : Wonderful Display of Quality, Especially in Norwich, at Belfast.

In Ireland, as in England, the show committees who are going through with their usual programme will be encouraged by the results. The question of cancellation was put on one side by the committee of the Ulster O.A., and might be pleased they are with themselves that they did "carry on." The show held in the Clarence Place Hall on Nov. 6 and 7 had a record entry, whilst the exhibits reached a very high standard of merit. Nicely staged all round the sides of the hall, and in the centre, the exhibits presented an imposing sight, and were especially inspected. All the work was cleanly and smartly done by the stewards, and the birds were as cosy and comfortable as if at home. The officials were: President, Mr. Jas. Stewart; committee, Messrs. J. Neill, J. Ronaldson, W. Trimble, W. Connell, W. Teasy, J. Thompson, W. Sands, D. E. Alexander, H. Boyd, J. Kelson, J. Carson, W. Gray, A. Creighton, J. Lavery, W. Kane, and W. McConnell. Mr. Thos. H. Smyth, who filled the onerous office of secretary, was most painstaking, energetic, and courteous, and in him the men of Ulster have a splendid official. Belgians, though few, were good. The Scotlies were strong, but we were surprised to see how backward some of them were in the moult. Mr. Livingston went in strongly for type and drive, and his awards met with general commendation. Crests were a very nice little collection, the pick of which was Mr. Osborne's even-marked cock, a bird of grand feather and quality. Norwich were quite the feature of the show. The pick of the bunch was Mr. A. McCagherty's yellow, which secured four specials, including those for the best Plainhead and the best bird in the show. Yellow cocks were a grand lot, full of quality from end to end, and in addition to supplying four special winners they annexed Ramsden's crest. A special feature of the Norwich section was the excellence of the hens, especially the unlighted, which hens took four of the specials from the cocks, a performance which the Limit hens also accomplished. Yorkshires had a nice entry, and a few very handsome birds were to be seen. More than one good bird had to go down for not being well staged. Although not equal to what we used to see in the north of Ireland twenty years ago, the Mules were a very smart lot. Mr. Creighton's noted yellow won the special over the section, but Mr. Lavery's Canary-Bullie pressed hard. Goldfinches and Linnets were hardly so good as usual, but the winning Yellow Bunting of Mr. Creighton's is a topper, and very nice indeed were the winning Chaffinch of Mr. Alexander, and the Siskin shown by Mr. Carleton. An interesting and most enjoyable show was wound up by a small but good class of foreigners.

Mr. A. Livingston's Classes.

NORTHERN YORKS. C.C.

Meeting and table show, Oct. 28; Mr. Cattell chair. Decided to grant patronage to Gateshead show, Dec. 19. We have engaged the Co-operative Hall, Daru Crook, for our show Dec. 5. Mr. F. Armstrong, Halifax, judge. Entrance fee 1s., and prizes of 6s., 4s., 3s., 2s. on an entry of 15. If under 15, to be paid on sliding scale. There will be 9 classes for champ., 7 nov., 2 sell., and 1 extra stock class. The table show was very well supported, but it was unfortunate that some of the members failed to note address of meeting place, and consequently had to return home without having had their birds judged. Next meeting and table show, Nov. 18, Mr. Smith to judge champion classes, and Mr. Cattell novice. Mr. Holden, Gateshead, judged, and gave every satisfaction. CHAMP. OLD BIRD: 1, 2, Crawhall; 3, 4, Cattell. HEN: 1, 2, Crawhall; 3, 4, Tindale; vhc, he, Johnson. UNFLIG: 1, 3, Crawhall; 2, 4, Cattell; vhc, Tindale. NOV. OLD BIRD: 1, Witherley. HEN: 1, 2, Crossing; 3, Smith; 4, Frost; vhc, Witherley. UNFLIG: 1, 4, Smith; 3, 4, Witherley. — R. Tindale, Hon. Sec.

LLANDUDNO.

Welsh Northern Counties F. and F.A. 7th annual show, held Nov. 7, at Llandudno, in the Hhoro-drome, a fine room with good light, and the birds were well staged. The cage bird section turned out very satisfactory. Norwich stood out well above the average in numbers and quality, whilst Yorks, were good, and Borders a treat. British were a warm lot, Mr. W. Nolan capturing special for best bird in show with a grand Waxwing, in superb form. Mr. Cragg, the lion, ecc., managed affairs well, a worthy official and a credit to the society. The attendance was good all day. A few more classes in this section would greatly improve the show. Mr. A. G. Davis made the awards in a very satisfactory manner. NOR. YELL. (11): 1, sp., vhc, W. H. Williams, cl. leading immense size grand head and neck, good body, nicely cut away, rich col., full of qual.; 2, J. Jones, good cl., nice head and earr., rich col., trifle longer in body; 3, res, Wilson, another cl., nice type and qual., not quite ready; hc, c, Sheldon. BUFF (13): 1, sp., 3, W. H. Williams, leader the well-known four-pointed, rare size, good head, clean cut, tight feather, still improving, 3rd good cl., capital size, good feather, well over the perch; 2, Aitken and Son, short and chubby, nicely modelled, cl., exquisite feather; res, Wilson, good varieg.; vhc, J. Jones; hc, c, Sheldon. YORKS., YELL. (17): 1, sp., W. Evans, grand lengthy cl., straight and leggy, well braced wings good pipe tail, slim and stylish; 2, vhc, W. Nolan, good cl., medium length, very shapely, nicely tapered, good pos., col., and feather; vhc, mkd. yell., full of style and qual., our choice for 2nd; 3, T. G. Roberts, good lengthy cl., nice shape and qual., straight and leggy; hc, J. Jones. BUFF (15): 1, sp., 3, W. Nolan, grand cl. leading, well moulted, straight as a rush, boxy feather, full of qual., 3rd wing tkd., nice length and shape; 2, c, A. M. Williams, tkd., lengthy and stylish, good legs, nice qual.; res, J. Roberts, close up; vhc, W. H. Parry, good, not yet in show form; hc, Aitken and Son. BORDER (11): 1, sp., 2, W. Nolan, leader cl. yell., lovely type and qual., jaunty carriage, good col.; 2, cinn. mkd., stylish, moves freely; 3, vhc, he, c, E. R. Roberts, former grand yell., good earr., feather and col.; res, M. Jones. A.O.V. (4): 1, sp., Wilson, good-sized varieg. Crest, nice one; 2, W. Nolan, grand Silver Liz.; res, Mrs. Prior. IYB. (8): 1, sp., he, J. Hughes, winner the well-known six-pointed Goldie Mule, in capital feather; 2, T. G. Roberts, good four-pointed Goldie Mule, nice qual.; 3, vhc, W. Williams, very good dark Jonque Siskin Mule; res, H. Jones; c, Aitken and Son. BRIT. GOLDF. (10): 1, sp., Wilson, good size, grand body, rare tanning, rich expansive blaze, very fit; 2, E. Jones, typical Finch, nice flush face, good body markings; 3, W. H. Williams, good body, moons, and tanning, blaze not ready; res, G. and W. Green; c, W. Williams. A.O.V. BRIT. 1, sp., best in show; 2, W. Nolan, grand Waxwing, huge size, rare col., crest and tips, excellent condition; 2nd, monster Hawfinch, good, rich col. and feather; 3, Aitken, good-sized Yellow Bunting, rich col.; res, Fildes, good Bullie hen, grand size, cap. and markings; vhc, c, T. J. Roberts.

MAIDSTONE.

Old Show Nov. 7 and 8 in the Tith Barn, a quaint building recently acquired by the Corporation. It is a very suitable place for an exhibition, and almost in the centre of the town. Entries were hardly so numerous as last year, but our section came up well. In Kent, Norwich Canaries hold the premier position for popularity, and these made quite an imposing show. Mr. Lynn, of Maidstone, sent in an exceptionally strong team, and won sp. for best bird with his non-fed yellow, a beauty for type and quality of feather. Yorks. were not particularly numerous, but the majority were very typical. A few good British made up an interesting collection. The show was opened by the popular mayor, Mr. A. T. Eppe, who shows a keen interest in the Fancy; the president, Councillor G. Tyrwhitt-Drake, is also of great assistance to the society. Mr. A. Day, the ser., and his assistant, Mr. E. F. Tadman, had a hard day's work, but got through their task in good time, the committee consisting of the following well-known fanciers, lent valuable assistance: Messrs. Barney, Lancaster, Baker, Cooper, Harvey, Goodman, Stanley, Whibley, Woodman, and Cranston. Mr. H. Norman judged.

NOR. 1, 2, 3, vhc, Lynn, two grand yellows and a buff, all the right type, plenty of subs. and rare qual.; res, Jenner; hc, Cooper; c, Harvey. HEN: 1, res, vhc, Lynn, very fine yell., big, bold bird with good skull, grand cond.; 2, 3, Jenner, nice buff, good size and type; 3rd, capital yell., hardly the subs., good qual.; hc, c, Harvey. NON-FED: 1, 2, 3, Lynn, beanties, leader a charmer for type and style, wins sp. best in show, a very fine team; res, vhc, Jenner; hc, Cooper; c, Daw. VAR. 1, 2, res, Lynn, leader grand type and style, fails a bit in wings, but a real Nor.; 3, Cooper, lovely buff, hardly the subs. of winner, but tip-top qual.; vhc, Jenner; c, Andrews. YORKS. 1, Harvey, very typical, well put down; 2, Andrews, grand type, not put down at its best; 3, res, Cooper, typical, shade small, but nice qual. BUFF: 1, 3, Harvey, leader grand size and length of wing; 3, Hysted; res, Cooper. A.O.V. 1, 3, Jenner, winner capital C.B., fine size, grand skull and length of feather; 2nd, neat Gr. Bord.; 2, res, Harvey, fine C.B., nicely domed and packed; vhc, Hysted. PAIRS: 1, 3, vhc, Lynn, typical Nor., well matched, winners fine bold heads and fronts; 2, Jenner, lovely Gr. Bord., typical, nicely pencilled; hc, Cooper. MULE: 1, Cooper, good Goldie-Can.; 2, Mrs. Wilson, fine bold Linnet. IYB. 1, Jenner; charming Redpoll-Greene, very shapely, tight 3rd wax. GOLDF. 1, Cooper, capital size, neat head, good wing, nice rich tan; 2, Rhodes, good bird, wide bit unsteady. BULLIE: 1, 2, Jenner, beauties, grand bit caps, good rich col., in fine tettle; 3, vhc, Rhodes, lovely bird, hardly so full in cap, very rich col.; res, he, Crump; c, Cooper. LIMIT: 1, Cooper. A.O.V. 1, 2, Jenner, var. Blackbird leading, very shapely, nice feather; 3, Daw; res, Rhodes; vhc, Harvey. FOR. 1, Finn, nice pair Budgerigars.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

FOR RULES, SEE ISSUE OF OCT. 31st.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SUITABLE MATING (Crest). Such close inbreeding as you suggest, which is between half-brother and sister, is always to be deprecated, unless there is some definite object in view other than simply making up a pair, such, for example, as fixing some particular point or feature in the stock, and then it should be done only with strong, healthy birds, and not be repeated indefinitely with the progeny. If the young birds are quite robust, and their parents strong and not inbred, a casual mating of this kind would do no material harm, but do not carry the experiment further, by inbreeding the following season with the progeny of this pair.

LOST USE OF LEGS (M.S.).—First of all catch the bird and examine the claws to see if they are much overgrown, and, if so, trim them back to a proper length. Also see that perches are conveniently placed and securely fixed. If claws are overgrown it is quite likely the legs have been overstrained by the bird getting them fast in some part of the cage and struggling to free itself. In this case the effect will pass off when the cause is removed. If this surmise does not appear correct, treat as follows for a week or two: In addition to usual seed diet, give every second day a morsel of bread and milk with two or three drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it. In the drinking water add twelve drops of syrup of buckthorn for three consecutive days, and after this give in feed four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of columba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight or so.

CAUSE OF DEATH (T. H. W.B.).—It is not possible to say with certainty what was the cause of the bird's death. A pest-necrosis is the only means of ascertaining this definitely, and if another death occurs I should advise you to send the body at once to our Mr. Yates for examination in case you should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1s.); Batty's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1s.); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1s.); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2s.); Norman's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1s.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Aiding Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Hoeder Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

have septic fever among your stock, and meant to keep any sick birds and the cages occupied by them isolated from all healthy specimens as you can. The only means of combating this disease, which is both contagious and infectious, is by observing strictly hygienic conditions, with isolation and disinfection. The symptoms you give, however, might also be due to pneumonia, which may have arisen from a chill during the recent spell of damp, cold weather, particularly if the birds bathed freely or were exposed to direct draughts. In this case the only thing you could have done was to place the birds affected at once in a quite warm temperature, give a diet of bread and milk, with a little raw seed and scalded summer rape, add half a teaspoonful of brandy to each ounce of the drinking water, keep bird quiet, and leave the rest to nature. If placed under this treatment promptly, recovery will frequently occur, but any delay at the beginning leaves very little chance of recovery.

TO BREED EVEN-MARKED (Nemo).—Unless you have birds of an even-marked strain to begin with, it is a matter of years to establish a strain of even-marked that will breed true to any considerable extent, and the process would occupy far too much space in this column to enter into any really useful details. In these circumstances I cannot advise you better than to try and get a copy of Part 15 of "Our Canaries," in which you will find full details for building up a strain of even-marked Norwich, as well as full particulars concerning their technical markings. In Part 14 similar information is given concerning the Border Fancy, which will apply equally well to the Norwich where markings alone are concerned. If you fail to get one part, you might procure the other.

WHICH ARE THE BEST? (Nemo).—It is not possible to single out any one variety or strain of Roller and say they are "absolutely the best songsters." This is entirely a question of tuition and receptivity on the part of the pupil, and has little to do with variety or strain. Of the names you mention, the last three are practically nothing more than trade terms, and of no real value as guides to singing qualities, and the first is the name of a well-known English breeder of the present day, whose birds have achieved a fair amount of success in singing contests. If you obtained birds direct from him so that you were certain, or should be, of getting birds of his strain, or of any other successful breeder and exhibitor of Rollers, you should have the material for making some of the very best songsters. But you must put your faith to good and efficient training of the young to develop their latent powers.

TO TIGHTEN THE PLUMAGE (A. C. S.).—(1) To tighten up the plumage of the Norwich which have come through the moult rather soft, give each bird a piece of bread and milk the size of a large hazel nut with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days add twenty drops of the following mixture to the drinking water: Dissolve half a drachm of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, and add a teaspoonful of glycerine. Mixture is then ready for use. Allow birds to bathe freely. (2) No. 1 does not advise adding glycerine to the water for now birds to bathe in. It is a very easy matter for a fly to overtop the mark and make an unsightly mess of the plumage instead of making it appear more by a smooth, which will be totally unnecessary. Allow the birds to bathe freely in fresh pure water—soft or clean rain water for preference, and nothing else will be necessary.

ROLLER QUERIES (Ril.p.). (1) Our manager could doubtless procure you a handbook by A. Rettich, which is the only one I know dealing solely with the breeding of the Harz Mountain Canary. The title, I believe, is "The German Canary," and the price about 9d. (2) For ordinary singing Rollers a couple of two parts Canary to one part summer rape mixed together. A. additions give a morsel of bread and milk once a week, and on other days half a teaspoonful of egg food; once a week a small teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, millet, teazle, and raw. Four times a week give a spray of some green salad, and in winter, when this is not procurable in a fit condition to use, substitute a morsel of sweet fruit or banana. (3) It is rather difficult to say how many "changes" a good Roller should sing, as it is not clear what is meant by this term. We do not nowadays speak of "changes" as in the old days, when a good bird was said to sing anything from twenty to thirty changes, but of "tours." To-day birds are trained to sing more technical, defined, and longer song passages, or tours, as they are termed, and fewer of them. I imagine a bird that sang half a dozen good tours well, and had few, if any, faults would now hold its own in good company.

DOUBLE-BUFFING, ETC. (Forward, Hale). (1) Neither double-buffing nor double-yellowing should be done unless there is some definite object in view, and the necessity for the departure from the normal course is apparent. The effect of double-buffing is to increase size and substance of body, and give substance and increased width of web and density to the feather, and if overdone is apt to produce coarse feather and frilliness. Double-yellowing, on the other hand, is resorted to when plumage is too dense and profuse in character, and there is a deficiency of yellow blood in the stock, as shown by a general coarseness of feather and an undue preponderance of buff and pale washed-out yellows. If this is carried too far it will result in stock with plumage deficient of substance, and of a thin hairy type, small in body, with coarse legs and beaks, and long, narrow thighs and tails. In choosing a pair of Yorkshires for double-buffing, select birds with smooth, close plumage, free from frills at thighs or breast, and bred in the orthodox manner, i.e., from yellow and buff. For double-yellowing, choose birds of good size and substance of body, getting as much length as you can without undue length of tail-feathers, fine in beak and legs, with plumage as close and dense as you can get, and a fair width of web. These birds also should be bred in the orthodox manner for preference. In other cases the birds should, of course, match each other in the essential features of the breed. You would find the fullest details of all the ins and outs of this method of mating in "Our Canaries." (2) As regards getting the birds into show condition, you should have said in what way they are out of condition. If soft in feather from the moult, treat as advised to "A. C. S. (1)" in this issue, and if this does not brace them up, write again, and give full particulars.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

STOCKING AN AVIARY (F. L. Fido).—Your outdoor aviary should have a little shelter attached to it of some kind for the birds to roost in, and if it faces the west some privet bushes should be planted in front of it to protect them from the rough winds. You could keep the following British birds in it: One cock Goldfinch, a Linnet, siskin, Greenfinch, and Redpoll. These could fly therein all the winter, then in April turn in half a dozen hen Canaries, at the same time putting in plenty of nest-boxes. Your seed and water vessels should be in a position to be easily got at without entering the aviary. Feed as follows: 3 parts canary and teazle, 1 part summer rape—this will be the stock mixture. Give a little hemp, sunflower, niger, and maw, not all at once, but a little hemp one day and sunflower another, and about twice a week a spoonful per bird of a good wild seed mixture. This you can purchase in packets put up especially for Finches by some of the best firms.

KEEN ON HYBRIDS (Gordon Bailey).—If your Goldfinch will eat soft food, try him with a cube of day-old bread soaked in hot milk, about three days a week, and if he takes this all right, drop two drops of emulsion of cod liver oil upon it. Let him have plenty of sharp sand and grit, and a good big cage to fly in. I do not like your seed mixture; there is too much stimulating food in it; increase the quantity of canary and teazle and take away half the quantity of hemp, niger and linseed. Supply sunflower two or three times a week, and if you can purchase a good collection of wild seeds a little of it can be given on alternate days. A little extra sunflower should be allowed the hen Bullfinch. (2) You should have purchased your Bullfinch earlier when you would have found a little of the nest-plumage on most of them. Your best guide now would be the thickness of the legs and feet, and in some specimens an unusual growth of beak.

BIRDS FOR BEGINNER (Damaged).—The damage to the wing of your bird may be not very serious, or on the other hand it may be broken. Put him in a cage without any perches, and stand in a quiet corner of the room. Birds quickly recover from accidents, and yours should be all right in a week or two; as to his being fit for exhibition later on it depends upon the extent of the damage; as it strengthens he may get the wing up again, especially if he is a young bird. (2) To commence Mule-birding you should buy with either or all of the following: Goldfinch, Linnet, and Greenfinch. A pair of these male readily with a hen Canary. Put your Finches and Canaries in a big flight and let them be together all the winter.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

AILING BUDGERIGAR (Mrs. Cole).—I am willing to assist CAGE BIRD readers to the best of my ability, but what can I do for you in this case? You neither tell how you have been feeding and generally treating, nor whether it is in a cage or outdoor aviary! I will assume that you have it in a cage of some sort indoors—the greatest enemies of caged birds are lack of exercise and constipation, and none suffer more from these two causes than Budgerigars. The remedy, of course, is, in the first place as roomy a cage as circumstances will permit, supplemented by a fly round the room when convenient permits, and for the second to see that the bowels are kept moving quite freely, yet without undue looseness; an occasional dose of Dimeford's magnesia, one teaspoonful to each ounce of the drinking water—the bird's condition must regulate the frequency of the doses—also a fairly regular supply of such green food and fruit as it will take. If the bird is really weak, two drops of cod liver oil emulsion direct to the beak once a day for a longer or shorter period should restore its strength. A good tonic is half a teaspoonful of syrup of hypophosphites to each ounce of the drinking water, three times a week, not be given on the same day as you give the magnesia. The supply of grit and cuttlebone must be regularly maintained and you must not use a metal drinker when giving drugs. Please note rules re replies per post.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

F. W.—Death resulted from broncho-pneumonia as a complication of catarrh arising from a chill. Upon early evidence of symptoms bird should be placed in a warm position by placing cage near the fire, or in a hot-air cupboard if available, and a few drops of aromatic spirits of ammonia administered in the drinking water sweetened with a little white syrup.

Mr. I. A. Fowler.—Septic fever, a highly infectious and fatal disease. Thorough disinfection of aviary is necessary.

Rollers.—The Green Roller hen died of septic intoxication arising from advanced fatty degeneration of the liver. This organ was very extensively diseased, soft, friable, and of a deep yellow colour; the disease process must have been going on for some months. It is not uncommon for birds suffering from advanced organic disease to present no symptoms of illness until complications occur and death is imminent. The Yellow Roller was similarly affected, but in a much slighter degree, and, in addition, the bowels were in a state of inflammation. Impurities in the food, with long a limitation of irritant poisons, are the most probable cause. I should advise a change of seed for your birds, feeding for a time solely on plain emery seed, twice weekly a small pinch of rape or maw seed. Some of your remaining birds may be of course, similarly affected at the present time.

BUSINESS WITH ME

is not a matter of bubble and squeak; there's no question of cutting down quality to price. My one aim is to supply thoroughly serviceable articles at prices consistent with highest quality; so that intending purchasers may assure themselves of this fact, I send everything I sell on approval on the understanding that if the article is in any way misrepresented by me, or that a better article may be purchased elsewhere at anything like the same money, my goods may be smashed up or destroyed in any manner, and I undertake to refund the whole of the purchase money. Clap nets, made from superfine 3in. mesh netting, 3 yards long, 5 1/2 feet deep, and 4 feet ply, 4/- pair; ditto, 4 yards, 5/-; 5 yards, 6/-; 6 yards, 7/-; 7 yards, 8/-; 8 yards, 9/-; 9 yards, 10/-; 10 yards, 11/- per pair. Clap nets consist of two nets to the pair, each net guaranteed of above measurement, and are fitted complete with pegs, poles, and lines, ready for immediate use. Loose netting, specially knitted for bird catching, same as used in above nets, 3in. mesh, 7 feet deep, 3d. yard; 9 feet deep, 4d. yard; 12 feet deep, 5d. yard. Specially strong netting, for use on rough ground and making Sparrow nets, 3in. mesh, 10 feet deep, 5d. yard, post free. Self-acting spring net traps, 24 by 18 ins., 1/2; ditto, 18 by 14 ins., 11d. each, post free. Please note, my net traps have no old-fashioned board arrangement about them, they are by far the most effective traps on the market, can be baited for hard and softbills at same time, and call-bird may be used inside them if desired. Patent self-setting and self-acting trap cages (Pat. No. 23027), guaranteed to automatically reset immediately each bird is caught, 1/6 each; genuine Japanese bird lime, absolutely strongest lime mad, guaranteed to catch and hold any bird to Roost size in every weather, 1lb. 6d., 1lb. 10d., 1lb. 1/6, sample 3d.; all post free. Sparrow nets, on 19 feet bamboo poles, 6/6 complete; firt pegs, 8d. each, post free; absolutely everything required by catchers always in stock; send stamp for complete list, which also gives hints on net making. Practically every professional bird catcher in the kingdom gets his living with articles supplied by me, and what they think of them the following letter will show:—"Sutton Rookery, near Long Sutton, Wisbech, Sept. 9.—Sir,—Last season I caught 400 cock Linnets in 5 hours, and averaged 107 cocks per day right through the season, and every bird was caught in nets supplied by you. I have had other nets for 16 years, but they are useless compared with yours. I can catch more Linnets in one day in your nets than I can in any other I have (and I have several makes) in a month. Your nets do not frighten the birds like others do and I get my living during catching season with nets, so I require the best. Yours are the best that are made, and not only best but cheapest. I shall want another in about a week.—Yours, J. C. Ball." (Mr. Ball claims to be the largest catcher in a county noted for its catchers (Lincolnshire), so he certainly knows what he is talking about.—W. Gore.) The above letter may be inspected here at any time, and I offer £10 to anyone that can prove that this or any other testimonial I have ever published is not genuine and unsolicited. (1828)

EDINBURGH (Western) O.S.

Meeting, Riego Street Hall, Nov. 5. Mr. Balfour chair. A vote of thanks was accorded to retiring officials. All agreed that the show had been a great success. Agreed to try to procure the same hall for show next year. Secretary was asked to try to arrange lectures, etc., for club nights. The following office-bearers were elected: Pres., J. Andrew; vice-president, D. Burgess; committee, N. Grant, John Rodger, A. Spittal, J. Clark; sec. and treas., C. Grant, 54, Lyre Place, Edinburgh.

CLAPHAM C.B.A.

Meeting, Nov. 3. Sec. reported that the printer (Mr. Baldwin) had kindly reduced his bill by £1 0s. 6d. from his original estimate, and this, coupled with the generosity of Mr. Silverthorn in providing the admission tickets gratis, had enabled the secretary to show a profit of £1 0s. 8d. on the open show. He was warmly congratulated by the meeting on this result, as the members had quite realised themselves for a heavy loss, and Messrs. Baldwin and Silverthorn were accorded votes of thanks. Mr. Fairman was nominated for membership. Sec. reported that the three Canary cups were all won by Mr. Clark, and the two British by Mr. Francis and himself.—A. R. Coe.

CITY AND SUBURBAN A.C.B.

Meeting, Nov. 9. Church Institute, Paddington-st., Mr. W. A. Shepherd chair and 30 members present. Correspondence was dealt with. Hon. Sec. announced the result of Yorkshire Judging Competition as follows: Mr. H. W. Walker, 25 points, 1st; Mr. J. P. Lloyd, 26, 2nd; Mr. A. Thomas, 24, 3rd. A Washing Competition then took place, Messrs. W. Sanders, W. Knight, J. P. Lloyd, E. Burch, A. Thomas and T. Kelly competing. Mr. Easterling acted as judge and awarded T. Kelly 1st, W. Sanders 2nd, and J. P. Lloyd 3rd. Several questions were put to Mr. Easterling, who washed a bird himself to illustrate his own method. A very hearty vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Easterling for his kind attendance and useful advice. Vote of thanks to Chairman closed the meeting.—Fred Thyme, Assist. Hon. Sec.

HULL C.B.S.

Meeting and lecture, Oddfellow's Hall, Nov. 2nd, Mr. F. S. Howe presiding. Prior to the meeting, Mr. Chapman, Curator at the Pickering Park, gave a very interesting and instructive lantern lecture on his Ornithological Rambles in the neighbourhood of Hull. He commenced with a slide showing a Sparrow's nest built inside the globe of a lamp in the Pearson Park. From there we visited the Jelly Woods, Cottingham, Spurn, and the famous cliffs at Bampton. Some excellent slides of Bampton were shown, showing the egg climbers at work, and the different kinds of bird-life to be found there. Mr. Chapman took very great care in pointing out every detail, and the principal characteristics of the birds that were shown upon the screen. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the lecturer, and at the meeting held later, Mr. Chapman was made an honorary member of the society. It was decided to make at the December Show, a presentation to our late secretary, Mr. Heselstine (who has joined the colours). On account of the open show having been cancelled, a two-days members' show will be held Dec. 11 and 12, Mr. Cowgill judge.—W. Funnandis, Sec. pro tem.

SHEFFIELD C.B.S.

Meeting, Nov. 5, Wentworth Cafe, Mr. F. Jones (president) chair, the business was mostly in connection with Annual Show, Nov. 28. Members are requested to note the change of show room, to Forcesters' Hall, Trippet Lane, members bring birds Friday night, not later than 9, or Saturday morning by 9. Members are requested to push the sale of tickets, as any surplus on the Show will be handed over to the Lord Mayor's Relief Fund; Show open from 1 to 9, a good number of birds have been promised for the gift class, but the committee are anxious to receive more. Councillor J. W. Crowther has kindly consented to open the show. Specials are in excess of anything given before; a list will be up for inspection at time of entry. Three ring specials in each section, most points with four highest birds, bred by exhibitor, ring numbers must be entered on entry form, and must correspond with Secretary's register, 43 12s. at least will be given in these specials, and members can show as many birds as they like, three with the seven cups should draw a record entry. Dec. meeting is election of officers and table show of young birds. Mr. Armatage was elected a member.—J. Woolhouse, Assist. Sec.

WIMBLEDON C.B.S.

Meeting, 6, The Broadway, Oct. 26. Mr. W. H. Stoukley presided over very good attendance, since a special attraction had been provided in the shape of a lecture by Mr. Allan Silver, F.Z.S., on "Birds of Character." Before the lecture some routine business was transacted, including the election of a member and the reading of a letter of resignation from another member, whose resignation was accepted. The election of a Federation delegate was referred to the committee, and then Mr. E. J. Whittome moved, in accordance with notice, that an open show be held, but after hearing the chairman's explanation of the committee's reasons for deciding to abandon the annual show, he withdrew his motion and the matter dropped. Mr. Silver's lecture proved most attractive and interesting. He said he should deal with some thirty representative birds on the British list, although no birds could perhaps be called purely British except the St. Kilda Wren and the Red Grouse, as all the others were more or less common to other parts of Europe also. He then gave most interesting descriptions of various British birds and was assisted in his work by splendid lantern pictures, the lantern being manipulated by the hon. sec., assisted by Mr. J. W. Heath. A vote of thanks by acclamation was accorded the lecturer, and similar compliments were paid to Alderman Simpson and Councillor King for the loan of lanterns.—G. Grimthuis, hon. sec.

LOCHGELLY C.B.S.

Meeting Nov. 13, Mr. M. Smith chair. The special business was arranging of members' show, Nov. 28. Mr. Smith was nominated to represent the society in the Fife League in place of Chas. Marshall, who has left the district.—R. Muir, sec.

CRAIGHEAD WORKMENS' CLUB F.F. AND C.B.S.

Meeting Club Rooms, Mr. J. H. Elliott chair, and a good turnout of fanciers; business was got through in good style. Annual show will be held Dec. 19 and 20, 54 classes. Judge for cage birds J. Kiseborough, Sunderland.—A.H. Dawson, sec.

ABERSYCHAN C.B.S.

Meeting Nov. 14. On the report of delegate from Welsh National, in Cardiff, unanimously decided that we support the Welsh National; we also picked one to represent us on Saturday next. We had the pleasure of making a good fancier a member and had two good specials given by Mr. Hillman and Mr. Monte, of Abertillery.—F. Sweeting.

LEIGH C.B.S.

Successful washing competition, headquarters, Railway Hotel, Nov. 11. Several members took part, and all with the enthusiasm that showed they were trying what they were out for, winning 1st if possible. Washing started at 7.30, and the birds were judged at 10, by Messrs. A. Cunn and J. Hamer, whose awards gave every satisfaction. 1, Ordish; 2, Taylor; 3, Wilkinson. Don't forget to fill your entry forms full for Nov. 25. Entries close finally at 9.—R. Charleson, Sec.

NORTHERN BRIT. MULE & F.B.C.

Meeting Nov. 17, Mr. Patterson presided. Decided to have a Mule class at table show, the same not bound to have been bred by a member, either old or young bird. Decided to hold a table show at next meeting, Nov. 28: Linnets, Bullfinch, Goldf., Greenf., or Chaffinch, A.O.V., Mule, For. The shows where our patronage has been granted are Newcastle, Gateshead, and Sunderland. Table show, Mr. Almond judged: LINNET: 1, J. Maddison; 2, Petterson. A.O.V.: 1, 2, Hooper. FOR.: 1, 2, Vout; 3, Petterson. Vets of thanks to Mr. Almond brought a pleasant meeting to a close. Members please note place of meeting in next "Cage Birds"—W. Curry, sec.

LANCS. AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting, Volunteer Inn, George Street, Heywood, Nov. 14, Mr. Hampshire, chair. On the question of place for our club show, Mr. Adams, Rochdale, kindly gave us an invitation to hold the show in connection with the affiliated societies of Rochdale and District. After discussion, it was decided we have it at Oldham, time and judge to be settled at next meeting. It is to be hoped that members will try to send more liberally to our club show, as in the last two seasons it has not been worthy of the name. Negotiations are in progress for two more shows to be added to our list for trophies, same to be arranged next meeting. Members owing subs, kindly let me have same as early as possible. Next meeting, Volunteer Inn, Oldham, Dec. 6; time will be given later. We are having it on a Sunday to give members a chance to be present, who are unable to attend on Saturdays.—J. Rukin, Hon. Sec.

SACRISTON P.P.K. AND C.B.S.

Meeting Mrs. H. Abbot's Tea Rooms, with a view to get the society put on a sound footing. The following have joined the society within the society's radius of 5 miles: Messrs. Wm. Wright, senr., James Rodgers, Wm. Dodd, Wm. Wright, junr., Johnson Kell, A. Sutherland, Dr. T. W. Wilson, J. W. Thurkettle, Jos. Jacobs, J. Campbell, T. Liddle, E. Hunter, Fred Ives, James Wm. King, Dr. Wm. Hall, Jos. Greig, J. Maddison, J. Liddle, T. Dawson, Wm. Tindal, R. Blake, R. Dunston, Geo. Greaves, J. C. Stennett, Geo. Cockfield, T. Nicholson, M. Archer, Wm. Mason, H. Hind, Wm. Adams, R. Wilfred, H. Foster, J. Stanegren, R. Scorer, Wm. Thompson, J. Asten, G. Hardwicke, R. Oswald, T. Andrew, J. J. Swan, the Rev. Samuel Frost, and Mrs. J. Walton. Any other fanciers within five miles desiring to become members kindly send their names along to the sec. as below, when he will be pleased to propose the same for membership, annual subscription 2/6. We have fixed a members' show for Jan. 2, the cage bird judge was left over till next meeting, Nov. 28, as above para d. at 5.30. Annual open show is fixed for Nov. 13, 1915. Secs. of other societies, please, don't clash date with our first annual show.—Wm. Dodd, hon. sec., Mavins Buildings, Finden Hill, Sacriston, Co. Durham.

WELSH NATIONAL C.B.S.

Proposed National Show for Wales. A very successful meeting was held at the Law Courts Hotel, Cardiff, Nov. 7, Mr. W. Sampson, late sec. of Cardiff C.B.S., with whom a Welsh National Show has been a dream for many years, was elected chairman, and no one is more delighted than he that a move has at last been made. Among those present were Messrs. John and Owen (Llanelli), Cleaves and Couch (Abersychan), Mortimer and Hillman (Abertillery), Longden (Swansea), Chisholm (Bargod), Maggs (Port Talbot), Powell (Tredgar), Ray, C. B. Jollitt, E. Tams, C. Wells, W. J. Phelps, T. Gardner, S. Wiseman, and J. Pearce, of Cardiff. Mr. Sampson expressed the pleasure it gave him at seeing so many fanciers present, and hoped the proposed Welsh National would be a great success. He believed that if all societies would take the matter up in the proper spirit we should overcome all difficulties. Mr. E. T. Banks very ably placed before fanciers some of the objects of a Welsh National Show, and also how he proposed the show should be managed. He strongly advised that the society should be carried on democratic lines, and with equal representation all round. This seemed to find favour with nearly all the delegates present.

After a free discussion it was unanimously decided to form a Welsh National Society, and the following were elected pro tem: chair, Mr. E. T. Banks; vice, Mr. John Llanelli; treas., Mr. W. Sampson, Cardiff; sec., Mr. E. Thomas, Cardiff; committee, Messrs. Mortimer, Abertillery; Couch, Abersychan; Powell, Tredgar; Owen, Llanelli; Chisholm, Bargod; G. T. Jones, Brecon (Welsh Cage Bird Club). Mr. Longden, Swansea, represents fanciers not affiliated to any society. Subs. to be 4/1 6s. per annum for purely Cage Bird Societies, 10s. 6d. for the Cage Bird section of a Mixed Society, and 5s. for fanciers not members of any Society. Next meeting will be held in Cardiff, Dec. 5, to frame rules, etc., and to decide upon date of first show. Further notices will be given in CAGE BIRDS.

Now then you fanciers of Wales and Mon., it is up to you to make this show worthy of Wales and its many national institutions. I am waiting to receive names of societies who are prepared to join, and also the names of all those fanciers who do not belong to any Cage Bird Society. There is no reason why a show should not be held this season; but this depends entirely upon the support given to the society between now and the next meeting.—E. Thomas, Sec., 48, Craddock st., Cardiff.

NEWCASTLE (East End) C.B.S.

Special meeting, Nov. 11, Leighton Schools, Heaton Road. Mr. Hutchinson chair and a good attendance; five new members were elected, Messrs. J. Hands, Peel, Watson, Baker and Cosser. The meeting had been called to make final arrangements for show, but the military having taken possession of our hall the meeting decided it be left to the chairman and sec. to make the best arrangements possible. Our chairman got to work the next day and we have been able to book the Assembly Rooms, Byker Bridge End, Shields Road, West, for our show, Nov. 27 and 28. Any members who have sold tickets please note and make known to buyers the alteration of hall. Committee meeting at my house, Nov. 25, to allot specials; any member having received promise of same should let me know by that date.—J. W. Coutts, sec.

BURNLEY O.S.

We are holding our annual members' show Nov. 28, at Star Inn, Church Street, and are providing good classes and a few good specials to fight for. Any member can enter of the following: Cocks, cl., tkd., var., yel., do. buff; hens, cl., tkd., var., yel., do. buff; muffed cocks, yel., do., buff, A.V. Yorks. cks., ditto hens; A.O.V. Canary, Mules, Hybrids, gift, £1 selling, 12s. 6d. selling, 7s. 6d. selling, British A.V. Mr. Edwards gives 10s. 6d. spl. for best in gift class, and teapot for best shown by novice who has never won a 1st prize in open competition, society's cup and spl. for best bird in show. Mr. Jude Hayhurst judges. We hope that members will find him plenty to do. All birds to be entered before 9 o'clock Friday night, and be staged by 1.30 day of show. Usual meeting on Friday night Nov. 27 instead of Wed.—T. Chadwick, Sec.

GATESHEAD C.B.S.

Meetings Oct. 27 and Nov. 11, Mr. Alf. Holden presided over both. Re the cancelling of our annual open show, two days, holding a one-day open show in place of same, it was decided to pay the following prize-money on 10 or more entries: 10/- 1st, 5/- 2nd, 2/6 3rd; entrance fee 1/6, and 1/3 for members; show date fixed for Dec. 13. Sec. was instructed to look for a hall to hold same. I have been successful in fixing up with the owners of the Rochester Street Sunday School Hall, which is well lighted and can be heated if the weather is cold; hot-water pipes right round. This hall is only a hundred yards off the Drill Hall, where our annual "Palace of the North" has been held for years. Decided to have the following classes: Nor. 8, Crests 8, Yorks. 7, Bord. 8, S.H. 3, A.O.V. 1, Mules 3, Scotch Fancy 2, Brit. 9, For. 4; judges, G. Dobson, T. B. Tomlinson, J. Johnson, J. Bertram; Norwich judge to be decided. Decided to charge 6d. for entrance to show, and get catalogues printed without award; show to close at 7. Members please note special meeting Nov. 25.—W. Curry, sec.

PUDSEY, STANNINGLEY C.B.S.

A very interesting and instructive lecture was given by Mr. R. Halliday, Oct. 5, at the Pleece Hotel, Stanningley. There was a good attendance of members and friends. The subject was "Hints to novice Canary fanciers." He first of all dealt with the bird room, saying that it must be well lighted and perfectly free from draughts, and went on to speak about the cages. He preferred the double cage, as it was more handy in the breeding season for running the young birds through into one compartment, and letting the old birds feed them through the partition. In feeding the stock he advised the novice to always get the best seed possible, as it was the best in the long run; also to keep the stock, cages, and utensils strictly clean. He advocates canary seed as the staple food and the following mixed seed two or three times per week: Red rape, teazle, hemp, niger, gold of pleasure, and linseed, maw seed he prefers to put in the egg food, as, being a small seed, it gets to the bottom if mixed with the other seeds. Egg food he prepares in the following manner: he soaks a slice of home-made bread, a few days old, in water for a few minutes, puts into a basin and breaks up with a fork, then puts the boiled egg through a piece of perforated zinc into the basin, adds a pinch of salt, and mixes the whole together with the fork until it is thoroughly mixed. In selecting the birds he said the first thing to do was to decide which variety to keep, then get to know the makings of an ideal bird of that particular variety, and do your best to maintain your ideal. He talked at great length on both Yorkshires and Norwich, in all their varieties; Greens, Green marked, Cinnamon, Cinnamon marks, and dears, treating also on double buffing and double yellowing. As time was getting late he invited questions, these he disposed of in a very able manner. A vote of thanks to the lecturer for coming to instruct us concluded a most enjoyable evening.—H. Ratrick, Sec.

FOREIGN BIRD EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

The League's diploma will be awarded for the following birds exhibited for the first time in the United Kingdom at a show under the auspices of the F.B.E.L. The Secretary would esteem it a favour if those interested can inform him of any previous occurrence of these species on the show bench (before 1913), which information should be supported by verification. Anyone (members or otherwise) wishing for a registration and diploma certifying the occasion upon which they were the first exhibitors of any other particular Foreign Bird can obtain it from the League at a fee of 2/6. Exhibitors joining the League by paying their subscription (3/6) before Nov. 22, 1914, are eligible to compete for the season's diplomas and some 20 to 30 cash special prizes at the forthcoming Club Show at the Horticultural Hall. Members who have not already paid donations or subscriptions to the League for this season should do so if they wish their points counted for special prizes.—A. Silver, Hon. Sec.

The strenuous times through which we are passing will assuredly cause the season of peace and goodwill to be especially welcomed, and few will this year fail to send to their friends the cherished Christmas Greeting Card hallowed by time and custom. Without it, it is confidently hoped, trespassing upon the sale of the regular Christmas Card, an appropriate National Christmas Card conveying the Season's Greeting, and giving expression to the Patriotic sentiments which animate all classes, has been specially produced for the benefit of the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund, by Messrs. Raphael (Tuck and Sons, Ltd., whose name, connected with Christmas Cards, is a Household word throughout the Empire. The entire Profits on the Sale of this National Christmas Card will be paid into the National Relief Fund. The card is charmingly artistic, and at the price of Sixpence the value is more than exceptional. There can be little doubt that both collectors and the fortunate recipients will prize this National Christmas Card (every copy is impressed with a Special Stamp) as a treasured memento of the most historic Christmas of our time. Bird-lovers wanting a choice card should ask at their stationers for the "National Christmas Card."

Mr. J. Nicholson, Maryport, will judge at Cockermonth Show Nov. 28. Will Mr. Thomas Gregory send his full address to A. Freestone, 79, Clarendon St., Leicester.

The show of the Forres C.B.S., arranged for December 5, has been postponed, writes Mr. K. MacLean.

Mr. J. Kilshaw (Bolton) asks us to state that he has undertaken the sale of Mr. V. Scott's Roller Canaries (see advt.) as Mr. Scott is fighting at the front.

The secretary of Sheffield O.S. would like members to return all unsold tickets of the late show held for the Local Relief Fund, as he is anxious to hand the money over to the Lord Mayor.

Warrington C.B.S. 19th annual show will be held in the Cairo St. Schools, Dec. 11 and 12. The judges are Messrs. J. C. Barnes, G. Large, and J. D. Leigh. (See advert. this week's issue.)

Mr. J. Jackson, hon. sec. Cockermonth F.S., writes that the heading of class 30 in the schedule of the forthcoming show of the society should read "Any other variety, Insectivorous."

A slight error has occurred in our schedule, writes Mr. J. Alderslade, sec. Eastleigh C.B.S.; it should read "Judge, C. E. Silk," not C. W. Silk. Entries will be extended till Sunday morning's post.

Mr. W. Hopwood having resigned secretaryship of the Denton C.B.S., Mr. W. Redfern of 14, Apsley Road, Denton, has been elected as sec. All club correspondence should be addressed accordingly.

Will exhibitors generally kindly note that Alwick show is cancelled, likewise those who have applied for schedules to the secretary of the show being accidentally left in our "Show Dates Fixed" column.

The members of the Clay Cross C.B.S., writes Mr. J. Griffiths, the sec., were sorry to hear that Mr. W. Bunce (one of our members) was very ill, and it is hoped that he will have an easy and speedy recovery. Our review last week of the schedule of the L.C.B.A. combined show was made from rough proofs which gave Messrs. Mason, Davies and Tyson as the judges of the open, selling and stock classes. From the revised schedule to hand we gather that Messrs. R. L. Crisp and A. W. Curtis judge these classes. There is only one class for Cinnamon, not two classes, as stated in the review.

Those of our readers who desire a copy of Spratt's Calendar for 1915 should send two penny stamps to cover cost of packing and postage, to:—Almanac Dept., Spratt's Patent Ltd., 24-25, Fenchurch Street, London, E.C. The Calendar is to hang up, and consists of 12 beautiful full-page illustrations in colours, reproduced from the old Masters and Modern Painters, while on it is printed much useful information. Every Dog, Poultry or Cage-bird owner should certainly possess a copy.

Berwick's Solendid Help. As a result of the Berwick and Dis. C.C. annual show, Oct. 31, the sec., Mr. A. Hay, has been able, after having paid all accounts, to hand over to the local secretaries of the War and Belgian Relief Funds, the sum of £10 10s.

True Patriotism. I have three dear boys of my own with the Colours, writes Mr. W. Rudd, the noted bird-specialist, of Norwich. Two were with me, and one, my baby, was only an apprentice to a firm in this city. But as an old volunteer, I could not say "No," especially as I would go myself if not long beyond the age limit, for I believe I could still knock half the young ones out either at marching or shooting.

Railway "Accident" at Coventry. The Committee of the Coventry Ornithological Society regret that Mr. R. D. Partlett's birds arrived too late for judging, writes Mr. A. Green, the Hon. Sec., although they were on show. They proved a great attraction, the sensational Canary-Bullie "White Rose" coming in for the greater part of attention. We trust that if the railway company are to blame he will be successful in pressing his claim.

Farnworth and Dis. C.B.S. will hold its annual members' show Nov. 21, at Bird in Hand Hotel, Market Street, Farnworth, near Bolton, writes Mr. W. Dawson, sec. Part of proceeds will be given to Relief Fund.

The City of Belfast O.S. decided at their monthly meeting, writes Mr. J. Ronaldson, the hon. sec., to revert to their original date for holding their annual show, viz., the second Saturday in November; will secretaries please take notice.

Mr. A. Weston, sec. of the Edinburgh O.S., writes asking all the old members to endeavour to bring forward new members for this, the oldest society in Edinburgh. The society meets on Saturday, Dec. 5, in Buchanan's Hotel, High St., when new members will be enrolled.

Liverpool's 1915 Show. Will secretaries and societies kindly note we are holding our 1915 open show on Oct. 22 and 23, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, secs. Liverpool O.S.

Topsy Turveydor. At Brede Place, Sussex, there was recently a Wood Pigeon's nest containing young a few days old, and at Hershams, Surrey, there is a Thrush's nest with three eggs.

Prize Money Paid. We hear that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows. Any who may have been overlooked should apply to the respective secretaries: Leicester Hand-in-Hand, Bournemouth, Reading, Coventry.

Woodpigeon's September Clutch. On Sept. 16 I found a Woodpigeon's nest containing two eggs, on which the bird was sitting. I have heard of young birds in the middle of September, but never of eggs.—V. Matthews, Berkeley, Glos.

Avian War Refugees. —Resulting from the movement of troops on the Continent, the firing and general disturbance, we shall no doubt find in these isles many uncommon species of birds. A number of Buzzards have already been seen high up over the City of York, and in their wake came colonies of Jackdaws and Rooks, apparently frightened from the seat of warfare.

An important and interesting announcement will appear in our next issue in connection with our scheme to provide convalescent homes and war hospitals with singing Canaries.

Good Old Whitburn. Whitburn Show is down for Dec. 5, and is hoping to have a record entry in view of the excellent management of previous years, and the promptitude with which the prize-money has been paid (within three days). The sec., Mr. Lambie, sends us a number of letters from exhibitors, all well satisfied with the treatment which they and their birds received last year.

Two Nesting Records. In the September number of "British Birds" a correspondent records that he found a nest of the Lesser Whitethroat on May 2 with five eggs, all of which hatched out on May 17. Three out of five eggs found in a Blackcap's nest on May 9 hatched out on May 16. The date of hatching of the Lesser Whitethroats would fix the laying of the first egg as on April 28, and the first egg of the Blackcap would have been laid on April 27. Both cases would appear to be records, for neither of these spring migrants are expected here until very nearly the end of April.

Why are the Males Pretty? Dr. J. C. Mottram maintains that the male bird "becomes brilliant in colour, in order that he may be more likely to be destroyed, and thus the dull-coloured female gain protection." We believe a difficulty would be that the more effective the males were in getting killed, the more the conspicuousness would tend to be eradicated from the race. The author of the theory ingeniously suggests that the pairing would occur before death, so that the male would hand on the valuable quality of conspicuousness through the unaffected female line to his male descendants.

In the Courts.

A Lively Affair Near Torquay.

At Torquay Police Court on Nov. 9, before Messrs. J. Taylor (in the chair), and F. J. Crocker, a septuagenarian named John Bellamy pleaded not guilty to using a net to catch birds at Isle on the 27th ult. P.C. Friendship told a remarkable story. He said that at 4.30 p.m. he was in Elsen's Lane, when he heard a bird, similar to a Goldfinch, calling. He got over the hedge into an allotment field, where he saw the defendant and a young man, named Witten. There was a net laid, and there was a bird in a cage close by, and close to it was a quantity of bird seed and thistles, a fir tree, and other things used for the decoy of Goldfinches. Defendant told witness that he had no right on his land, and coloured him by the shoulder. Witness told him that he would lock him up for assault if he laid hands on him again. Defendant had hold of the net, and became very violent. He fell to the ground while clinging to it, and witness only got possession of the net after a twenty minutes' struggle. Then defendant got hold of witness's time, refused to let go, and tried to get witness underneath him. Witness told him that he would have to trounce him if he did not stop, and as he would not let go, his hold witness took out his staff and struck defendant lightly across one of his hands. "The plot of ground is a yard square," added the constable, "and defendant keeps it solely for catching birds. He has everything there for enticing them." Defendant: Does the law empower you to trespass on my ground?—Witness: Yes, it does, to detect an offence. Didn't you trip me up?—No. Didn't you push me when I objected to your going on to my ground?—No. Does the law empower you to forcibly and brutally take my net from me?—Yes it does; how could I prove my case if I had not the net. Are you empowered to use your staff?—Yes, when you are so violent. Ah, you cur, I never put a hand on you! Defendant, on oath, said the constable pushed him away and some raspberry canes were broken. Defendant told him that he was neither going to have the bird nor the net, and the constable put out his arm and defendant fell into a ditch, where he was kept 10 or 15 minutes. Defendant had hold of the net, and told the constable that he would not let go of it. The constable then pulled out his staff and struck him on his hand five or six times; the hand was beaten almost to a pulp. The constable said to him, "If you won't let go the net I'll break your — skull." "I'm 70 years old," observed defendant to the magistrates, "and twice as old as him, and my hand was bleeding, and he had his knees on my stomach." After consulting with his colleague, the Chairman informed the defendant that he was convicted and fined £1, including costs; in default, he would have 14 days' imprisonment. On the application of Inspector Wood, the net was confiscated and destroyed. —"Torquay News."

Wanted: A Wonderful Show.

A Final Appeal to the Fancy Live Humming Birds May be Seen.

LAST week we pointed out the very excellent reasons for every exhibitor supporting the Horticultural Hall Show this year. Now we very much regret to learn at the time of going to press that the entry is poor—averaging only 4 birds to each class!—and we hope bird-lovers will alter this state of affairs in no uncertain manner during this week-end.

Entries finally close first post Monday next, November 23rd. (See advertisement on page 247.) If application is made at once there is still time to obtain a schedule—a review of which, by the way, appeared in our last issue. Or if too late, describe your birds to the show manager, enclose the necessary entry fees (2s. per bird) and he will enter them for you.

Now, fanciers, rally round; remember that all profits go to a most deserving object—the funds of the British Red Cross Society.

Items from the Show Manager.

The show manager, Mr. J. Tyson, asks us to give publicity to the following items:—

Three entries were received on Monday morning, for classes 38 and 39, bearing no name and address; postal orders bear the Ntfield stamp.

The following letter reached me first post Tuesday morning, and it is hoped such a noble example will be followed by others, and thus show that the people who cruelly (?) keep birds in cages have still a soft place in their hearts for their suffering fellow men.

442, Caledonian Road;

London, N.

Dear Sir,—I am sure there are a large number of London and other fanciers who would like to supplement the profits of the joint show to be held at the Royal Horticultural Hall, by donations in aid of the British Red Cross Fund

We should be wanting in our duty as Englishmen towards those who are so ably fighting the Great Battle for the British Empire if we neglected doing our best towards helping to see they have all the medical assistance so urgently needed when ill and wounded.

I trust those who are organising the great Amalgamated Show will be supported in such a manner that you will be able to hand over a substantial amount towards the objects of the British Red Cross. I shall be pleased to subscribe £10 10s., half as treasurer of the L.C.B.A., and half as treasurer of the N.B.B. and M.C.

I am, yours faithfully,

T. R. TROWER.

Birds for Sale by Tender.

Some birds are entered for competition, but will be sold by tender to the highest bidder, and the proceeds are to go to the British Red Cross Fund. Other exhibitors have notified me that should they win any prizes I may add them towards the fund for that worthy object.

I truly hope that the encouraging remarks of many fanciers (too numerous to acknowledge, but which I shall cherish) on my acceptance of this onerous duty of managing the show, and their good wishes for the success of the undertaking, will be backed up by practical support. I will do all in my power, with the co-operation of good and hard-working fanciers, to merit their continued confidence. I would, however, respectfully suggest that as the chief aim of this exhibition is charity, and that I am serving, or trying to serve, the combination of the three societies, that exhibitors will refrain from making requests for free passes for friends, because they have made 8 or 10 entries. Whatever my personal feelings may be, I regret to say that it is quite impossible to send these.

For years the L.C.B.A. show has brought out fresh exhibition specimens, and this year should be no exception. Of course, we know the uncertainty of life, but there is every prospect that there will be on view live Humming Birds. Owing to their delicacy and the conditions under which they are kept, they will only be at the exhibition on Thursday till 8 p.m., and again on Friday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. They will not be in the exhibition at all on Saturday. Birds of Paradise and many other rare and exquisite foreign birds will be at the show from the opening till 7 p.m. on Saturday, as well as beautiful Canaries and British birds and their Hybrids, with White Blackbirds, White Linnets, and other abnormally-coloured specimens.

her for her public spirit in helping this most interesting section with six entries.

The Cinnamon Lark, belonging to Mr. Barker, a local specimen, caught at Wallasey, was very interesting. My favourite (the Hawfinch) was represented by a few extra good specimens, perfect in plumage. I can appreciate a well moulted Hawfinch, knowing by experience the difficulty there is in getting him into this enviable condition.

The Hybrids and Mules were splendid. I wondered what would become of most of these beauties when they ended their show careers? What fine specimens they would make for our museum collection. It was difficult to get near this section on Saturday afternoon. The crowd was great around that big-headed "mystery" (Canary Bullfinch?) Mule, which stood cardless, but was the most wonderful bird of the whole collection. How curious everyone was to look at it.

I often think what a pity it is such interesting exhibitions should not be brought more to the notice of the general public. There was a great crowd of fanciers present, but the average public, among whom are many interested in birds, would be delighted to see such an exhibition if they could be got at. Many friends I have once taken to a show never miss the opportunity again, if they can help it. In my Monday evening lectures on birds this month at the museum, I hope to make the avicultural side a prominent feature, showing how interesting and instructive a collection of living birds can be, also dealing with the history of aviculture, including the 13th Earl of Derby's collection that formed the nucleus of our museum collections.

The Future of the Plumstead and Woolwich C.B.S.

SIR,—I read a few weeks ago in "Twitterings" a paragraph from Mr. Botell that said all meetings were cancelled. I find that the members of the committee and other members were quite surprised at such a course being taken, seeing that a good many members were not employed in the Arsenal.

We feel that our show for Nov. 14 should have been carried through. I think an explanation should be forthcoming from Mr. Botell, as no committee meeting was called to cancel any club business. It will mean the last of the P. and W.C.B.S. if we do not pull things together. As we are affiliated to the London Cage Bird Federation I think this body should see that show fixtures are carried out. It would help the Fancy, and prove the Federation of some value to us. I trust the secretary will oblige in your next issue.

GEO. H. MACLELLAN.

Will the Border Fancy Outstrip the Norwich?

SIR,—As an ardent fancier of the Norwich Canary myself, and deeply interested in its welfare, yet I, like Mr. Plank, must take exception to Mr. Cobb's remark about the Border Fancy. It is too much of the sledge-hammer type of argument to talk disparagingly of a variety that is not to one's liking, and quite outside the province of legitimate criticism. It is certainly the "Bantam of the Canary race," and this very feature evidently appeals to its admirers, but for quality, symmetry of form and everything that spells perfection it stands peerless and alone. The way it has acquired popular favour is indeed remarkable, which is diametrically opposed to Mr. Cobb's reasoning.

Many long years ago, when I and a few kindred spirits were doing much to popularise the variety, our zeal and enthusiasm being boundless, a certain All-England judge wrote me and said "The Border Canary can never become popular." On what he based his deductions was never divulged, but my excellent friend will have lived to see the error of his prognostication. It is one of those varieties whose exquisite charm is a characteristic development within itself; not one of its many features can be said to be of a "foreign graft." Its grace and sweetness are all its own. Therefore I think it beyond reproach, and public condemnation to be out of place.

Interesting Details of Native Bird-Catchers and an "All-Hemp-Seed Diet."

By BANDSMAN T. WARD.

THINKING perhaps some of my fellow members of the L. and P.O.S., as well as the London and Counties and North London C.B.A.'s might like to hear from one of their members now serving with the colours, I thought I could not do better than write to them through the columns of our favourite paper CAGE BIRDS. I am serving with the Band of the 4th City of London Royal Fusiliers at Malta and during my stay here I have made a few notes with regard to the birds seen on the island.

I have already made friends with one or two native catchers and from them have learned something of their methods of catching and keeping birds. In the first place, their ideas are not at all in keeping with our own ideas. Their cages are very crude, as is also their method of feeding, for all the birds I have seen so far are fed entirely on hemp, and my only wonder is, this place being so warm, that the birds live at all. I have seen Linnets, Chaffinches, Larks, Canaries and Siskins all feeding on hemp, only, and I must say they are looking well on it. I have never seen green-food in the cages, and do not think this is ever given. The Larks had the hemp slightly crushed.

Who Taught the Natives?

I have seen the natives out with the nets. I must say I carried my thoughts back to England, for their methods are exactly the same as at home, with brace bird and call birds. I am inclined to think this is due to the instruction given them by some of our soldiers while stationed here. The birds mostly caught, up to the present, have been Greenfinches and Linnets. The latter come over here in great numbers, and fetch very little, being sometimes sold as low as two for a penny. They arrive here in fine fettle, being as round as a tub, so the journey does not seem to wear them down, as one might think.

I have one of these fresh caught Linnets at present in my tent, and I can assure you that when I told my chums that he had flown from England he became a great pet with all, and would betide anyone who speaks ill of "Sambo," this being his regimental name. Of course, he is on war rations, having to put up with whatever wild seed I can gather, added to his hemp, this being the only seed I can buy. So, like me, he has to rough it, but he seems quite contented with his lot. Amongst the other birds which had been caught was a fine Sparrow Hawk, and a Glossy Starling, also a fine bird, which would want some whacking on the show bench.

I have done a little good already for the birds, for I have persuaded the natives to use wider perches, those already in use being far too narrow, also advised them how to feed better. So you see, I am still interested in our pets. I am becoming quite a lecturer, too, having given several detailed accounts to my comrades of Canary breeding and the difficulties of breeding a winner. I must say that although not one of them is a fancier I get a very appreciative audience, and I am looking forward to some of them becoming bird breeders when we get home again.

The Present Season.

I suppose this war will have a depressing effect on our shows this year, but I hope it will not deter the various local societies from running their autumn shows, and thus trying to keep up the enthusiasm which the Fancy merits. I only wish I were with you all to help swell the number of competitors. I hope my fellow-members have had a good season, and that some top-pers have been turned out. I suppose our Crystal Palace Show will be off, as I hear the building has been taken over by the Government. (The Show will still be held, though not at the Palace.—Editor.)

I am looking forward to my CAGE BIRDS coming out to me, as one of our members has kindly promised to send it each week, and you can rest assured it will not leave me until it has been well read. I had a pleasant surprise in one of my letters from the wife; it contained a postcard from a Mr. Richardson, of Tasmania, who paid me a visit while in England. He bought some of my Yorkshires and wrote saying that he had arrived at Cape Town with the birds all safe. I hope by now he has arrived home at Tasmania without any losses.

I am afraid I must bring this to a close now, as the bugler has just sounded the "Cookhouse" call, and only those interested in it (I am very much so) can appreciate that call properly. (Our readers, we are sure, will much appreciate Mr. Ward's letter and hope to hear from him again.—Editor.)

A Fifteen-year-old City Siskin.

SIR,—As a lover of that attractive but rather scarce little Finch, the Siskin, I thought it might interest your readers to know that Mr. Linstead, of 89-90, Cheapside, has a cock Siskin which has been in his possession for fifteen years. The bird, which has always been fed on Hyde's Finch mixture, is in fairly good plumage, and although it has partially lost the use of its wings and feet, it still bravely utters its little song. I have heard cases of the Goldfinch reaching an age of from fifteen to twenty years, but considering the uncongenial atmosphere of the City of London, this must surely be a record of longevity.

A Weasel Clears out an Aviary.

SIR,—In opening my aviary this morning I found that all my birds had been killed during the night by a weasel, which had entered by burrowing under the wire-netting. The birds I was most sorry to lose were a Pea-throated cock Goldie, which had bred me some good Mules this season, all cocks, and a hen Bullfinch I was going to pair with him, hoping for a Hybrid. This last summer she built a nest and laid eggs in it and sat on them the full time. I also lost two hen Canaries (both bred Mules) and another cock Goldie and hen Linnet, all useful birds to me, as my hobby is to breed a Hybrid. I cannot replace them for the coming season at any rate, unless some of your readers can help me to make a fresh start.

Competition in "Any Other Variety" Classes.

SIR,—I have been requested to call attention to the fact that considerable dissatisfaction exists with regard to the "A.O.V. and Hybrid class" at Northampton show. Several valuable Hybrids were entered at the last show, but the chief awards were given to Crests. One might have expected, under the circumstances, that at least the second prize would have been given to one of the Hybrids. The Committee must not be surprised if next year Hybrid exhibitors leave the class severely alone, and allow the Crests to have it all their own way. I should like to ask them the question which naturally arises: "Is it fair to allow Crests to compete in this class?"

An Interesting Chat on Birds at Liverpool Show.

SIR,—The British, Foreign, and Hybrid section at Liverpool's great show last week proved a wonderful attraction—the best lot ever seen in this city. Some of the species particularly attracted my attention. The Nut-hatch, a British resident, but seldom seen North, was especially interesting. It appeared very happy in its cork-bark lined cage, taking no notice of visitors, but carried its food to a crevice in the bark and hammered away at it with its strong straight beak, as it would in its natural haunts. The Bearded Tit is another interesting resident, but a rarity seldom seen; its only home now in this country is perhaps the Norfolk Broads. This bird was also in fine plumage, and very active, jumping from twig to twig, carefully avoiding the straight, formal perches. The White-throat (greater), a common summer visitor to this country, did not appear quite so lively as the above but was, like them, in good condition and attractive (a pity these were not labelled). The two species of Redstart, the Common and the Black, were two very interesting birds, bobbing their "danger signals" (red tails) up and down.

The Bohemian Waxwing sat stolid and erect as a sentinel on war duty, and was in perfect plumage, not a feather displaced in his uniform, his "button," waxen feather tips on his wings perfect. The two Choughs with their plumage of bright steel blue, did not hide their light under a bushel. They were not only seen, but heard, by everyone in the show. Both were worth a first prize. The exhibitor of a Chough is a true fancier and deserves all he gets, and more. He is one of the pillars of the show system, helping to make the show a success without thinking of the trouble and expense of sending such a big bird about the country. This type of exhibitor, including those who send Softbills and delicate Foreigners, deserve the thanks not only of the show committee, but of every visitor to the show.

The Foreign class was well represented by a beautiful Black-headed Gouldian Finch and a Paradise Whydah. How the tail of this bird is so well preserved in a cage is a mystery to me? The Ribbon, Zebra Finches, Javas, and Orange Bishop, did great credit to Miss Powell. Visitors were indebted to Rare Birds at the Horticultural Hall Show.

Sir,—Unless accidents occur, visitors will have the pleasure of viewing unique specimens of Humming Birds, while Birds of Paradise have been promised, and it is possible that Blue Wrens may be entered. We have heard also of Bullock's Hangnests, Violacons Hangnests, Purple headed Glossy Starlings, a rare Green Glossy Starling, and several new and interesting Hybrids. At present only a guess can be given as to numbers, but it is pretty evident that quality will be superb, and foreign cage birds well represented. Several rare Flycatchers, Sunbirds, and Finches are also likely to be shown. The feeding of this section will be under direct supervision of the Hon. Mrs. Bourke, Mrs. Thynne, Mr. Wynn, and Mrs. Dewhurst, and other members of the League will keep an eye on the welfare of the birds during the exhibition.

The Bib of the Exhibition Siskin.

Sir,—Allow me to thank Mr. Prior for his very interesting and able letter. Mr. Prior says my assertion that yellow Siskins do not carry a well-defined bib in October is too sweeping. I can only submit to the Fancy that on the evidence I have procured from disinterested persons, also from what I have learned from the greatest teacher in the world, namely, practical experience, I can come to no other conclusion, and cannot conscientiously modify my assertion. I fully recognise the responsibility of the position I have taken up—none better than I do myself. If the intelligence of the whole Fancy ever brings into being a central governing body (may it soon arrive) to save us from our individual chaos, I believe that either by evidence or practical test I would secure the verdict from that body and the vindication of the position I have taken up upon this matter.

How the L. and P.O.S. and Clapham Shows affect Novice Exhibitors.

Sir,—I beg to enclose you a copy of a letter received by this society (The London Federation of Cage Bird Societies) and should be obliged if you would insert our reply to same in your next issue.

Dear Sir,—Seeing a notice that the Council meet on Friday, I have a question I should like them to answer re shows this season. What I want to know is, will shows like Clapham and the L.P.O.S. count as open ones for novices? These shows are limited to London, and there were only members' classes given; last year they gave open classes as well as members'. The question will affect several other exhibitors in novice classes. Shall be obliged if you will answer through CAGE BIRDS.

Sir,—In reply to the query addressed to the London Federation of C.B.S. asking if the L. and P.O.S. and Clapham Societies' shows would count as open shows for novice classes, this meeting is of opinion that the shows were open, and that novice classes will count accordingly, the only restriction in connection with them being that exhibitors were required to deliver and collect their exhibits.

Suggestions for Tiding Over Hard Times.

Sir,—Let me appeal to all societies to hold their meetings as usual. It is bad enough postponing the shows, but they ought to hold their meetings. They have a grand opportunity of justifying their existence. It is not only our brave comrades who have gone to the front whose stocks want looking after; there are unfortunately plenty of fanciers with good stocks, who, owing to the war, are out of employment, or working half time. These men want a helping hand to keep their stocks, as it is as much as they can do to live. I think it is time societies took the matter up and bought on the co-operative system. A sub-committee could be appointed to deal with this matter; also a benevolent fund could be formed. I am aware that this is a delicate question to handle, but it could be easily arranged. I am sure a parcel of seed would help many a good fancier to keep his stock going until things brighten up again. I am afraid if fanciers are forced to sell out, their interest will be gone. Fellow-fanciers, attend your meetings; you have a grand opportunity of showing the faddist that we keep birds for the love of the hobby. I would also ask the seed merchants not to overdo it in raising the price of seed, as I have met several fanciers who declare they will give up if seed continues to go up in price. Fanciers, remember the old adage: A little help is worth a deal of sympathy.

An Offer to Secretaries in Durham and Northumberland.

Sir,—I was interested to see Mr. W. E. Plank's spirited defence of the Border Fancy, although I am afraid little progress will be made by contrasting its merits with such as the Norwich and Yorkshire possess. Nevertheless, the future of the sprightly little Border is assured. Last Saturday I visited the show of the Newcastle-on-Tyne C.B.S. held this year under rather adverse conditions) and was struck with the fine show of yellow and buff Borders. I would like to see some of the smaller clubs in the district cater more for the Border Fancy, and if a small offer is of any use I shall be pleased to award two prizes of framed pictures, one to the first Northumberland secretary and one to the first Durham secretary, whose letters reach me informing me that they have a show next month with a Novice Border Fancy Class; my two prizes to be given to such classes.

COVENTRY.

35th Annual Open show, Nov. 14, headquarters, Sydenham Palace, Lower Ford Street. The room is an ideal one for a cage bird show, and we should have liked to see a better entry in view of the proceeds being given to the Prince of Wales' Fund. The birds were well looked after. Judging was over and cards up in good time. Unfortunately Mr. Parlett's team of Mules and British did not arrive till 1.30, too late for competition. The Society has in Mr. Green a very obliging sec., and with the assistance of the hard-working committee things were carried out in apple-pie order. Messrs. G. Peters (President), T. Gilbert, T. Judd (Vice-Presidents), J. Corral (Treasurer), G. Turrell, H. Mann (auditors), H. Butler, W. Rowley, G. Lawrence, H. Spann, A. J. Barratt, W. Davies, W. Slaymaker, all worked hard for the general good. Mr. J. Robson judged and gave general satisfaction.

NOR. CL. YELL. LEITH.

Fifty-fifth annual show, Nov. 14, Church Hall, Junction Road. The hall is a good one, lofty well lighted, and free from draughts, and all available space was taken up with a splendid entry. Cups, specials, etc., were laid out for inspection, and the display was very imposing. Exhibits were of high-class merit. Some grand Scotch, Norwich, Borders and British being on view we thought the last section the finest of all. Visitors swarmed in during the afternoon, and the remark was often made that Leith executive might well run an open show, having such support from patrons and the visiting public; they might run a show second to none, perhaps equal to the Scottish National. The society is fortunate in having as leaders Messrs. James Lumsden, pres. and show manager, John Allan, vice-pres., and Geo. Brown, sec., everything passed off smoothly and with clockwork regularity under their charge. Judges were: Scotch Fancy, Messrs. J. Carson, Dalkeith, and J. McLean, Edinburgh; Nor., J. Hoims, Edinburgh; Borders, T. Arnott, Kirkecubbin; and J. Patterson, Chirnside; Brit. and Mules, P. McQuiston, Ayr, and the awards met with general satisfaction.

Two Hundred Up On Last Year.

Fourth annual open show, Nov. 13-14, and we are very pleased to chronicle a very successful show. In past years the society has not been very fortunate in obtaining the support of exhibitors, and the reason is very difficult to find. They have a grand hall, one of the best in the North of England, provide a very liberal classification, and pay good prize-money, which is paid out to all exhibitors attending the show; in fact, they have done everything in their power in the interests of exhibitors and we hope now the tide has turned in their favour they will continue on to greater things, and become one of the largest and best shows in the North, as they deserve to be. The show was held in the Clob Hall, a really grand place for a show; grand size, any amount of both top and side light, and heated to a comfortable degree. Entries came up well, totalling about 200 over last year, and 150 above previous best. Quality throughout was of a very high standard, several crack exhibitors sending grand teams and each section contained birds of superlative merit. A regrettable incident was the absence of the fine team of Yorkshires entered by Mr. G. W. Cuthbertson, the birds not arriving until the afternoon, too late for judging. The society is grandly officered, the president, Mr. A. W. Monk, who opened the show, being one of the right sort, and a splendid supporter. The genial chairman, Mr. E. Richardson, works hard, while treas. Mr. G. Huggill, deserves a special word of thanks for the way he worked during the show. These gentlemen had a grand committee under them composed of Messrs. T. Orton, J. H. Elwell, W. Webb, G. Bradley, G. Charlton, A. Alderson, R. Ridley, R. Rowlandson and T. Kit-hing, who all gave of their best to make the show a success. In Mr. J. Ainsworth the society possesses a s.c. who thoroughly understands his work, and he carries out his duties with clock-like precision, while his kindly and courteous manner makes him very popular; he would undoubtedly have had more reason to be pleased at the success of his efforts but for the fact of Newcastle Show taking place on the Saturday, which probably meant the loss of a considerable number of entries. In the members' class 25 birds of all varieties competed for 25 specials, each bird obtaining a prize, and the class was judged by both judges. Special prize winners in Open: Most points Nor. Mays and Allison, 2nd Bailes and Thompson; most points Yorks. Naylor, 2nd Pyman; Bords. Watson; Brit. Nicholson and Son, 2nd Dr. Wilson. The judges were Mr. J. Stanger (Peltou Fell), Nor., Crests and Bords.; and Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland), Yorks., Brit., and Mules.

Thirteenth Annual Show, Palmer Hall, Nov. 11. The building is a grand one for a show, with every convenience, plenty of light, and room for visitors. The staging was tastefully arranged. The entry was about 50 in excess of last year, and quality far and away the best seen at this listure. Norwich and Yorks. were well represented, many winners at far bigger shows being put to it to hold their own. Reading always has a good exhibition of Britishers, and the present show was no exception; the class for Goldies was a topper, but at a show of this size the A.O.V. class might have been split up; it seems hardly fair to expect Finches, Buntings, and Scitbills, to compete together. Type, quality, and size were all evident in the Norwich, some really high class ones being put down. Messrs. Saunders' yell. and Allsopp's buff were real gems, and came in for a lot of attention. Messrs. Jawsco Bros. had out a hot team in Yorks., but Messrs. Giles, Everett, Thomson, Pritchard, Woodley, and others made them go all the way to win. The unflighted buff class was a hot one, more than the winners deserving of awards. Members came up well with their entries, the all-round excellence of the birds making the show particularly attractive. Mr. O. C. Smith won spl. for best Nor. with a capital var. bird, of good size. The show was well attended and quite a big crowd gathered round the stage when the Mayor, Mr. Leonard Sutton, presented the prizes. The show was capitally managed, and in addition to the Sec., Mr. O. C. Smith, the following gentlemen ably assisted:—Messrs. Vince, Yates, Munday, Dearlove, Meadowcroft, Brooker, Smith, Maisey, George, and the late sec., Mr. W. H. Pyke. Mr. J. Robson judged.

NOR. YELL. (10): 1, Saunders, wonderful size and subs., big, full head and neck, bold, wide front, good wing carr., grand depth of col. and bloom; 2, Silk, C. W., closely pressed, hardly the subs., but wonderfully short, grand, bold head, nicely rounded, and tight in feather; 3, Lees, hardly the bulk of winner, but capital type and good qual.; vhc, Lovegrove; he, Davis; c, Cannon. BUFF (12): 1, Allsopp, sterner for size, but inclined to put on flesh, which somewhat spoilt the contour, grand head and wings, but some preferred 2, Saunders, a gem for type, size, and qual., difficult to find fault with, beautifully proportioned throughout, and staged to time; 3, Davis, nice var., neat head and wings, good qual.; vhc, Cook; he, Mrs. Weeks; c, Silk. HEN (7): 1, 2, Dearlove, winner, the much talked of Yell., a gem, size, type, and qual. all there, wonderful style; 2nd, lovely buff, typical, good size, neat head and good wings, grand cond.; 3, Philpot, nice front, good back and wings, neat tail, excellent qual.; vhc, he, Cannon; c, Dunning. UNFLIG. YELL. (6): 1, Lewin, wing mkd., fine size and shape, well across the perch, bold head, nicely rounded body, good wings and tail, in fine fettle; 2, M. Cook, cap and wing mkd., good subs., bold, full head and neck, good back, low on legs, lovely qual.; 3, Addison, lovely 3 ptd., grand type, cleanly cut, neat head, good shoulders and back, capital wings, in fine order; vhc, Silk; he, Lees; c, Allsopp. BUFF (9): 1, Lees, nice size, quite long enough, but if chickens will be a good one, capital head and wing, grand qual.; 2, Allsopp, similar, good qual., nicely moulded, stands well, should improve; 3, Silk, grand subs., fine full head and neck, good wings, capital col. and qual., must have pressed leaders; vhc, he, Lewin; c, Cook. YORKS. YELL. (19): 1, Everett, grand cl., wonderful length, good style, stands well, showing plenty of daylight, tightly braced wings, neat tail, lovely qual., well put down; 2, Pritchard, cl., grand type, hardly so nice in head, not so smooth in front, but fine length of side, and good pos.; 3, Thomson, beauty, hit cleaner fronted than 2nd, grand length, wings tightly braced, well up on leg; vhc, Cooke; he, c, Hawes Bros. BUFF (19): 1, 3, vhc, Hawes Bros., leader, sterner for size, although inclined to be fat, which made him look thick, fine length of wings, grand qual.; 3, lovely cl., smarter, more racy, grand length and style, cleanly cut, showing plenty of leg, A1 qual.; 2, Weeks, var., full of qual and cond., grand length and style, good head, capital shoulders, back, and wings, pleased the eye immensely; he, Smith; c, Clarke. HEN (16): 1, 2, he, Hawes Bros., well-known Cinn. mkd., leading, very typical, and small, fine full length of side, stands well, grand wings, in the pink; 2, lovely buff, wonderful type and style, just a suspicion of frill, otherwise a charmer, we liked immensely; 3, Giles, grand buff, fine pos. and style, rare length, good head and wings, A1 qual.; vhc, c, Hutchinson. UNFLIG. YELL. (16): 1, Hawes Bros., grand size and type, good shoulders and back, wee bit weak in head, but A1 qual.; 2, Woodley, very clean cut and smart, good head, neck, and shoulders, tightly braced wings, neat tail, tight as wax, must have pressed; 3, Clark, hardly the length of winners, but neat head, well up on shoulder, capital wings, pure qual. feathers; vhc, Nicholls; he, Roser; c, Thomson. BUFF (19): 1, Hawes Bros., wonderful size, fine length of wing, feather and well put down; 2, Clarke, beauty for size, style, and pos., hardly the finish of winner, but grand length of wing, good head and tail; 3, Parker, good one, capital length and pos., good legs, tightly braced wings, neat tail; vhc, Bridgewater; he, Lane; c, White. A.O.V.: 1, vhc, Edwards, grand gr., C.B., wonderful size and subs., massive skull, well clothed with feather, grandly lashed, A1 qual.; 2, c, Fifeild, cl. Dutch Frill, grand size and pos., full of feather, fine double mantle and underfrill, rare qual.; 3, Clayton, topping little yell. Bord., very neat and typical, clean cut, good head, wings, and tail, tightly packed, in the pink; he, Pike. GOLDF. (10): 1, Acton, lovely Finch, grand size and shape, big, bold face, with clean cut blaze, nice wide top, rich tan, good wings, put down in the pink; 2, c, Messrs. Bowler, grand face, fine width, and clean cut, hardly the subs. of winner, but equal in other points, in fine fettle; 3, Edwards, another good one on points, grand blaze, good rich black, fine wings, well buttoned, hardly the polish, but a good one; vhc, Prior; he, Silk. A.O.V. ACCRINGTON.

Open show, November 14. Owing to the big strike in the town lasting so long, the war, and the slackness of trade, it was decided to hold the show at the club house, Crown Hotel, in order to keep down expenses, and make it for Norwich Plainheads only. The show had the full patronage of the O.N.P.C., and grand teams were put down by W. Crawshaw, A. Hirst, J. Thomas, Stubbs Bros. and S. Cook. Competition was very hot, and another set of winners could have been picked out of buff cocks, while the unflighted classes contained nearly all this season's winners. The birds were nicely staged on three sides of the room, with a good light, and could be seen well. The work was got through by a willing lot of workers, consisting of D. Harwood (sec.), A. Hirst (chairman), W. Crawshaw (treas.), committee, J. Stutter, H. Walsh, J. Rooney, J. E. Hartup, W. Parkinson, S. Waddington, and H. Biding. The birds were in the hands of the railway company in good time on Saturday, to reach home same night, except the very long journeys. Prize-money was paid out in the afternoon to those present, and we understand the remainder was sent out on Monday.—Mr. E. Godley judged. CHAMP. YELL. CK. (13): 1, he, Crawshaw, eye and wings mkd., rare qual. and shape, nice car., Manchester and Leicester winner; 2, Issott, cl. nice head and neck, fine cond.; 3, Stubbs Bros., fine bold bird, red hot col. at first sight a sterner, but somewhat spoiled by bad wings; 4, Thomas, cl., good head, rare subs. and shape, beaten in quality of feather only; we preferred it for 2nd; vhc, Hirst; c, Turner. BUFF (13): 1, A. Hirst, well-known varieg., grand head, full neck, deep chest, plenty of size, bit short of col.; 2, Crawshaw, varieg., full of col., grand shape, true Nor., not the size of winner; 3, Thomas, cl., grand shape, rare body and size; 4, Mercer, eye and wing mark, good head and neck, hot col., beaten in subs., still, a grand bird; very hot class; many well-known winners had to stand down; vhc, Thomas; he, A. Hirst; c, Turner. PARTICK.

Sixteenth annual show, Co-operative Hall, Nov. 7. For comfort and beauty a more suitable hall would be difficult to imagine. The Canary classes were much smaller than usual, but some very outstanding birds were staged. British birds and mules were well filled, and some extra grand specimens were on view. Mr. Laurie put down a fine team of Linnets and won spl. for best Hard-bill in hall. Cup for best bird was won by Mr. A. Maxwell's Norwich, a bird of outstanding merit, the smaller cup to the runner-up going to Mr. Aikenhead's York cock, which was also in the winning team for Yorkshire bowl. Judges were: Nor., Mr. F. Taylor; Yorks. and Bord., Mr. R. Hezgie; Brit., etc., Mr. R. G. Clubbs, and they got through their duties to the general satisfaction.

NEWCASTLE.

If northern fanciers felt any disappointment at the abandonment of the celebrated two-days' show held annually by the Newcastle C.B.C., it was to a large extent counterbalanced by the extra line show held by the society in conjunction with the Northern Specialist Clubs, Nov. 14. The Co-operative Hall, which the society had taken for the big one-day fixture, was taken by the military just before the show, and the officials had to hurriedly hunt round for another hall, and were fortunate in being able to secure at the last moment the St. Wilfred's Hall in Blandford-street. Entries came up splendidly, totalling 502, and quality was simply grand. The pick of the northern bird rooms were on view, and the public were treated to a really fine display of first-class exhibits. Norwich, Yorks., and Bord. were great, while the two classes for current year Crests and Crestbred were stormers. The winner of challenge bowl for best young bird was a lovely clear Goldie Mule, exhibited by Mr. J. Maddison, a gem of the first water. The "Kate Haggie" challenge cup for best bird other than bowl winner went to Mr. Geo. Dobson with a magnificent D.C. Other special prize-winners: Most points in show, Maddison; for most points in Canaries, Johnson. L. Lindsay; most points novices, Reid. The management, as always, was absolutely perfect, and in Mr. A. J. Haggie the society possesses a grand president. In Mr. F. C. Crawhall the society have a splendid chairman, keen and enthusiastic, and always ready to do his best for the club, and he is grandly backed up by a hard-working committee composed of Messrs. R. Tindall, J. Maddison, W. Curry, F. Wymouth, A. Holden, C. G. Petterson, C. Farrer, W. Espe, and Mr. J. Craig. Mr. F. W. Laidlow, as show manager, did his work well, everything going off without a hitch, and credit for hard work and patience must be given to Mr. J. W. Reed, the popular sec., who got through a trying time previous to and during the show with marvellous ability. The Vice of St. Wilfred's, the Rev. Mr. Taylor, who took a great interest in the show, entertained the judges, secretary and show manager to a substantial dinner. Judges were: Messrs. T. Dixon (Bedlington), Nor. and Crests; Mr. T. Robson (Newcastle), Bord.; and Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland), Yorks., Mules, Brit. and For.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
- (2)—The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
- (3)—Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.
- (4)—Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions or advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
- (5)—The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
- (6)—If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest.
- (7)—If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for sixpence must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems).
- (8)—All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
- (9)—All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERISTS

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

WINTERING STOCK (Ignorant). (1) I have not the actual dimensions of the cage you name by me, but in a general way five birds are certainly too many to keep permanently through the winter in a double breeding cage, even if you have the sliding partition removed to allow them the greatest amount of space available. Three birds would be quite sufficient, and four should be the limit in all ordinary circumstances, but if the cage is a good size, say, not less than 38 inches long and 11 inches deep you might, with strict attention to cleanliness of floor space and food and water vessels, winter the five altogether in it without any very great risk. It is not likely that any serious damage will be done by quarrelling at this season. Bad birdy language may be lung about at times, but nothing more serious will happen. (2) If the room is dry and free from cold, cutting draughts there is no reason whatever why the birds should not thrive there very well all through the winter without the aid of artificial heat. In any case, as long as the normal temperature keeps somewhere about 45 degrees there is no necessity at all for increasing it.

SOUNDS LIKE MOANING (J. M., Glasgow).—The bird is probably suffering from a slight catarrh. Keep it in a comfortable and fairly equable temperature for a month, but do not overheat it. In addition to the usual seed diet give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for a fortnight, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre. Glad to hear previous advice was so successful.

DRIPPING AGAIN (Roathite).—I'm afraid it is as I suspected—that the bird is in an advanced stage of bronchial trouble and really past any hope of being cured. The most you can expect to accomplish is to ward off the exciting causes which aggravate the condition, and alleviate the symptoms when a relapse occurs. If the cold wave prevailing where I am writing this has visited your district that is quite sufficient to account for this relapse, and you will find the bird similarly affected by any future change of a like nature, until one day the end will arrive quite unexpectedly. All you can do is to keep the bird in a warm temperature, which is as equable as possible, and protect it as far as possible from the effect of such changes, and when any relapse occurs treat it as advised in last reply until the symptoms have abated. For the next fortnight give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it every second day, and on the alternate days give 20 drops of chemical food in the drinking water.

EFFECT OF STEAM (Anxious).—Frequent or prolonged exposure to steam would certainly prove prejudicial to the well-being of the birds, and probably throw them into a "soft moult," when they would be constantly casting a few small feathers. But if the heating of the copper is quite temporary, not oftener than twice a week, and the scullery is sufficiently ventilated to carry away the steam quickly, without setting up undue draughts in the cages, I do not anticipate any serious trouble with the birds on that account. It is, however, a risky position for the birds, and you will need to keep a close watch over their condition, and also see that the above conditions are observed as far as possible.

STILL BREATHES HEAVILY (H. R.).—(1) The bird seems very like falling into a condition of chronic bronchitis. See reply to "Roathite" in this issue, and act generally upon the advice given therein. Keep bird in a warm temperature, but do not overheat it, well-aired and equable; give a little prepared sponge cake as advised in the reply referred to, but instead of the chemical food get a chemist to mix for you two drachms each of oxymel of squills and glycerine; one drachm each of tincture of lobelia and ipecac. wine, and ten grains of iodide of potassium, and give 20 drops of this in the water every second day. Continue this treatment for a fortnight, and if no material improvement has taken place you may safely assume that its career of usefulness is past. In any case I would not advise you to breed with it. (2) Give the Norwich hen half a teaspoonful of sponge cake prepared as for the above every second day for a week or fortnight, as may seem necessary, and on the alternate days add to the drinking water four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of catnaba, and aromatic sulphuric acid.

NORWICH OFF SONG (T. J.).—You should have said how you have been treating the bird and where you keep it. I suspect its condition is largely, perhaps wholly, due to improper treatment, especially in the matter of being kept in unsuitable surroundings, probably exposed to cold draughts or impure and heated air. See that it is kept in a bright and healthy place, in a fairly equable temperature, which need not be overheat, and do not allow it to hang near a window, nor near or over a burning light in the evenings. In addition to the staple seed diet give a morsel of bread and milk with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion on it and sprinkled with soft sugar every second day for two or three weeks. On the alternate days give a morsel of banana, or a spray of watercress, but be careful that the latter is not frosted. In the drinking water add five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine, and sweet spirit of nitre every second day for a week. In the next week give instead 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the above in the same order.

EFFECT OF DAMP (A. Horton).—There cannot be the slightest doubt that the dampness of the room is the cause of the birds all going wheezy. The only rational remedy for the trouble would be to remove the birds to a drier room, as you did last year. But if this is not possible you should endeavour to discover the real source of the damp, which may be quite unconnected with the water tank, although the latter may add its share to the condition, and if possible remove the cause. As you say the room is about 50 degrees in temperature, I doubt whether the use of an oil stove would make matters better. The room is quite warm enough for anything now, and an oil stove, even if it removed the damp must naturally raise the temperature to an altogether unnecessary degree, besides adding risks of its own. You might do worse than look well into the ventilation of the room, as this may be a contributory cause of the damp condition. If you fail to remedy the condition, and cannot remove the birds to any other room, you might try a small stove, or better still, if you have gas available, a small portable hot-water coil, but you must endeavour to maintain an equable temperature, and you should not get it above 55 degrees if you can avoid it. You will also need to see that the air is completely changed at least twice a day, but at same time draughts must be avoided. Scrupulous cleanliness and constant watchfulness are necessary to run an oil stove successfully without fear of accidents. Finally, if you do not find the use of a stove have the desired effect at once, my advice is to remove the birds at any cost of inconvenience, or otherwise clear out.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

AVIARY MATTERS (Constant Reader).—Yours appears to be a nice aviary, well fitted up, and the feeding arrangements quite correct. I am glad to hear your birds are doing so nicely and on friendly terms, and all the while they are healthy you may have no trouble, but I am afraid directly one shows any signs of loss of vigour you will have some difficulty with your lits, for although they are so small they can quickly brain a larger bird that is failing in health. I think you would therefore find them troublesome if any of the others attempted to breed in the spring; young helpless birds would be almost certain to be destroyed by them. Although should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Avaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nuthatch" booklets (2d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnet," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Care Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS

you gave me a list of the birds in your aviary, you say nothing about the sex of them, so I am unable to advise you about the possibility of their breeding. Tell me more about them, and I shall be pleased to assist you or give you a list of suitable birds.

LINNET MOULTING BLACK (Novice Fancier).—Birds have been known to moult into black in captivity but it is not at all a common occurrence. An idea at one time prevailed that if a Bullfinch, for instance, was fed on hemp seed he would moult out black, but although many of them have had quite their share of hemp seed black linnets are not by any means common. If he is a good rich black colour he could be exhibited in the rare feathered class at one of the big shows.

FEEDING A NUTHATCH (Harry Kay). The Nuthatch is not a particularly difficult bird to manage, though at trouble with them is that they are so inclined to get fat. His chief food should be a good brand of insective mixture mixed with graded raw carrot. Get a good brand the same as is used for Nightingales and small Warblers. Suitable live food must also be offered according to the time of the year, also cracked nuts, sunflower and hemp seeds. After one has been caged some time you will find he is not at all particular as to food and will eat a little of nearly anything offered him. Bananas, pease, peeled grapes, etc., are grand for him, and assist to keep him in condition. Give a large cage with rough places of bark nailed on to it, he will cling to these and take exercise. Nuthatches are fond of bathing. Food and water vessels should be placed inside the cage.

STOCK MIXTURE FOR BIRDSMERS (T.H.H.).

—One of the difficulties of keeping several British birds together is finding a seed diet suitable to all. If you give a fair amount of hemp seed to the Goldfinches, the greedy Goldfinches get the majority and get terribly fat. Your best plan will be to feed them with the mixture I am now advising and occasionally catch up the Goldies for a week or so, and give them their proper diet. Make up the following: 3 parts canary, 2 tealze, 2 summer rape. Let them have this always before them. Make another mixture of niger and maw in equal quantities and add to it enough food linseed to equal both. Give this twice a week, a spoonful to each bird. On other days give the same quantity of a good wild-seed mixture which you can purchase in packets. A little sunflower should be given every day, some of which should be cracked for the benefit of the Goldies. Give good sound hemp 3 times a week. Watch the Goldies and see if they are getting their fair share of these good things, also notice if the canary seed is being consumed rather quickly, and if so, give a separate pot of it for the benefit of the Bunting. You will find this will be his favourite food. See that the water supply does not freeze up. Offer a good large piece of apple twice a week. If you get greenfood see that it is free from frost.

MULE BREEDING (G. Etherington).—If you tie a piece of string to the front bars of the Finch's cage it will probably cure him of the habit of pulling his tail feathers. He evidently wants something to amuse him. It is not absolutely necessary to let the Finches and Canaries fly together all the winter. The reason it is done is because Finches and Canaries are frequently very shy of each other, therefore they are run together to get familiar. If you let them fly in the same cage occasionally for a day or so it will do equally as well. You can put them in your double-breeder and put the wire slide between them at other times. When they are together you must give them the Finch mixture, as the Goldie will not do well on Canary seed alone if he has been used to a more generous diet. At the same time give a good supply of Canary seed, as some hens are not particularly keen on hemp and other rich seeds. A Linnet and Canary can be fed on the following mixture: 3 parts canary, 1 each of tealze and rape and 1 part linseed; a little hemp and maw occasionally. Young birds are preferred for mule breeding, but if a bird has been caged for a year or two, he seldom refuses to mate with a Canary when the nesting time arrives and he is on full song.

MULE THAT SINGS TOO MUCH (J. S.).—Canary hybrids, as a rule, are exceptionally stout songsters, and yours is only a little extra so. It is therefore quite natural for him to get excited when he hears another bird singing. You can, if you like, keep him in lower condition by feeding on plainer food, say, three parts canary and tealze, and one part rape, instead of the mixed seeds you are using; also give a liberal allowance of green food, or you could still further lower his condition by giving occasionally as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence, dissolved in his drinking water. Personally, I would much rather keep him in high fettle as he is now, and hang him out of hearing of other birds. Kindly note that queries should be accompanied with the full name and address of the querist.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

CAN I LEAVE THEM OUT? (F. E. N.).—Providing the boarding is sound, and the aviary draught-proof, the Zebra Finches should survive the winter comfortably enough. You would improve the conditions by putting glass over the west end, outside the netting, and, of course, a curtain to be let down over the open part of front each night, and this can remain down during driving rain or snow, as they would get ample light through the glass of west end. The aviary should contain about one dozen nest receptacles (rush nests, husks, and boxes), in which the birds would sleep. You could keep four pairs in it for breeding, removing the young as they are able to fend for themselves. Two pairs of Zebra Finches, and one pair each of Silverbills and Bib Finches, and for the sake of a little bright colour, a pair of common (Red) Avadavats could be added; the latter might or might not breed, but they are small, bright and vivacious, and would add life and colour to the aviary. If you know anyone with an outdoor aviary, get a hen Zebra Finch and put it with the others; this is the simplest way to check the present bickering; the other birds you must not procure till the spring. When they are feeding young supply green-food ad lib., from twice daily; also a few live insects, mealworms, gentles, and live ants' eggs. Under conditions as above the birds can be left together through the winter.

ROSE FINCHES AND LOVEBIRDS (Harry Kay).—For the Finches, a mixture of canary and white millet in one hopper, and in another a mixture of hemp, tealze, rape, maw, safflower and paddy rice; also green-food, especially seeding and flowering grass, and a few insects. Rose Finches will not retain their beautiful colour in captivity (except in a roomy, natural garden aviary. As for the Lovebirds, canary, white millet, and a few oats will about meet their requirements, with such green food and fruit as they will take; birds have tastes which one must consult to some extent. In addition to the above menus, grit, cuttlebone, and water for drinking and bathing are understood. Seed-eaters when kept in cages are liable to become overfat and also constipated. The former can, to some extent, be mitigated by providing roomy cages, and the latter by observation and the giving of a mild laxative when they appear to need it. Constipation should never be allowed to become pronounced.

THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutshell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published).

JACKSON'S Whydahs, 3 cocks, coming in colour, home two months, £3 3/- each; from outdoor aviary: Brazilian Hangnest, 15/-; Virginian Cardinal, show condition, 17/-; 2 Californian Quail cocks, 7/- each; Cape Canary, 7/-; all perfect health; want hens, Avadavats and Grey Singing Finch, from outdoor aviary, in exchange cocks: George Low, 14, Royal-terrace, E., Kingstown, Ireland. (1895)

THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutshell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently).

WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutshell No. 20," 2d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

JUST THE THING FOR XMAS PRESENTS.

No Better Books for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1½.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateles is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1½.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts, Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business note-paper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/-, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

The Shettleston and Dist. C.B.S. members' show takes place on Dec. 12, in the Hill Street Hall, when 54 classes are provided, covering practically all varieties.

Owing to increase in trade, writes Mr. H. Moore, I have removed the Lambeth Aviaries to larger premises at 35, Gladstone Street, St. George's Road, S.E.

We are asked to state that Mr. W. Jopson (Exchange Stores, Newton Heath) has no connection with any other advertiser in the Manchester district.

Mr. R. P. Fox, hon. sec. N. Shields C.B.C., writes that his society has abandoned its 1914 show owing to so many of the members being at the front fighting for their country.

We note that the Springburn, Possil Park and Dist. C.B.C. annual members' show is to be held on Dec. 5 in the Reid Hall, Queenshill Street, Springburn (open 1.30 p.m.). There are 29 classes for young birds and 37 for old birds.

All members and fanciers around Burnley and Dist., writes Mr. G. Wharton, hon. sec. Burnley C.B.S., will be very sorry to learn that Mr. Joe Baker has had a misfortune, owing to a fall. We all wish him a speedy recovery.

All prize-money won at the show of the Old Shildon Workmen's Club C.B.S. has been paid, and we have heard from exhibitors, writes Mr. J. Ainsworth, sec., that their birds got home in good time. The show was a great success; anyone overlooked should write the sec.

OBITUARY.

The deepest sympathy, writes Mr. J. Rees, Rochdale, is felt by fanciers of this and the surrounding district, and I am sure they will be shared by all who have come in contact with Mr. R. Blincoe, the late sec. of the Rochdale O.C., in the loss of his ten-year-old son, who died to-day (Nov. 23) after a very short illness.

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool) that I have to report the death of Harry Bunner (of Bunner and Sons). He was in the Artillery, stationed at Canterbury, and while having a bath the geyser burst and suffocated him. It is a great blow to his father, Mr. E. Bunner, who has the sympathy, I am sure, of fanciers throughout the country.

We have decided to postpone our open show, Coaltown of Wemyss C.B.S., arranged for Dec. 5, writes Mr. Hugh Clelland, Sec.

There is an error in Whitburn schedule, writes Mr. R. Lambie, sec. Class 29 should read "house-moulted," not colour fed. Mr. Whitelaw (Govan) has given 2s. 6d. sp. for best Green Border, open, and Mr. Whiteford 2s. for best F.M. Linnet confined.

At the annual members' show of the Edmonton F.A., to be held on Dec. 10, in the Town Hall, 30 classes have been provided for cage-birds, with Mr. H. Norman as the judge.

As will be seen from the show advt. in another column, entries for Abersychan show, Dec. 3, are extended till Nov. 30. The stewards who are giving their services are all experienced fanciers, and exhibitors may depend that every attention will be given to their birds.

I regret, writes Mr. Jos. Elliott, sec., that Cambois and Dis. C.B.S. show had to be cancelled at the last moment, after members had their entry tickets sent out to them, owing to the Military authorities taking every available place on the colliery. We had a record entry for the number of classes.

It was a pleasant surprise to see sketch of my buff wing-marked Yorkshire, winner at Kingston, 1913, in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, recently; the sketch was very lifelike. I beg to say that a son of this bird won the Rowan challenge cup for best bird, F.F. show, Dublin, 1914. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—John Keogh.

The Cage Birds at Newport (I. of W.) Show on Dec. 2, will, we hear, be judged by Mr. W. R. Miles, of Chichester.

The person holding ticket No. 648 may have the bird and cage given away at our recent show by applying to me, writes Mr. A. Freestone, 79, Clarendon Street, Leicester. Derby C.B.S. holds its annual members' show on Nov. 28, at the Normanton Hotel, writes Mr. P. W. Jordan, the hon. sec. Mr. Vardy is the judge, and according to the entries there will be a successful show. Two cups are for competition, and Mr. Colledge is showing his champion Crest.

Corrections in Show Reports.

In the report of Leith show, 1, 2, 3, 4, No Name, should read 1, 2, 3, 4, Watson, and in Light Mule class Mr. Watson won 1st and special. At Old Shildon Mr. Jas. Barnes won sp. most points in Nor., not Mays and Allinson, and Mr. Barnes was 3rd in Nor. Yell., not Reynolds; at Reading Mr. Philpot was 1st in unflighted buff Nor., not Lees.

Owls Increasing in London.

In the course of a lecture delivered at the Royal Photographic Society's exhibition, now open in Suffolk Street, Haymarket, Mr. Oliver G. Pike said that the Brown Owl was on the increase in the North of London. On September evenings he had imitated their notes until presently a whole family of Owls came and perched on a branch above him.

Our Scheme.

In our last issue we said that we should have an announcement to make this week concerning our scheme to send singing Canaries to convalescent homes and war hospitals. In view of our Xmas Number next week, and pressure on space this, we have decided to hold this interesting item for inclusion in our special issue.

A Kingfisher's Violent End.

A singular incident is reported by a correspondent at Grange. When walking along the side of a brook near Carnforth he found the body of a Kingfisher wedged in the fork of an overhanging bush. The bird had evidently been in this position for some weeks, for only bones and feathers were left. He could find no trace of gunshot, and it was evident that the bird had dashed against a branch with such force as to pin itself in a fork. There is nothing unreasonable in this assumption, similar cases are on record, but usually the Kingfisher is one of the keenest-eyed of birds.

Tall Story of U.S.A. Canary.

A reader of CAGE BIRDS living in the United States of America sends us the following cutting from the "New York Herald":—"The entire staff of the Bronx Zoological Gardens has been invited to attend the Palace Theatre next week to witness the performance of the Mystic Bird, a Canary which sings like Caruso any tune selected by the audience, and which mimics any other singing bird. To show that there is no deception, the marvellous bird is carried through the auditorium in its cage and sings any number asked for directly to the person making the request. In a private trial yesterday the Canary warbled Cæsar Franck's "Beatitudes."

White Swallow in Suffolk.

On the afternoon of Aug. 30, at Earl Soham, Suffolk, I and one of the villagers witnessed the first appearance of a white Swallow from the nest. It flew around for a little, closely followed by others of the normal hue, who seemed to wonder at it, and then perched on a telegraph wire, so that we had a clear view of it. It soon took another and more confident flight, and its fellows became more accustomed to it. I begged that it might not be shot, and I hope it may have a long life. It would be interesting to see if it returns to Soham next year.—Randall Davies in "The Field." White Swallows are not so rare as some people imagine. Every summer from some parts of the country some are heard of, and they are invariably young birds. Two or three cases have been noted in which an entire brood was white.

Age of the House Sparrow.

It is curious that in the case of so common a bird as the House Sparrow no one seems able to state, even approximately, its duration of life. This, at least, has been my experience on asking several friends of my acquaintance, some of them good naturalists. It may therefore be well to place on record the fact that a lady who brought up a young Sparrow from the nest kept it as a cage-bird for ten years, when it died of old age. She described it as "affectionate, fearless, and intelligent, and singing a bright little song," redeeming qualities in a bird that few people have a good word for. Of course it does not follow that it would have lived so long in a state of nature, and the greater age which birds attain in captivity is doubtless due to the treatment they receive, shelter, a constant supply of food, and protection from enemies and from accidents.—J. E. H., "The Field."

A Feast for Bird Lovers this Week-end in London.

WE are pleased to be able to inform our readers that the Horticultural Hall Show has finished with a splendid entry of close on 2,100 birds. Further, the quality is excellent, so that visitors to the fine hall in Vincent Square, Westminster, will find a feast of birdie beauty awaiting them.

The hall is very accessible, being close to Victoria Station, consequently within easy reach by the Underground Railway system and the motor-bus and tram routes. The show is open to-day (Friday) from 10 to 10, admission 1s., and to-morrow (Saturday) from 10 to 5, 1s., and 5 to 7, 6d., closing at the latter hour.

The show manager, Mr. J. Tysou, asks us to say that all birds will be sent away from the show early on Monday morning, and not on Saturday or Sunday night, for the railways then are almost sure to be claimed for use by the military authorities, and consequently the risk of delay in transit would be too great.

Some indication of the rarity and beauty of the "living jewels" to be seen at this show was afforded by the notice in our last issue—Humming Birds (Thursday and Friday only); Birds of Paradise and other desirable aliens—and we hear that there will also be a white Magpie and a white Jackdaw, while a Pallas Great Grey Shrike should interest the British bird lovers (a first appearance, this, we believe).

We trust there will be a great attendance. All the profits, remember, go to the funds of the British Red Cross Society.

Clearing Rats from an Outdoor Aviary.

SIR,—Having tried in vain all kinds of traps and poisons to exterminate those pests, rats, from my outdoor aviary, I appeal to readers of CAGE BIRDS to favour me with advice.

Who Bred the First Yorkshire Canary?

SIR,—We had an argument on the Yorkshire Canary last week, as to who was the first man to breed the Yorkshire. Most of the fanciers present said it was Mr. Jonas Knight. I myself told them to ask CAGE BIRDS. Can any reader answer this question for us?

F. BIRD.

This Season's Great Scottish National Show.

SIR,—The Scottish National Show will not this year be held in the Corn Exchange, where so many notable gatherings have taken place, as this has been taken over by the Authorities. We have secured the Grindlay Street Hall, equally as good as the above—large, well-lighted, and very comfortable for exhibitors. Novices will be well provided for (10 classes given). Prize-money 30s. per class; prize cards free. Foreign bird exhibitors should note that Miss Peddie Waddell will be at her post again. Owing to so many shows being abandoned, names and addresses of exhibitors will be scarcer, so I would urge fanciers to apply to me for schedules, ready Dec. 10. Whatever surplus is left over after meeting all expenditure will go to the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund.

J. R. MEIKLE.

22, Brougham St., Edinburgh.

The Recent Halifax O.S. Show.

SIR,—The officials and members of the above Society desire me to thank all those (151) exhibitors who so wholeheartedly supported our 25th annual open show, and helped to make it such a success. The Norwich section was particularly good, a show in itself, and cannot be surpassed even by the Palace Show. The society this year have had to work under tremendous pressure, seeing that they were purposely opposed by that combination of societies known as the Bradford National Show, and advertised in your list of guaranteed shows in your issue of Oct. 17 to take place on Dec. 4 and 5, but moved up for the above purpose (opposition). But we are happy to say that success was achieved, and that we are all the more proud of the result, also that we were congratulated by exhibitors from a distance who were present. We shall endeavour in the future to put up still better shows. All birds were dispatched by 7.30, and the room was cleared by 8.30. All prize-money which was not paid out at the show was dispatched on Sunday night. Anyone not receiving it, should kindly inform me at once.

HARRY CLEGG, Hon. Sec.

The Harvest of the Birds.

Nature's Fruits that Tide Birds Over Autumn and Winter.

SIR,—I was keenly interested in a short article I read the other day, in the "Westminster Gazette," about the berries, etc., which Nature provides for the birds, and hope you will reproduce it, as the facts it deals with may be new to many of my fellow-fanciers.

"This question of bountiful harvests affects closely a host of creatures who are even more dependent on Nature's bounties than we human beings: creatures that have not the power of assisting Nature's efforts, but who, for their winter fare, entirely rely on Nature's charity. There are some that anticipate the lean months by collecting stores, but the larger number subsist on what they can gather from day to day. Those are the creatures that suffer most when the berry crops of the woodlands and the hedgerows fail, for they either have to face starvation or are obliged to lead a nomadic life in constant search of food, and are sometimes forced to leave our shores for more favourable climes. With regard to the winter movements of our birds one may generally put them down to the question of food supply.

"The prospects for the coming winter for these little dwellers of the woodlands and hedgerows are extremely bright, for everywhere there is an abundance of berries on nearly every fruiting tree. It seems an economic provision of Nature that the more perishable berries, such as the blackberry, the whortleberry, the elderberry, the cranberry, and others, should be apparently more palatable to these small creatures than the harder ones that form the more staple winter diet. For while these softer berries last until well into late autumn the birds especially are not tempted to attack their winter provender. On the moorlands the Missel Thrushes are gathered into flocks feeding on the little purple fruit of the bilberry or whortleberry; later on, when winter tightens her grip, these same flocks will be taking toll of the red berries of the holly, may, mountain-ash, and wild briars. Even the black ivy berries will not come amiss. And these berries of the winter they will have to share with great hordes of newcomers from further north, the Fieldfares, the Redwings, and their own kind.

"Here in the West-country there surely never has been such profusion of small fruit—acorns, walnuts, beech-nuts, and chestnuts carpet the ground beneath the respective trees that grow in plenty here. The range of the smaller vegetarian mammals being somewhat restricted, those that do not enter into a state of torpidity, like the dormouse, must gather in their winter stores like the squirrels, and there is now a veritable wealth of food, more than is wanted. What is left over will do for the large birds, who live according to the needs of the day—the Wood Pigeons, Jays, Magpies, Rooks, and their kind. For the smaller birds—the Finches, the Thrushes, and Buntings—there is also a plentiful store in hand, for the woodlands are gay with the bright scarlet masses of the mountain-ash berries, and the holly-trees are thickly clustered with spikes of fruit just beginning to turn colour. The hedge-rows, too, are bright with the waxen fruit of the wild briar and the duller red of the hips and haws of the may trees and bushes. None of these harder berries have been touched yet by the birds, although they are quite ripe, and one can only surmise that this fare is looked upon as a last resource when the pinch comes. The mountain-ash fruit will probably be the first to be touched by the Missel Thrushes."

AN OLD ADMIRER OF "C.B."

The Borrowing and Lending of Birds.

SIR,—At the Chester-le-Street, Birtley, and Pelton Fell (Amalgamated) Show, there was a lot of talk about men showing birds belonging to other fanciers, who were not members of any of the above societies. I think it is very unfair of any fancier to lend birds to take a few shillings of prize-money that members have put together out of their own pockets, or gathered in the district. I would like the members to look at the rules of the three societies.

JAMES STANGER.

Doncaster Show to be Held in Two Portions.

SIR,—At a meeting of the Doncaster and Dis. C.B.S. it was decided to run our annual open show as usual; but owing to being unable to get a large hall, we decided to split the show into two sections, one for Canaries on Dec. 19, and one for British birds, Mules and Foreign birds, on the original date, Jan. 9. So you will see that we do not intend to be classed with the faint-hearted ones. The classes will stand as arranged for Dec. 19—Yorks, Champion 11, Novice 4, Norwich, 7 Champion, Novice 4, and 2 Selling. We hope fanciers will rally round and give us a bumping entry on both dates.

The charming little Redpoll-Greenfinch Hybrid which secured 1st prize at Tonbridge Show for Mr. W. Bennett, of Bearsted.

The "Palace Show of the North."

SIR,—At the "Palace Show of the North" it is Business as Usual, the Gateshead C.B.S. having decided to run an open show on Saturday, Dec. 19. We hope fanciers in the North will give us their fullest patronage. We are giving a liberal classification (53 classes) and a specialist judge for each section. We have secured the patronage of the following specialist clubs:—Northern Norwich, Northern Crest, Northern Yorkshire, Northern Borders, and Northern British, Mule and Foreign Bird Club. Schedules will be posted to last year's exhibitors; others by sending a postcard will have one sent them as soon as ready.

A Well-known Canary Fancier Helps Belgian Refugees.

Risks Limb and Life Daily to Feed their Pets.

SIR,—It may interest your readers to hear what that well-known Lancashire Canary fancier, Inspector F. J. Green, has been doing for unfortunate Belgian Refugees driven out of their country by this cruel war. On Oct. 22, 1800 Belgian Refugees, men, women and children, landed at Lowestoft, being brought over by some forty Ostend fishing boats. Many of these poor people brought their pets with them, including 38 dogs, a number of small birds, rabbits, fowls, etc. Lowestoft being a naval base, these Refugees were sent to London and other inland towns, together with the crews of the boats, leaving their pets behind. Fortunately Inspector F. J. Green was on the spot, and daily for nearly a month went out in a small boat and took food and drink to these poor animals and birds, a task involving the greatest personal danger to life and limb, climbing up on the various boats in all weathers. He has been successful in finding good homes for many of the animals, and some of the dogs are placed in quarantine for their owners. The rabbits and fowls were offered on Tuesday, Nov. 16, for sale, Inspector Green also giving one of his Canaries, which realised 21s. The whole of the money was handed over to the Belgian Consul to send to the fund to help the orphans of Belgian soldiers killed in the war. So you will see, as Mr. John Tyson mentions in last week's CAGE BIRDS, there are fanciers who have a soft place in their hearts for both their suffering fellow creatures and their dumb friends. I attach a cutting from this day's "Lowestoft Journal," giving a report of the sale.

AN OLD FANCIER.

The Proposed Welsh National C.B.S. Show.

SIR,—There will be a meeting on Saturday, Dec. 5, at 6 p.m. sharp, at the Law Courts Hotel, Cardiff, to draw up rules, etc., and to decide whether it will be advisable to hold the first show this season or not. I shall be pleased to hear from all secretaries and any fancier interested in this matter.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

The Master Singer of the Canary Tribe

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to Keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

THE judge now looks at the steward and has three of the birds removed, leaving the fourth on the table. Why leave one? Because the judge in his wisdom assumes that the bird can, or should, as it claims a position in his judging table, sing more tours than he has heard. So this bird is left. Others come and go, until the daylight is beginning to fail.

There are no birds singing at present, so the table is moved, artificial light is resorted to, the room blinds are dropped. The judge takes up a position again with his back to the light, which illuminates the whole of the cages on the table. In this artificial light the judging proceeds, and you will now understand why I advised you to train your birds to sing in both daylight and artificial light.

You probably noticed that the judge had laid his watch on the table. He utilises the watch to give a shy singing bird a set time in the judging room. Glance at the sheet and you will see marked in the remarks column: "No song after one hour." That conveys to you that he gave the bird a full hour's attention, ready to take the value of its song, yet the bird did not sing. It may have been that the bird had not been trained to sing in strange surroundings, or with a person sitting so close to its cage; it may be that the bird was sulking; further, it may have been a little unwell.

The judging is over, the points are added, the penalty points (if there should be any) are deducted from the total, and the proper number the bird is entitled to is placed in the last square immediately in front of the remarks column. The show secretary has now entered the room bearing a sheaf of papers; these are the entry forms on which the secretary entered the number of each cage label. The judge picks out the largest number of points, calls the bird's cage number, the owner's name is given by the secretary, and the name—let us trust, reader, your name—is placed opposite to the number of the bird gaining the largest number of points, and so on until all the prize-winners have been selected in order of merit. Usually a small label is placed on the cage corresponding with the award the bird has won.

If you visit the show the secretary will hand you your prize cards—that is, if you are entitled to them, and in many instances also the prize-money. Otherwise, prize-cards are usually placed into the exhibition case, and forwarded along with the birds, prize-money following by post.

A Novel Judging System.

This judging system is the one followed by all our judges, but one that I tried at the Burslem Society's Club, because it was a new society and each member was desirous—or so I believed—to learn every tour his birds sang, gave every satisfaction. I have several sheets of paper for the purpose. On each one there is room to take the value of about twelve birds' song. I select one sheet and number, say, from 1 to 12. When a bird is singing I place the points on this paper, abbreviating the names of the tours thus: Hollow Roll, "H.R."; Hollow Bell, "H.B."; and so on, rapidly writing the two letters and placing the number of points after them, without removing my eyes off the bird that is singing. This is a specimen of the paper after the bird had been judged:—

H.R. 5, H.B. 2, S 3 / F 2, W.G. 3 / W.R. 2 / B.T. 2, B.R. 1, G.E. 3.

The downward lines mean that the bird broke off singing at the schockel. Commencing again, it sang the Flutes and Water Glucko; stopped again at the Water Glucke, then gave a Water Roll, and finally sang the Bell Tour and Bell Roll; "G.E." signifies general effect.

The benefits of this system are that the judge does not have to rely on memory for what tours have been sung and their value, neither does he have to recollect the number of times the bird broke the sequence of its different song-tones, which is, or I contend it should be, taken into account in summing up the value of the song to award the points for G.E. Those downward strokes are evidence.

I do not pretend to say that even this method is infallible, yet it is less liable to err than the old system. Another advantage is that in the event of two birds being so near to an equal value in song points that it is difficult to separate the points even for the G.E., a glance at the paper shows the number of times the bird broke the sequence of its song; if one broke its song only once and was worthy of, say, five points for G.E., and the other bird broke the succession twice, then this latter bird surely is only worthy of four points, and credit is given where credit is due by putting the first bird over the second by the margin of one point—that in the G.E.

It may be wondered how prizes are awarded where two birds gain an equal number of points. Should two birds make a tie under two judges, say, for some competition, then a re-sing has to take place, but in the event of a tie under one judge, should one of the birds have sung some faulty tour, then the other bird is the winner. In the event of a tie where no faulty tours have been sung and the birds have been judged by only one judge, there are at present two methods in vogue. Judge A. gives preference to the bird with the largest number of points for the general effect, while Judge B. will give the prize to that bird which sings the largest number of tours on the lower scale, which means any or all excepting Bell Tour and Bell Roll.

Competition in "Any Other Variety" Classes.

Sir,—With reference to a letter under the above heading, signed by J. C. Wilmot, I think there must be a misunderstanding, as I was the owner of the 2nd prize bird in the A.O.V. class at Northampton show, and it was a dark Goldie Mule. I agree with Mr. Wilmot as to the unfairness of Crests and Mules competing together, but I think he might have made sure of the genuineness of his complaint before giving publicity to the matter, as such things tend to do shows harm, and exhibitors owe (at the present time) much to the societies who are holding shows.

A Treat in Store for the Bird-lovers of Liverpool.

Sir,—At the next meeting of the Wallacey and Dis. C.B.S. on Thursday, Dec. 3, at 8 p.m., at the Fairhaven Institute, Sea View Road, Mr. G. Barker, the well-known botanist and British bird fancier and exhibitor will give a lecture on "British Birds in their Natural Conditions, and a study of their habits." The committee of the society extend a hearty invitation to all fanciers and their friends to hear this interesting lecture, and hope that they, and especially the novices, will avail themselves of it.

SCOTT BENSON.

Will the Border Fancy Outstrip the Norwich?

Sir,—All Border Fancy men will echo Mr. Plank's words in last week's issue in taking exception to the remarks of Mr. Cobb about our "Wee Gem." True, he was only quoting someone else, which fact only makes his observations all the worse. Can it be that ten minutes is too long for Mr. C. to spend on his own favourite? Must he talk about the bird that is beginning to get as popular down South as it is in the North? His remarks about the selling value of the Norwich are new to me. It is the first time I have heard even a Norwich man say their birds can beat either a Yorkshire or a Border for song. Still, one lives and learns. I agree with Mr. Plank that such talk as Mr. Cobb's is unfair to a would-be beginner. Let us be fair one to another. I should think but little of any Border man who would give vent to his feelings re any other kind of bird in similar vein.

HARRY C. HUMPHRIES.

Presentation to Newton Grange Secretary, and Additions to Open Show Schedule.

Sir,—The members of the Newton Grange C.B.S. met in the Dean Hall to take farewell of Mr. Wm. Bryson, late sec., who is now serving his country in the ranks of the 8th Royal Scots. Mr. A. M. Gardiner presided, and in name of the society presented Mr. Bryson with a beautiful writing desk as a farewell gift. Mr. Gardiner said he trusted that Mr. Bryson would long be spared to use the desk, and he believed that the gift would always be treasured by the recipient and would ultimately become an heirloom in his family. Mr. Bryson, in returning thanks, said he had endeavoured at all times to do his best, and he hoped it would not be long before he returned to the birds and fanciers again to use the desk for the good of the society. The classification for the open show, Dec. 19, was gone through, and it was decided, notwithstanding the present crisis, to add four more classes, viz., unflighted buff cock, non-fed hen, green Border hen, and Cinnamon cock or hen, making a total of 49 classes, and it is to be hoped that all will rally round our show and make it a success. Before the meeting closed, the health of Mr. Bryson was enthusiastically pledged.

The Starling's Altered Character.

Sir,—I see that the "Farmers' Gazette" has been publishing evidence to "take away the character" of the Starling. Examinations were made of one hundred and seven Starlings. The staple food of the Starling is evidently insect matter, and throughout the year they destroy large numbers of destructive larvæ, beetles, and weevils. During autumn cereal food is also taken. In September, 1911, twenty birds were sent from the district of Cruden with a request for information as to the amount of grain found in their crops. In every bird grain was found, and in ten of them husks of grain proved to be the principal food, but in the remainder insect matter predominated. In no case was the food entirely vegetable. In the beginning of February 1912, a number of Starlings were shot during a snowstorm, and in almost every case the bulk of the food consisted of grain and seeds of weeds. The grain was in fragments, but the weed seeds showed little or no trace of digestion. Since 1896 these birds have increased in number enormously, and this increase is probably due to the migration to our coasts of the continental Starling. As a natural result the feeding habits have changed to a certain extent, and the verdict of one observer that this "is a bird rather to be fostered than destroyed, as he is a benefactor rather than a foe to the farmer," must now be modified. The Shows.

EDINBURGH.

Sixty-first show of the Edinburgh O.S., Buccleuch Parish Halls, Nov. 21. Entries totalled 250, about the same as last year, and quality was well maintained. The blue ribbon of the show was won by Mr. G. G. Campbell, with a stylish buff foul cock; the runner-up was the veteran Mr. J. McLennan's cl. yell. hen. Through the hall being in semi-darkness, owing to the action of the authorities, no doubt some previous winners had to take a back seat. The show was well managed by an excellent committee. In Mr. R. Lill the society possess an official who is the right man for the post, and he had everything in apple-pie order. The judges were Mr. G. Park, Govan, Mr. Wm. Thornton, Blackhall, Mr. J. A. Stewart, Glasgow, and Mr. J. Carson, Easthouses. The show was visited by all the leading Scotch Fancy breeders from far and near, and many were the handshakes among the veterans on meeting once again at this old-established fixture. Among those present we noticed Ballie Robinson, Troon, Mr. J. D. Brown, East Kilbride, and many others of Scotch Fancy fame.

GLASGOW C.B.A. REWARDED BY A RECORD ENTRY.

A record show, both in numbers and quality, was held Nov. 20 and 21, in Union Halls, West Nile St., when a splendid muster of exhibits (about 1,200) gathered to do battle. The management were jubilant at the success attained, and who will gainsay they deserved it, since they are all men and fanciers who have striven hard to gain a secure footing for their fixture, and the well earned respect and support of the exhibiting fraternity. Notable was the fact that this was a show of exceptional quality all round, especially so in the Canary sections. Yorkshires here are improving by leaps and bounds; the most of the plums, however, in the section were captured by our friends South of the Tweed. British, as a whole, were good, but in one or two of the classes quality was scarcely of the best. Mr. McLaren won silver challenge goblet for best in hall, with his lovely crest. The challenge shield fell once more to the members of the Glasgow and West, while the rosehol was won by the Partick and Dis. C.B.C. The hall, which was secured as a last resort, in the management's anxious endeavour to hold the show, did not prove adequate to the needs of such a magnificent gathering of fanciers and their pets, but the most of the space at their command was made to ensure the comfort of all concerned. The birds were staged on four tier shelving right round the walls of the square building, with an additional double row up the centre. Mr. J. F. Park, the president, one of the most popular of city enthusiasts, is ever courteous and obliging, and the right man in the right place, while vice-presidents, Mr. E. Taylor and Mr. John McLeay, Messrs. D. F. Webster, assist. sec.; Wm. Hutchison, sec.; Wm. Gunion, treas., backed up by a most enthusiastic working committee, saw that everything was done for the safety and well-being of the birds. The judges, Messrs. A. Chalmers, for Crests; A. Sloan, Plainheads; G. Hislop, Borders; R. Heggie, Yorks.; R. V. Raine and Jas. Gentleman, Brit. and For., were ably attended by Messrs. Taylor, Sinclair, Craig, Barron, E. Taylor, Priest, Fraser, Wyllie, Houston, Watson, Swan, Martin, and Maxwell, and their work proceeded like the working of a clock, and was accomplished in good time, to the general satisfaction of all. Sales were numerous and the prices good. Mr. Edwards' young green Crestred hen was much admired, and we believe Kirkintilloch (in the person of Mr. John McLeay), was in Glasgow annexing, for we are told he secured this choice specimen at a good round sum; we wish him luck with his plucky purchase.

The Norwich and the Crests.

Norwich were the best we have seen for some time, the unflighted classes being particularly strong, and competition was of the keenest; many very fine birds had to stand cardless. The non-feds seemed as though fanciers had withheld their best birds for these classes; all were well up to the standard of perfection in size, type, and quality. S.P.C. medal was won by Mr. M. Smith with a yell. varieg. ck., a bird of the right stamp, great size and subs. for a yell. Mr. A. Sloan (Glasgow) judged.

YELL. CK. (14): 1, Naismith, great size, fine head, lovely qual. of feather, hot col., nice cond., could do with more subs., claimed at catalogue price, £2 12s. 6d.; 2, Scobbie, equal size, better subs., excellent qual., scarcely so rich in col., still we liked for 1st; 3, Crawford, rare type, qual. col. and cond., well laid wings and tail, good stamp; 4, Mitchell, fine round head, deep front, cobby shape, grand qual.; 5, Martin; 6, Maxwell; 7, Taylor; 8, Hirst. BUFF (17): 1, Martin, right good one, rare head and cheeks, grand, deep chest, lovely qual. of feather, neatly carried flights and tail, fine salmon tint of col.; 2, Harper, close up, good size, fine cobby shaped body, well mealed, nice short feather, in grand order; 3, Chalmers, mkd. head, good size, col. and qual., fine head, flights and tail, behind in subs.; 4, 5, Devoxy, two of the right type, good heads, size and qual.; 6, Colley; 7, Allison; 8, Sanders. VAR. YELL. CK. (3): 1, 2, sp., S.P.C. medal, Smith, head and saddle mkd., fine head, neck and rare deep front, excellent qual., rich col., neatly cut away behind, wins well; 2, Taylor, fine size, col. and qual., good head, but some thought lucky to beat 3, Barron, better subs., fine deep front, rare short coupled bird, rich col. and qual., and fine cond.; 4, Stewart, nice size, good qual. col. and cond., fine head; 5, Gardner; 6, Jeffrey; 7, Burt; 8, Collie. BUFF (19): 1, Martin, grand size, subs., and qual., fine short coupled bird, lovely col., best of wings, stylish exhibit; 2, Kennedy, trifle longer in body, still, of good size, lovely qual., col. and cond., fine head and wing car.; 3, Kerr, grand size, fine head and neck, lovely qual., nicely frosted, Al cond., could do with more breadth; 4, Bell, equal size and qual., fine short wings and tail, neatly cut away behind, just falls head; 5, Collie; 6, Simpson; 7, Crawford; 8, Paling. The Border Fancies.

Borders were a wonderful collection, and a record for this society. Entries were more than double last year's. The splendid classification was fully taken advantage of, and the birds averaged about 20 per cent. giving this progressive body of officials every encouragement, which they richly deserve. Quality was a leading feature, and competition was very keen. The B.P.C.C. medal was won by G. Bennet, with a gem of yell. ck., about perfect in all points; he also secured the Motherwell cup over Yorks., and British, a very creditable performance.

YELL. CK. (20): 1, 4, sp., Bennet, beauty, and no mistake, typical in every way, rich, even col., line, close, short, silky feather, perfect wings and tail, nice easy car., wins; 2, Wilson, rich qual., col. and cond., best of wing car., and staged to perfection; 3, Broadfoot, excellent qual., col. and cond., well braced wings and tail, free uoiver; 4, Findlay, nice one, very fine feather and col., could be better staged; 5, Nairn; 6, Purvis; 7, McCreadie; 8, Fraser. HAYLE.

Second Annual Show, Parochial Hall, Nov. 23. The room is well adapted for a show, plenty of light and free from draught. The birds were well staged in three tiers at just the right height. Norwich came up well, the cream of the fancy being staged. Yorks. were below the average, but still some good birds put in their appearance. The A.O.V. class was splendid, the winning Crest being a champion. We cannot speak too highly of the Committee, who did everything for the comfort of the exhibitors and exhibitors. The Hon. Sec., Mr. A. T. Coombe, is the right man in the right place, a smile and cheerful word for all. Mr. C. H. Toy (Truro) judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

Bradford Fanciers Hold Another Splendid Charity Show.

The Bradford National Show is the only established fixture in the country that is run with a charitable object. This it is which has given it a position and influence of the most unique character in past years. In this year of war its distinctive character has been lost, for the majority of our shows have been run for the benefit of one or other of the big charitable funds that the great war has brought into being. Thus the executive had their chief claim for support removed. At the time, too, when the arrangements had to be made, it was impossible to foresee how the war would affect the Fancy. The Committee courageously decided to carry on, but economy was entered upon, and wisely so, because it seemed impossible to expect great outside support.

The Fancy responded nobly, however, and on Saturday last 606 exhibits faced the judges in 48 classes. When one remembers that another show which was being held within ten miles attracted over 500 exhibits it can readily be seen that had the fixture been held as of yore on an open date it would again have proved "a winner." It was a success now, a success which reflects great credit upon the fanciers of Bradford and district, nearly the whole of the exhibits coming from the immediate neighbourhood. So heartily did the men of Bradford stand by the show that at Halifax there were only three exhibitors, and twelve exhibits from Worstedopolis. "Charity begins at home." Six-hundred odd entries is a result of which the executive may well be proud.

The Men in Charge.

Who were the men who, like our lads in France, fought against great odds and conquered? At their head stood Mr. H. H. Towers—like good old Bobs, a little man with a big heart, and a great sense of duty. We missed some of the old stalwarts—Horatio Hill, H. Simonett, and Fred Hammond. But they found worthy successors in Mr. S. Midgley, who filled the important role of secretary, and his three splendid assistants Messrs. H. Grange, F. P. Terry, and E. H. Wetherill, whilst Mr. G. White looked after the finances. This quintet played their part well. As in past years the work was well split up amongst the committee, who each undertook certain duties and were responsible for their efficient fulfilment. Railway—Messrs. J. Holroyd, E. Neeson, E. Butterfield, G. A. Bennett, G. Sneed, H. Clayton, W. Ellis, and J. Dickinson. Staging and Judging—Messrs. E. Cowgill, J. Greaves, W. Crowther, H. Long, F. P. Terry, J. Holroyd, and F. Grange. Door—F. Hill, E. Butterfield, A. Bennett, H. Clayton, J. Dickinson, and W. E. Wetherill, whilst the construction and fixing of the staging was superintended by Mr. W. H. Whitham. They may be congratulated upon the success of their labours, and upon the true British spirit in which they attacked them.

Amongst the Exhibits.

Over 530 of the exhibits were Yorkshire Canaries, so that it was essentially a Yorkshire show, and a wonderfully fine show too. The cup for best Yorks. was won by Mr. L. Dykes with his noted unevenly-mkd. yellow, which was in the pink of condition and made a rare good winner. Mr. Dykes had a good day out, as he also scored five 1sts, three 2nds, three 3rds, one 4th, and the special for most points in any one class. Messrs. Ogdon Bros. were the runners-up for the best bird cup with an unflinching buff, a gem, quite the best which has been seen out this season. The four young bird classes were indeed splendid. By the way, those who argue that the present-day Yorkshire winners are too big and stout had their contention endorsed to the hilt at this show. Many of the open class winners were not only longer, but also stouter than the birds in the two stock classes. Some very typical high quality birds were to be seen in the cinnamon-mkd. section, but greens made a moderate show, apart from Mr. Metcalfe's team. That gentleman supplied a dozen out of the thirty birds staged.

The Opening Ceremony.

The Lord Mayor had been announced to open the show, but he was prevented by official duties, whilst Mr. G. H. Pauling, who was to have taken the chair, has obeyed the call of his King and Country, and is off to the front. In their absence, Mr. John Emsley, who has ever been a consistent supporter of the Bradford National Show, took the chair, whilst Mrs. Emsley performed the opening ceremony. In his remarks Mr. Emsley referred to the noble work in which the committee were engaged. We could not keep England strong unless we looked after the children—the men and women of to-morrow.

Mrs. Emsley, in declaring the show open, expressed the pleasure it gave her to be present to help on the good work, and hoped the show would be a success. Mr. Wetherill proposed, and Mr. Midgley seconded, a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Emsley, and this was supported by Mr. Gill, the secretary of the Bradford Cinderella Club, who expressed the thanks of his committee for the assistance which the fanciers of Bradford had given to their charity. He commended their work, and trusted it would continue to prosper.

We hear later from Mr. Midgley that Mr. Oldham's dark Mule was protested against as being in the wrong class, and was disqualified. The general opinion in the show seemed to be that it was a Linnet-Canary. Mr. Mundell, the judge, however, held that it was a Linnet-Twite. All the other winners were moved up. The winner of the guinea special for most points by an exhibitor residing out of Yorkshire, was Mr. J. W. Metcalfe, with his team of Greens. All prize money was paid during the evening to those exhibitors attending the show. The show closed at 7, and all the birds were packed and got away, and the room cleared by 8 p.m., the long-distance birds being sent off first.

Mr. P. Mason's Classes.

YORKS. CL., ETC., BUFF (10): 1, Ogdon Bros., long raking bird, capital head, back and shoulders, stands well up, fine silky feather, grand tail, shade heavy in wings; 2, Thomas, plenty of length, but not so typical, more subs., close in feather, rare legs, wings and tail; 3, Drake, bold and swaggering, rare shape and style, well up on legs, close in feather; 4, Self, smart, stylish, and shapely, good nerve, hardly so tight in feather, good wings and tail; vhc, Dyson; he, Kirk; c, Dykes. TKD. BUFF (11): 1, Beaumont, cheek mkd., fine close feather, neat head, good neck and shoulders, nice level back, well braced wings and tail, gets well hold of perch, shows like a soldier; 2, Dykes, faintly tkd. neck, neater and slimmer in build, lovely silky feather, grand shaped head, well tapered body, finely finished all through; 3, Pomfret, tkd. head, capital shape and style, very nicely drawn, gets well up on legs; 4, Crawhall, grizzled head, long straight head, good wings and tail, bit on the strong side;

vhc, Ogdon Bros.; he, T. Bennett; c, Lunn. BUFF HEN (18): 1, Hill, fine head, lovely feather, almost perfection in wing and tail carr., handles well and shows for all she is worth, shapely but quite stout enough; 2, Towers, long raking head, grand feather, hardly so fine in head, rare style, wings and tail, also stout enough; 3, Clegg, much finer drawn, better tapered in body, fine head, wings and tail, not quite so tight in front; 4, Crawhall, smart and shapely, capital legs, neat wings and tail, not over clean, and possibly this kept her back; vhc, Whitely; he, Crabtree; c, Ogdon Bros. UNFLIG. BUFF (22): 1, res, best in show, Ogdon, a gem, and no mistake, fine shapely head, long well filled neck, closely set shoulders, tightly braced wings and tail, tight as a Java, plenty of style and knows how to show it; 2, Beaumont, eye tkd., plenty of length, more subs., well carried wings and tail, well up on leg, not so nicely rounded in head; 3, Dykes, wealth of col., neat head, shiu, well tapered body, plenty of leg, grand carr., not so tight in front; 4, Shackleton, another tkd., rubbed hard against the Ramsden tin, shapely, good length, but would not stand; vhc, Peel; he, J. Taylor; c, Farrar. UNFLIG. BUFF HEN (17): 1, Ogdon Bros., long stylish head, plenty of leg and uses it well, neat head, good back and shoulders, capital wings and tail; 2, 3, Dykes, wonderful feather, grand wing carr., but inclined to spread tail, and this caused her to go down, we heard, very nicely finished body, 3rd much neater and finer drawn, but hardly the length, lovely silky feather, splendidly piped tail; 4, Greenwood, rare pos., and feather, well braced wings and tail, on the stout side; vhc, Priestley; he, Gill; c, P. Hirst. STOCK BIRD, £3 LIMIT (7): 1, Ellis, fine racy yell., good head and neck, rare wings and tail, but much smaller than some of the open winners; 2, Greenwood, shapely, fine feathered, stylish buff, stout in body; 3, Butterfield, long raking buff, plenty of leg, good wings and tail, bit open in front; 4, Reed, smart, shapely, well feathered, stylish yell.; vhc, Farrar; he, Watts; c, Sunderland. VAR. IEG. BUFF (9): 1, Dykes, young eye, neck and wing mkd., grand head, neck and shoulders, beautiful wings and tail, grandly feathered and rare shape, but not quite the length nor the style of his father, which won in the yell. class; 2, Thomas, very hot eye, cheek and wing mkd., good top end, plenty of style, nicely feathered, hardly so fine in waist; 3, Bennett, eye and wing mkd., a bird we liked well, full of good Yorks. properties and knows how to show them, well made and well finished; 4, Hall, very hot eye and wing mkd., beautifully feathered, very stylish and showy, hardly so much length; vhc, Whitley; he, Crawhall; c, Morrison. VARIEG. BUFF HEN (8): 1, Towers, mkd. head, chest and wings, nicely modelled and clothed and has plenty of style, neat wings and tail; 2, Darlington Bros., a real clipper, mkd. eye, wing and vent, wonderfully built, and clothed with a coat of the finest silk, very compact wings and tail, we liked immensely; 3, Sheard, eye and wing mkd., nice top end, good legs, wings and tail, plenty of style, not so neat in waist; 4, Lingard, eye, cheek and wing mkd., very shapely, good wings and tail, grand feather, nice pair of legs, but shy and wild when handled; vhc, Morrison; he, Brown; c, Dykes. CINN. MKD. BUFF (10): 1, c, Atkinson and Firth, head, eye and wing mkd., plenty of length, good legs, wings and tail, bit open in front; 2, Towers, wing mkd., very smart and stylish, grandly modelled, well braced wings and tail, well up on perch, nicely finished, hard lines; 3, Cooper, eye, cheek and wing mkd., long and stylish bird, grand wings and tail, very shapely, well feathered, we liked immensely; 4, vhc, Morrison, hardly the length, but rare col. and feather, capital wings and tail, mkd. on neck and wing; he, T. Bennett. CINN. MKD. BUFF HEN (7): 1, Dykes, very heavily mkd., fine for shape, style and feather, neat head, close fitting shoulders, tightly braced wings and tail; 2, Thomas, eye, cheek, and wing mkd., hardly so slim, but grand style and feather, carries more col.; 3, vhc, Morrison, mkd. eye, shoulder and wings, nice shape and feather, good length, nice wings and tail, not quite so steady; 4, c, Towers, head, eye and wing mkd., a sweet stylish bird that we liked much, grandly modelled, full of qual.; he, Casey. BUFF (7): 1, 4, Handley, shapely body, good style, capital wings and tail carr., sound col., rather heavy in head, 4th foul on back of head, nice shape, style and feather, hardly so green in col.; 2, he, Skilling, bold and stylish, nice col., hardly so fine and silky in feather; 3, vhc, c, Metcalfe, very rich grassy col., fine silky feather, very typical and full of style, we liked as well as any. BUFF HEN (6): 1, 2, 3, Metcalfe, a clean sweep with a splendid trio of smart, racy, typical birds excelling in feather and col., 1st the best in col., 2nd the most shapely, 3rd lost in her wing carriage; 4, Skilling; vhc, Handley; he, Abbott.

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

HEN ROLLER ILL (Mrs. A. M. G.).—I am inclined to think that the condition is due to an abnormal and inflammatory condition of the ovary...

HOLLER GETTING BARE (Mrs. G. T. G.).—These cases are often most unresponsive to treatment, and as your bird's case seems to be of some standing...

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Balfour's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aeraries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free, from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

found exterminate them, as you will have seen advised frequently in these replies. Keep it in a comfortable temperature, fairly equable, and see that it is free from direct cold draughts or the fumes of burning lights in the evenings. Allow bird to bathe freely if it will do so. For staple diet give a mixture of three parts canary seed to one part summer rape. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle and broken greats, and on two other days give a morsel of bread and milk, lightly dusted with flour of sulphur, and finally sprinkled with soft sugar. On the day following that on which you give bread and milk each time add to the water as much chlorate of potash as will cover a sixpence and ten drops of lemon juice. Continue this treatment for one or two months as may seem necessary.

SCALY LEGS (Amateur).—I certainly do not advise you to immerse the legs of the young bird in paraffin. This fluid often has a very destructive effect upon the skin of birds. If the trouble is really scaly legs such as affects the denizens of the poultry yard, you can get rid of it by soaking the legs in a warm solution of Wych Hazel—a teaspoonful of the extract in a saucerful of warm water—a few times with an interval of three or four days between each time, then carefully dry the legs and gently rub a little sulphur ointment well in between the scales. Keep cage floor and perches as clean as possible, to prevent possible re-infection from these sources.

STUCK IN MOULT (Neil Hunter).—As you might have seen many times in these columns, I am no advocate of forcing a bird into a moult as long as it keeps in good health and condition. It is doubtful whether your bird will now complete its moult in any case before spring. Also your feeding is evidently at fault. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of summer rape and a morsel of banana every second day, and on the alternate days twice each week give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, millet, black rape, niger, teazle and broken greats. Every second day for the next fortnight give a piece of bread and milk the size of a hazel nut lightly dusted with flour of sulphur and finally sprinkled with soft sugar. On the days following those on which you give the bread and milk add to the drinking water 20 drops of whisky, five of syrup of saffron and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece. Keep bird in a fairly comfortable temperature, free from direct cold draughts, fumes of burning lights in the evenings, or extreme and rapid fluctuations. If the bird does not finish its moult under this treatment my advice is to wait patiently until the spring for it to take place naturally.

OPINION OF MATINGS (J. M. C.).—It did not come within the scheme of "Canary Breeding, etc." to deal with mating for the production of particular markings or colour. What you want for this purpose is Parts 14 and 15 of "Our Canaries." Possibly the Nutshell booklet, No. 23, on the Border Fancy, which our Manager would send you for 2d. post free, would also be helpful to you. As regards the matings you suggest you do not say whether they consist entirely of the birds you have bred, which would, of course, be closely related, and it would be essential to know something of the parentage of the birds mated before one could say with the least certainty what the result would be. It is only possible to generalise in the absence of such information, and on this basis mating No. 1, assuming the buff green cock has no cinnamon blood in his veins, the result to be looked for from the yellow cinnamon hen is greens, self and broken, and heavily variegated, and from the clear yellow hen green variegated and ticked, with possibly a few stray clear. The mating No. 2 should produce, assuming the hens are free from cinnamon blood, from the buff green hen cinnamons, self and heavily variegated, which would all be hens, and green and green variegated, which would be both cocks and hens. A similar result may be expected from the buff variegated hen, except that the proportion of selfs may be smaller. I am not clear as to the identity of the remaining hen you mention. If it is one of the young yellow cinnamons you bred yourself mate it with a boldly faced clear buff cinnamon cock. But if my assumption is not correct write again, and give full particulars about it.

AVIARY AND NIGHT-LIGHT (Novice).—(1) If the aviary is situated in a fairly sheltered spot, and is free from damp and extremes of heat and cold there is no reason whatever why the birds, which have been bred and reared there should not thrive well enough through the winter without the aid of any artificial heat, therefore I do not advise you to supply any. In all probability they will do much better without any heat. (2) There is no necessity to take a light into the room after dark to enable the birds to feed later than the natural light allows at this season. They have so little to do all day except eat that the long fast from dusk to dawn will not harm them at all.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BRITISH BIRDS IN BACKYARD (M.S.).—There is no reason whatever why your birds should not do where you have them: It is simply a question of keeping them well supplied with seed, and attending to their water supply during frosty weather. Birds very much dislike rough winds, but you appear to have thought about that. Your blind should cover the cages sufficiently to prevent draughts, which are fatal to the hardiest.

TREATING FRESHLY-CAUGHT FINCHES (New Member).—If you have room you should select the best birds and keep them separate, as they are rather inclined to be quarrelsome. Supply a pot of cracked hemp, also teazle, niger, maw, linseed, and canary. Crack a few sunflower seeds and supply daily. Soak a little rape and teazle, and give occasionally or daily if they are not doing particularly well, or when first caught, but gradually work them on to dry seeds. You should also supply wild seeds. If you have not collected any, buy a packet of the best you can get; see that it is genuine wild seed, not an ordinary bird seed mixture. After you have had them a few days, and they begin to eat freely of seeds, give them as much sulphate of soda as will cover a shilling, dissolved in an ordinary drinker. Repeat this occasionally. Supply plenty of sharp sand, and keep quiet for the first week or two. DEFORMED BEAK (W. Lennox).—If the deformed beak does not interfere with his feeding, you have nothing to worry about, but the overgrown portion should be parted off either with a sharp knife or scissors. In doing so be careful not to cut it back too far, or you will cause the bird pain. You can do nothing to repair the injury; it is a malformation sometimes met with in wild specimens. In fact, I occasionally see a Blackbird in my garden with a beak similar to what you describe.

FEEDING A BUNTING (A. H. Lodge).—The Yellow Bunting makes a very good cage bird, and it is not by any means a difficult one to manage. You could keep one in your kitchen providing you hang it in a position free from draughts and away from the heat of the fire or gas. To get it steady you must handle the cage as often as possible, and the fact of its being constantly near someone will soon get it tame. Canary seed is its chief food, and it does not care very much for anything else, but at the same time it should be offered other seeds such as a little wild seed mixture, cracked hemp, rape, maw, small oats or coarse oatmeal. In a separate pot try him with a few soaked ants' eggs, and if he will eat them, he should have some pretty frequently. Insect life should be supplied according to season, much of which can be collected from one's own garden. (2) As a rule any of the Finches can be kept together. Put your birds in a fairly large cage and if you keep them well supplied with seeds they will not quarrel. If you let their seed hopper become empty there will be sure to be a scrap when it is re-filled. Should this occur the best plan is to throw a little seed in the bottom of the cage. Glad you find the Nutshell books so useful.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Harebills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aeraries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnets," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

TROUBLE WITH LARK (Saline).—Your name and address should have been sent with your query; kindly let us have it on a P.C. The information you send me about your Lark is very meagre; you should have specified the conditions under which you are keeping it, and the feeding, in both of which I fear there is something wrong. To begin with, put him in a thoroughly clean cage, one that has been scrubbed out with disinfectant and properly dried. Examine the bird, and if he has any insects on him dust him all over with insect powder, being careful that none gets into his eyes. In future give him enough sand for him to dust in, and lightly spray him with tepid water occasionally. Respecting food you should either make your own or feed upon the best make of Lark food obtainable, this should be mixed with a little scraped raw carrot, boiled potato or chopped watercress, and he should also have a few extra ants' eggs, and any insect life you can get. A little chopped hard-boiled egg is good for a change, also a few greats and a little canary or maw seed. Give as much gnatbait salts as will cover a sixpence for one day, dissolve in his drinking water. Just smear the bare places with a little fresh lard. Send to this office for the Nutshell Booklet on the Skylark. It will give you a lot of valuable information, price 2d. post free.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

FOREIGN AND BRITISH (Miss E. Smith).—(1) You must repeat your British query next week to our British Bird Expert, Mr. H. Norman. Note: Queries relating to different subjects should be on separate sheets of paper (see rules), and your full address should be given. (2) It all depends on the construction of the aviary. In an outside aviary containing a roomy, well-lighted, weatherproof shelter, you could keep together such as Zebra, Ribbon, Bib, Diamond, Alario, Spice, and Red-headed Finches, Avadavats, Silverbills, Bengalese, and Java Sparrows, Grey, and Green Singing Finches, Bronze, Magpie, Black-headed and White-headed Mannikins, way is to let the cage stand a week at least after the stain is dry—the stain may be said to be quite hard when it does not stain a piece of white rug rubbed over it.

GENERAL. Answered by THE EDITOR.

F. Bird.—We cannot answer; note correspondence columns this week.

Belgium.—If the schedule distinctly states that certain classes are for old birds, then, of course, young birds must not be entered therein. If "old birds" are not distinctly specified, then young birds can be entered amongst the old birds as well as in the unlighted classes.

Anti-Grumbler.—Publication of your reflections on the bona-fides of the judge would land both yourself and ourselves into an action for libel. If you could prove your allegation that friends of the judge entered under false names birds that were known to him, why did you not lodge a protest with the officials of the show? You would have to prove your charges just the same, or pay up damages, if you were taken into a court of law for libel—possibly this did not occur to you.

H. Kay.—Birds that appear in England regularly, would not be dealt with in "Foreign Birds for Beginners." Very tiny "greenish-yellow" birds are the Chiff Chaff, the Willow Warbler and the Wood Warbler. The Yellow Wagtail also is not large (its long tail, ceaselessly "wagging," infallibly identifies it), while both Blue and Great Tits have a more-or-less yellowish appearance. A local naturalist would be the likeliest person to tell you the names of the birds; unless you can amplify your description we cannot help you further.

MADAGASCAR LOVEBIRDS (Alice M. Cock).—It is dangerous to give indoor birds green food that is likely to be tainted with frost. Your better plan would be to sow canary seed in small pots or pans; it will grow in any sunny window, and supply this when it is about two inches high. Also you can give frame-lettuce, but cut out the thick mid stem before supplying to the birds. Cutthbone and grit should be continually in the cage, and you could supply a millet spray once a week to them, it would keep them occupied picking out the seeds. The smell of eroseot will not harm them, providing they are not put into it till it is quite dry—a good Gold-breasted, Grey, and Orange-cheek Waxbills. With these would agree Siskin, Redpoll, Twite, Linnets, Goldfinch (often a bully), Greenfinch, and Bullfinch. The number must depend entirely on your accommodation; to overcrowd is to court failure. (3) The same species would apply to an indoor as to outdoor aviary, but there are others you could add, which are looked upon as needing some protection, especially in the North, viz., Gouldian, Long-tailed, Rufous-tailed, Grassfinches, Violet-eared Waxbills, Lavender Finches, Cordon Bleu, Firefinches, etc. I have assumed you want seed-eaters. ADVERTISEMENT CHARGES.

6d. for the first eighteen words. One Halfpenny for each word over eighteen. Name and address to be reckoned. MINIMUM, 18 words 6d.

IMPORTANT NOTE.—Two or more Advertisements coming from the same advertiser, even if sent in different names, are reckoned together, and, after the first eighteen words, are charged at two words a penny. No single advertisement, even if accompanied by others, will be charged at less than the minimum price, viz., Sixpence.

The rate for displayed advertisements is 7/6 per inch. Rates for a series on application.

ADVERTISEMENTS UNACCOMPANIED BY CORRECT REMITTANCE WILL NOT BE INSERTED. Postal Orders must be sent as far as possible. All moneys should be made payable to F. CARL. The Proprietor reserves the right to refuse any advertisement, or to cancel any advertisement ordered for a series, at any time, without assigning any reason for so doing.

Advertisements must in all cases bear the bona-fide name and address of the advertiser, and no advertisement will be inserted if addressed to a receiving office, or similar place of call.

Small prepaid advertisements of a general nature and not connected in any way with the Cage Bird Trade are inserted at the rate of 1d. per word throughout. Minimum 12 words 6d.

Advertisements close Tuesdays first post in each week, and should be sent to the advertisement Manager, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London. Terms for Display Advertisements on application.

REPEATING ADVERTISEMENTS.

Owing to the number of announcements received we cannot guarantee to repeat advertisements unless the previous issue, Page and Column are stated by the advertiser.

NOTICE TO BIRD PURCHASERS.

It is advisable that all newly-purchased birds, especially foreign birds, be kept isolated from established stock for a week or ten days, until by their condition they establish the fact that they are thoroughly healthy.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers in all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing its receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

How Did You Fare at the Show ?

Are you downhearted because you came no nearer to producing a Prize Bird at this Year's Big Show than at former Shows? Or did you send in one of the "not quite" Prizes?

It is more annoying to show one of the "not quite" winners than to fail outright. If you had had accurate and reliable information, written by Experts in Canary Breeding, and had been guided by its teaching, your "not quite" Prize Bird would have been a Winner.

If you mean to breed a Prize Winner for next year's Big Show, GET

CANARIES, HYBRIDS, AND BRITISH BIRDS

Written by well-known Fanciers in every Department.

Complete in One Compact Volume, with Reliable Coloured Plates.

It Teaches the Fancier and is the Exhibitor's SURE GUIDE TO SUCCESS

On approval, for seven days' Free Examination at Home

Read What Buyers Say :

Mr. Bryant, Acton, London:—
"Best work on this subject I have ever seen."

Mr. Ralph Harrison, Whitloy Bay:—
"The book to make breeding a success—complete in every department."

Mr. H. Hancock, Burslem:—
"I think the book a great help and well worth the money."

Mr. Lenyon, Clydach, Rhondda Valley:—
"I have no hesitation in recommending it as essential to young breeders. Without doubt the most complete work of its kind."

TO EVERY IMMEDIATE PURCHASER AN EXPENSIVE Anatomical Model IS GIVEN WITHOUT EXTRA CHARGE. Fill in the Form and POST AT ONCE.

Hundreds of Enthusiastic Letters :

Mr. McLinden, Dublin:—
"It commends itself to the past master in bird keeping, and is invaluable to the amateur, for it is written in such simple language. The chapters on Rearing and Pairing are very explicit, and the coloured plates are, to my mind, simply superb."

Mrs. Bertram, Christchurch, Hants:—
"I have found it of the greatest use, while the illustrations are of value to the novice and the expert alike. The section dealing with Hybrids is especially commendable, and should prove of service to fanciers."

Get it Free. Read it at Leisure. Judge for yourself whether it will help you.

We do not ask you to buy this grand GUIDE TO SUCCESSFUL CANARY BREEDING on the strength of what those who have bought it and who are now using the work say about it. We ask you to accept our special Christmas Offer of FREE Approval. To send for the book for a week's FREE TRIAL, to use it and test the value of its information for seven full days.

If at the end of that time you wish to keep the book, you need only send a First Payment of ONE SHILLING, and you may pay the balance by a few monthly sums beginning after the Christmas Holidays are well over.

But if you decide that the book will not be useful to you, all you need do is to send it back to us at our expense without having spent a penny piece.

YOU WILL NEVER WIN WITHOUT KNOWLEDGE

This FREE APPROVAL COUPON will bring the book to you FOR A WEEK'S TRIAL without charge or obligation.

To the WAVERLEY BOOK CO., LTD., 7, 8 & 9, Old Bailey, London, E.C.

STRAY PARS

From the Horticultural Hall Show.

A Case for Sympathy.

A few cases of exhibits were not delivered by certain of the railway companies until somewhat late on the Thursday morning, but the classes the birds were in were held back, and we believe that except in one or two instances all got judged. The chief sufferer was Mr. F. J. Evans, of Hindhead, whose Dartford Warblers did not turn up until late in the day, and one of them was found to be dead. Everyone sympathised with Mr. Evans. One of the survivors, by the way, was claimed at catalogue price, £3.

A Batch of Blue Budgerigars.

An acquaintance we made at the show told us of a keeper of Budgerigars residing in Wolverhampton who from one pair of the rare Blue variety had this season bred 17 young, all true to the blue colour. What luck!

Previous Performances.

Most interesting happenings at these big shows are the reversals of previous performances of exhibits. Young fanciers in particular forget that birds (like themselves) are not always "fit." One buttonholed us at least once each day to explain why such a bird was put in front of another, seeing that the other had beaten it at —, etc., etc. Surely it is fortunate the same birds do not always win; it at least gives everybody a sporting chance.

Had a Grand Time.

Perhaps the bird which enjoyed itself most of all at the show was the hen Bramble Finch who managed to squeeze through the waterhole of her cage. She had a grand time flying round; plenty to eat and drink, and the fun of dodging her would-be catchers. She did not give half a chance to some of them. But the evergreen smiling Bob Pretty fairly took her in. Perhaps she thought that no danger could possibly lurk in the owner of that smile!

Early Closing.

The language used by the Parrots at closing time on the Saturday was something shocking; it was even worse than that of the visitors who had dropped in expecting to be able to stay until ten. The Parrots could not be pacified, but the humans wandered to the far end of the hall and sought the usual consolation of those who find time hanging on their hands. Well, seven o'clock does seem early, doesn't it?

A Novel Suggestion.

We met several fanciers hunting for Norwich stock birds at reasonable prices, but such as they required were not to be found. The good ones had been quickly snapped up. One disappointed amateur we met suggested that only amateur and novice fanciers should be allowed to purchase out of the stock classes on the first day of the show. His argument was, that they cannot trust their judgment and make up their minds so quickly as the older fanciers.

Two of the Best.

We heard that the yellow hen which won the special for best Border in the show was quickly claimed by a novice lover of the "wee gems." Everybody was delighted at Messrs. Burton Bros.' success, for they are both keen fanciers. One is now at the front in the trenches with the Queen's Westminsters. The other is busy with both lots of stock to attend to, and yet he can find time to act as bon. sec. for no less than three societies!

What's in a Name?

A said-to-be "Pallas' Great Grey Shrike" was exhibited. Presumably the judge, Mr. Silver, accepted it as an ordinary Great Grey, or it must have been marked "wrong class" for if as labelled its proper place would have been the class for Continental species. But what is a "Pallas' Great Grey Shrike"? We seem to remember reading that as long ago as 1886 Professor Collett (in the "Ibis") said that the ordinary Great Grey Shrike and Pallas' G.G.S. were to be found in one and the same nest—i.e., that birds exhibiting the slight variation in plumage marking said to be peculiar to the Pallas' were found in the same brood as birds marked in the manner of the Great Grey. In any case, if a distinction be accepted, the Pallas' G.G.S. cannot claim to be "very rare"; it is as common in Great Britain during many winters as is the Great Grey.

A Visitor from Belgium.

We had a most interesting chat with a visitor—a refugee—from Belgium, Mr. O. Maschelein, of Antwerp. He told a harrowing story of his flight from that ill-fated city on one of the last boats—a small coal boat with a crew of 10 men, then carrying nearly 300 people, mostly women and children. They had a stormy journey of close on three days, and were without provisions—the horror of it will be apparent. Mr. Maschelein is a breeder of the Belgian Canary. Only a very small band of breeders of this bird now remains, he told us. The Roller Canary has ousted it from popularity, while it is expensive, delicate, and not easy to breed—he thought of trying Border Fancies as feeders when next he had the opportunity. May it come soon. This Belgian fancier was highly pleased with his visit to the show, which he described as very wonderful.

How Pedigree May Tell.

The sensation of the Yorkshire section was the novice birds of Miss G. Bowyer, of Newmarket, who showed five, all unflighted, and won 4 first and 1 fifth prizes! And this, too, was her first attempt at exhibiting. The quality of her birds so impressed the champion exhibitors that £3 was offered for one of them, and £15 for two; both offers were declined. We heard from Mr. Crisp that the lady was the daughter of a friend, and that he presented her with the parents, a smallish, tight-feathered yellow hen and a big, rather ragged-feathered cock bird, the latter, however, being very closely related to his noted green-marked yellow cock, claimed at a very long figure at the last Palace Show, and now carrying all before it for Mr. L. Dykes. The astounding—and unexpected—result has been these four young birds, every one a first-class exhibition specimen! Who said face value was better than a pedigree? They were moulted and colour-fed outdoors in a shepherd's hut used as a lawn tennis pavilion!

The Sensational Hybrid.

The sensational hybrid of Mr. Parlett's, the very light plumaged said-to-be Canary-Bullfinch, attracted the usual attention and led to considerable "argy-bargy." Some good (or ought-to-be-good) judges hold that it shows far more characteristics of the Greenfinch-Bullfinch cross; and we must candidly admit that we are inclined to agree with them. One or two even suggested that it was a rare-feathered Bullfinch! Anyway, it is a bonny bird, and was in lovely condition.

Real Enthusiasm.

Several exhibitors made very big entries, but we think the palm goes to Mr. Allen Silver. To see him tying up his 56 cages of all sorts and sizes of birds, from Waxbills to Parrots, preparatory to popping them into the furniture van en route for home, was enough to make even the clerk of the weather's tears change into smiles. Mrs. Thyne, Mr. Frostick, Mr. Francis, Mr. Frost, Mr. Marley, and Mr. Maxwell also had very big loads to remove.

A Contrast.

It is pleasing to note how splendidly exhibitors stage their birds nowadays—specimens in the pink of condition put into show cages as spotless as enamel and "elbow grease" can make them. And the decorative effects obtained in many instances are extremely pretty and tasteful—notably in cages housing Wrens, Bearded Tits, and many other British, also Foreign, birds. In the class for Albino birds, however, was to be seen a great rarity in a dilapidated cage with cracked wood-work and broken wires, tied up in places with string and binding wire, dirty to a degree, and containing but one perch, and this too small for the comfort of its inmate—a deplorable example of how not to show a bird. What a grateful contrast were the cages of the Humming Birds, made lovely with orchids and sprays of foliage.

Oh! Those Printers.

In several cases exhibitors had entered a couple or more birds, and their owners' opinion of them, judging by the catalogue prices, did not always agree with that of the judge. We noticed several little groups deliberately selecting the birds and re-judging them. In a certain case the critics were certain the judge was right, and one sprinted to the office to buy the cheap-priced winner, only to find that the figures in the catalogue were a printer's error!

Birds of a Feather.

A tall man and a stout man were busy among the Yorkies. Bird after bird was selected, brought down to the second tier and discussed. After a time one appeared to suit the tall fancier nicely. He eagerly asked his friend's opinion. "Undoubtedly a nice one," the latter replied, "but he's very much like me—he's got too much waist!"

CHORLEY C.B.S.

SOUTH BIRMINGHAM O.S.

Young stock, Nov. 7, and a washing exhibition given Nov. 11 by Mr. G. Russell proved to be the best items yet given on the Society's winter programme. Over 60 birds were staged, and there was a splendid muster of members at the washing exhibition. Mr. Wells judged the young stock show, and gave every satisfaction. We should like to see more members showing; entries from only about 12 members out of 60, but so many are engaged in making war supplies that their time is never their own. Competition for the cups is keen, and the Christmas show on Dec. 26 should attract record entries. Mr. Roe has been engaged to judge. Champ.: Cowley 20, Burke 16, Swindon, Harding 9, Hughes, Bayliss 5, others 3. Nov.: Thompson 13, Barron 15, Proddy 5, others 2. Brit.: Mr. Raby 11 points; many of the British fanciers did not show, but are well in the running. Don't forget Dec. 26.

PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.S.

Annual meeting held at show, Nov. 29, Mr. Wareing presiding. The chairman said that he would not only be voicing the opinion of those present, but the rest of the members, in thanking the Fancy for the splendid support rendered in making the show a successful one. Correspondence was passed as read. A discussion ensued upon the new idea (in the Roller Fancy) of publishing in the show schedules the judges' names to their respective classes, but only two members were in favour of the proposed innovation. Mr. Wardleworth proposed a vote of confidence in the secretary, Mr. Percival, and Mr. Percival seconded the motion. Mr. Percival responded, and said he was very much touched at all the kind things that had been said regarding his services. He felt that he could not let the moment pass without paying a tribute to the services rendered to him during the past year by Messrs. Wareing, Massey, and Kilshaw. He also thanked those present for their valuable assistance at the show that day. Mr. J. Earnshaw was elected a member. A hearty vote of thanks to the chair brought the meeting to a close.—J. Tomlinson, for A. Percival.

LARKHALL G.B.A.

Annual social, Nov. 21, in Charing Cross Halls. Mr. Rundell presided over a large gathering of members and friends. After doing justice to an excellent tea provided by Mr. Haggerty they had a real treat in the musical part of the programme. The following artistes contributed: Miss Mary Craig, Miss Georgia Brown, Mrs. John Craig, and Messrs. Hystop, R. Semple, G. Pollock. Next was distributed the cups, specials and prize money won at show, followed by a presentation from members of club to Mr. and Mrs. Rundell, of a walking-stick and umbrella; Mr. James Kennedy made the presentation and asked Mr. and Mrs. Rundell to accept same as a slight appreciation of how the members value the services of Mr. Rundell as a president. Mr. Rundell suitably replied. Votes of thanks to the committee for arranging social so well, to the artistes for their kindness, and to chairman, who in his usual way had greatly helped to the enjoyment of the evening, were accorded. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

Meeting Y.M. Halls on Nov. 28, president in the chair. Decided to start the series of table shows Dec. 12, with 5 classes of Borders, judge, Mr. Tom Ritchie, Lesmahagow; yell. ck., yell. hen, buff ck., buff hen, gr. or cinnamon; judging at 6; points to count for Mr. Marley's special of 10s. cash. Mr. Rundell gave special of 2s. 6d. for most points over show.—Allan Thomson, sec.

JUST THE THING FOR XMAS PRESENTS.

No Better Books for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of Aviariums and Bird Rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/4.—By H. W. Battre (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Also lately the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon pairing, breeding, moulting, and successful exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. E. Colton, W. H. Vale, G. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kitch, J. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 232 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/6, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviariums and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateils is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/4.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moulit the birds to get the richest possible colour.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at especially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/6, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

At the show of the Glasgow C.B.A., Mr. McCloy won 3rd in A.O. Bunting or Finch, not Winter as reported.

I have sent, through Mr. W. T. Hill, seven Norwich Plainheads to the Otago (New Zealand) fanciers, writes Mr. W. N. Turner, of Hightown, Manchester.

We are looking forward to having a very successful show, as we are the only society to attempt to run an open show on the Tyne-side, writes Mr. W. Curry, hon. sec. Gateshead C.B.S.

I was very pleased indeed to see a sketch of my yellow Norwich hen, best bird in the show at Maidstone show, on the front page of CAGE BIRDS. It was a splendid portrait.—A. V. Lymt (Maidstone).

Schedules for Hamilton and Dist. "War Fund" show on Dec. 12 are out, and I appeal to the Fancy for a full measure of support, writes Mr. W. S. Wilson ("Glendyne," South Park Road, Hamilton). Any one omitted can have schedule on application.

Mr. G. M. Nelson, hon. sec. Warrington C.B.S., writes pointing out two errors in the schedules, many of which have gone out. The word unlighted should not appear in the titles of the first four Yorks Novice classes, and the special stated to be for most points in classes 34 to 36 should read classes 37 to 39.

I have just got fixed up for the hall, the Military having taken over the hall we had engaged, writes Mr. W. Clarkson, sec., Falkirk Good Intent C.B.O. The show will be held in Auction Mart Hall (close to Grahams Station) Dec. 12. Intending members please send on their dues along with the entries up till Dec. 8, no later.

Mr. J. Alderslade, sec. Eastleigh C.B.S., writes that all prize-money won at the show held Nov. 25-26 has been paid. Anyone who may have been overlooked should write Mr. Alderslade. We are glad to hear that sales and gate were good, and the show was a great success, a result which must be gratifying to the hard-working Committee, and the show managers, Messrs. G. Clark, assist. sec., and J. Alderslade, sec.

An Almost White Bullfinch.
I have bought this week a most attractive almost all-white Bullfinch, writes Mr. E. Tams (Longton). It was caught in North Staffordshire. Is it not very rare?

Belgians Like Their Canaries.
I have presented the Belgian Hospital at Trinity Hall, Sittingbourne, with two of my Canaries, writes Mr. H. A. Olive, and the soldiers are very pleased with them. I trust you are receiving a good supply of birds from our fellow-fanciers.

The Bradford National Show.
Owing to the accidental omission of a headline in our report of the above show, we regret to find that the name of Mr. R. Halliday did not appear as the judge of the four open novice Yorkshire classes and the three selling classes.

To Keepers of Poultry.
Readers of "C.B." who keep fowls should not miss the Grand Christmas Number of our sister paper THE POULTRY WORLD—on sale at all newsagents and bookstalls to-day, Dec. 4. This double number contains 40 pages and with every copy is given a Charming Coloured Plate of a group of fowls. Owing to the stoppage of eggs from the Continent for some time to come over £10,000,000 (the yearly value of Gt. Britain's egg imports) must be distributed amongst home-producers. This is the ideal time for readers of "C.B." to join in the Poultry Boom by taking up a pen of laying fowls.

WON'T YOU HELP OUR HOSPITAL CANARY SCHEME?

Note Our Front Page Drawing This Week.

BEFORE our next issue is published practically every one of the principal hospitals housing wounded soldiers and sailors will be in possession of a pet Canary and cage, provided by readers of CAGE BIRDS.

Our scheme has been heartily taken up by bird-lovers, and that their generosity is deeply appreciated by the recipients of the little songsters was impressively evidenced by the numerous extracts from letters printed by us a fortnight ago. Next week we shall publish a list of the hospitals which have accepted these gifts, and also the names of the donors of both the birds and the cages.

A three-months' (at least) supply of seed is being provided free by Messrs. Capern, Ltd., of Bristol; and of bird-sand by Messrs. Trower and Co., of London, N.

We think everyone will agree that the idea of brightening the period of convalescence of our gallant fighting-men by providing them with a sweet-voiced golden-plumaged cheerful little pet to look after and to consider as their own, is a happy notion. Soldiers and sailors are well known to be inveterate keepers of pets; and birds easily occupy first place in their affections. One can well understand, then, the pleasure the presence of a Canary will afford them in the hours of idleness enforced by their wounded condition.

We should like to cover the field more thoroughly than up to the present we have been able to do. There must still be many hospitals and, in particular, convalescent homes, of which we have not as yet heard. That these would also welcome a pet Canary is a foregone conclusion. And we intend to get into touch with them and make them the offer of one.

We need, however, more cages; and we want this week to appeal strongly to our readers to come forward and generously supply them.

Offers of birds have reached us in goodly number; we believe we have enough to meet all demands. But of singing cages in which to house them there is still an insufficiency.

We realise that there may not be many bird-lovers who have song-cages of the drawing-room type which they are able to dispense with. That they would like to help our scheme, however, we feel sure, and they can do so by making a donation towards the cost of purchase of one of the wanted cages.

We have received already several sums to be devoted to this purpose. This week the secretary of the Castleford and Dist. Linnet Club sends us 8s. 6d., collected from amongst the members of his organisation. We hope their generous action will be the fore-runner of many more by other societies.

Remember that a card inscribed with the names of the donors of bird and cage, etc., accompanies the gift. How well it would look, and what a source of gratification it would surely be to the members to have the name of their society on the said card as the giver of the cage in the local hospital—for, alas, there are few localities now without a war hospital! Well, a collection of even a humble copper from each of the members would bring this desirable state of affairs to pass. May we ask the kindly co-operation of officials of cage-bird societies in bringing the matter before the notice of members? A collecting box placed in the rooms where shows are being held would also, we feel sure, result in material assistance for this desirable scheme.

To bird-lovers who may desire to personally help in the obtaining of the cages, we may say that a sum of 4/6 will provide a very suitable and creditable one (obtained by us at net cost price). Any sums, of course, no matter how small, will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged. What better or more pleasing Xmas gift for a thoroughly deserving cause can you possibly provide? All sums should be sent to The Editor, CAGE BIRDS, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Business in the Colonies.

I have shipped to the Otago, New Zealand, fanciers (through Mr. W. T. Hill, late of Manchester) eight pairs of Norwich Greens, Yorkshires, and Lizards, also to Mr. Reed, Melbourne, Australia, Yorkshire Greens, Norwich, and Cinnamons, writes Mr. J. W. Metcalfe (Liverpool).

OBITUARY.

MR. R. G. JOLLIFFE (Glasgow).

The decease of Mr. R. G. Jolliffe, of Glasgow, has only recently come to our notice, although the sad happening occurred some months ago, the end coming, we understand, with distressing suddenness. The late Mr. Jolliffe was a fine figure of a man, with a hearty, genial, lovable disposition, and his passing leaves the Fancy distinctly the poorer, whilst our journal, CAGE BIRDS, has lost a staunch and much-esteemed representative. His memory will be treasured by a wide circle of fancier friends.

It is with sincere regret, writes Mr. J. Trengove, that I have to report the death of Mrs. Thomas Seed, of Fern House, Riehton. I feel sure that Mr. Seed's many friends in the Fancy will be sorry to hear of his great loss. Mrs. Seed died on Nov. 25, in her 28th year.

Pure Air and Bird Song.

Writing of the Thrush, in one of his books, Mr. O. G. Pike says: Birds are like human singers, their songs vary to a very great degree, and you will usually find that birds which live near the sea, or on the hills where the air is pure, have far finer and stronger songs than those of the woods and meadows far inland.

Doncaster's Altered Date

Will members of the Open Norwich Plainhead C.C., writes Mr. F. Rhodes, Hon. Sec., make special note of alteration of date for Doncaster C.B.S. Annual Show, from Jan. 9 to Dec. 19. Subs. are considerably overdue. Will members please forward same at an early date and oblige?

Mr. R. Garnett, Sec., Cinnamon Marked Y.C.C. also writes us to call the attention of members to the alteration of date, and asks members to be careful to mark their schedules according to rules, and make the club's remaining competition a success by making as many entries as possible.

Are Judges Consistent?

In connection with the Border Fancy section at Sale Show, we heard a story which is worth repeating. At Manchester Show Mr. Middleton had what is colloquially known as "a bad day out." Being anxious to know the kind of bird Mr. House favoured, he sent for the winning yellow green, liked it, and bought it. Then he set to work to pick out his team for Sale by selecting those nearest to the type of the Manchester winner. The result on Friday last was that he won first in a hot class with a Border of his own breeding, and was second with the Manchester bird! Here is a useful hint for some of those fanciers who argue about the consistency or otherwise of our judges.

A Gift to Fanciers.

When a crisis like the present comes upon us, when we have the least money to spare, we must be careful to spend it to the best advantage. Since last season the material used in "Kozy Karriers" has gone up in price 1 1/2d. per pound, making a difference of 6d. on each four-cage "Karrier," but owing to the great blow to our fellow-fanciers, caused by this war, we have decided to keep our prices as before. There is little doubt that next season, if not sooner, there will have to be an unavoidable advance. We therefore advise you to order your "Kozy Karrier" at once, and thus save on the first cost, and when in use your "Karrier" will save you on your railway charges. Write for a copy of our price list—W. Baron and Co., Ltd., Yorkshire Street Mill, Bacup.

"I could have sold the birds I advertised in CAGE BIRDS a dozen times over, and especially the Goldfinch. I had applications from England, Scotland and Wales. I thank all, as they were rather too many to reply to, except where a stamp was enclosed. This speaks well for your splendid paper—CAGE BIRDS."—W. O. JONES (Whittington, Salop.)

SOME FEATHERED EXQUISITES AT THE HORTICULTURAL HALL SHOW.

By WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

AMONG the many gorgeous exhibits staged at this exhibition, Mr. A. Ezra's Humming Birds stand pre-eminent; and his ability to keep them for so long a period, the Garnet-throated having been in captivity nearly nine months, and the Ricordi's nearly six, though the latter was apparently dead on arrival—is unique! Thus Mr. Ezra's feat stands out in the annals of aviculture, a science which is growing and extending by leaps and bounds in this country, and the extent of its triumphs in increasing annually.

At the same time, it would appear that the greatest difficulty lies in obtaining the birds, for Mr. Ezra states he gives them the same treatment, except for the extra heat (their cages being maintained as near 70 deg. Fahr. as possible), that he gives his Sun-birds. Nevertheless, one must pause to consider the thoughtful care, preparation, and accommodation provided for such presumably fragile and dainty creatures; and, in the thoroughness of these preparations, I opine, lies the secret of Mr. Ezra's success, combined with a strong admixture of common sense in meeting each new difficulty as it has arisen.

Cage and Incubator in One.

A glance at the cages was an example of this; these were elegant, tasteful, practical—constructed somewhat on the incubator principle, but with the heating chamber kept going with night-lights, from one to four, according to outside conditions. Mr. Ezra too has acted upon the certain fact that it is not the size of the bird, but its demeanour, that is the governing factor in cage space requirements—such feathered mites as these occupied two of the largest cages in the show, excluding perhaps some of the larger Parrots. They had space to hover in, to feed on the wing, and to indulge their natural characteristics to delighted spectators—features which mean a clean bill of health to the favoured ones. Such conditions as these, combined with untiring and thoughtful care, are the secrets of Mr. Ezra's success.

But they do not always live in cages, they have daily liberty in Mr. Ezra's bird room, where those privileged to watch them on the wing find their charm simply indescribable, and the beauty of their metallic garments beyond the power of pen to describe. I must, however, make an attempt, so that the birds depicted in Mr. Goodchild's drawing may appear before my reader's eyes, clad in all their living splendour.

Garnet-throated Carib (Eulampis jugularis).—Above, this is rich metallic-green; throat and breast garnet or ruby; remainder of underparts blackish—beak, contour, etc., will be best gathered from a reference to our plate. Ricordi's Humming-Bird (Sporadinis ricordi).—This dainty mite, which might almost be drowned in a thimble, is clad in various shades of metallic emerald-green—for other features see plate.

To the above I must add that the colours vary according to the angle at which the light plays upon the plumage, which glistens and glitters like the scales of a snake (this feature is well indicated by Mr. Goodchild in the sketches I saw at the show), and they run through every hue of the colours named. With such a description I must rest content, the English dictionary is barren indeed when one attempts to describe such exquisites.

One cannot describe their airy grace, sustained by almost invisible wings, as they hovered in front of the syrup cup, or grape, their slender tongues darting out and drawing in the sweets necessary for their sustenance. Nor were they much less charming as they sat on some fragile twig in sedate repose. A word as to their menu—the syrup consists of condensed milk, Mellin's food, and honey brought to a proper consistency with boiling water; grapes, and when obtainable, green-fly and other aphida.

The Pet Birds of the Royal Family.

Our Queen Has Quite an Aviary at Buckingham Palace.

FOR many years Mr. Dawson, of Lower Sloane Street, Chelsea, has been bird "doctor" to the Royal Family, almost every member of which has some feathered pet. These are regularly visited to have their claws cut and receive other little attentions. His Majesty, when Duke of York, brought home in the Ophir from Australia a Parrot named "Jooy," who was for many years a great pet.

He arrived in one of the native cages made of plaited grass, and his transfer to something gilded and more suitable was a business that required skill and some pluck. Later, when he broke his shoulder, Mr. Dawson had to attend daily at York House, where the operation of changing splints was watched with interest by the young princes.

Her Majesty the Queen has quite an aviary, many of the birds coming to her and when called by name. When their Majesties went to India their various feathered pets were (says the "Daily News") sent to board with Mr. Dawson, who proudly boasts that every one of them was returned in perfect health at the end of the visit.

Princess Patricia, on one of her voyages, had a Parrot presented to her by the sailors. She has become very much attached to him, and takes him wherever she goes. He has crossed to Canada several times.

"When their Royal Highnesses are at Clarence House," said Mr. Dawson, "I have to go regularly and cut his claws and attend to him; he is wonderfully tame and devoted to his mistress."

The Prince of Wales made a great pet of a Bullfinch for several years, but a short time ago Mr. Dawson received a note saying: "Mr. H. P. Hansell is desired by the Prince of Wales to inform Mr. Dawson that His Royal Highness is at present so seldom in the same place that it is hardly fair on the Bullfinch to attempt to keep it. The Prince of Wales desires Mr. Dawson to keep it for himself, as the bird will be much happier."

Certainly the Bullfinch looked very proud and happy as he sat puffing himself out—and looking down in scorn on a pair of Parakeets belonging to a mere member of the aristocracy, which had been sent to board with Mr. Dawson while their owner was away big-game hunting in Africa.

Mrs. Clarke, the housekeeper at Buckingham Palace, keeps an eye on all pets, ordering their food, etc., but their Majesties insist that Princess Mary and her brothers shall look after their own pets. Systematic neglect or forgetfulness has been known to result in the mysterious disappearance of a bird.

"If you do not care enough for him to see that he is properly fed and his cage kept clean, someone else must have him," the delinquent is told.

A last word must be said of the beautiful staging of these birds. We have already noted the cages, but a passing mention must be made of the delicate foliage, drooping gracefully around an orchid, partially screening the twigs upon and about which the birds disported, not unduly intruding, but forming a fitting setting for these dainty sprites, the whole making a unique picture of captive bird-life, the like of which bird lovers seldom have an opportunity to enjoy.

The Japanese Hawfinch.

What a contrast between this and the birds above described; here we have heavy build and a huge beak which almost seems to hide its head when viewed frontally; yet the bird is extremely handsome and beautiful, a sort of graceful robustness adding dignity and character to its contrasting and tastefully-hued garment, and huge yellow beak. While figuring a beautiful bird, our illustration of from the Black-tailed Hawfinch (often mis-named Japanese Hawfinch) this species, a pair of which were staged by Miss Smyth, has the ends of the flights white, and most of the wing feathers more or less tipped with white. Readers will also note the marked difference between it and the English species; the Japanese is more slenderly built, has a larger beak (pure yellow, whitish at its base) and but one white wing bar; its general plumage is more evenly coloured, and it also has a longer tail. These distinctions, and others less pronounced, will be apparent at once to all who care to take the trouble to make the comparison. As regards the bird staged by Mr. A. Silver, from which our illustration was drawn, its condition was perfect; altogether a bird to be proud of.

TRAINING CANARIES TO BE CLEVER SONGSTERS.

Extracts from an interesting article by I UH EVERETT in the "Girls Own Paper."

MY Golden darling is a graduate of a school of music—bird music, I mean. Let me tell you what he can do and where and how he was taught.

Hold your watch in your hand and try to sing one minute without taking a breath. You will find it difficult; but my pet will carry on for a full minute with perfect ease. He can sing part of a scale, and have every note true; and, what is more wonderful, when singing those scale notes he will change from the major to the minor key without any difficulty. My pet imitates the tone of bells exactly. He can sing the song of the Nightingale and mimic the running waters of the babbling brook.

There is no royal road to learning, and my pet's accomplishments were acquired by diligent application on his own part, and never-ending patience on that of his professor in music. "Pet" was hatched, brought up, and taught in one of the peasant districts on the Continent, where music, as an art, has reached perfection; where patience, as a virtue, discounts Job many times over.

Paul, the Professor.

One of the most interesting things I have seen in my travels is the peasant homes of these professional bird breeders and trainers. It is not a big business. There is little hope of ever becoming a billionaire at it; but the Continental peasant is a plodder. He is not an imaginative individual. He is industrious, and his desires are few, his necessities still fewer, and those who follow the business of breeding and training Canary birds give it their entire time, and are satisfied with the life and the money they make.

Let us say that each one of these peasant breeders will raise from two hundred to three hundred male birds in a season. I wish you could see the bird-trainers. Paul, the professor, wears a home-made head-covering that resembles a Turkish fez more than anything else in the hat or cap line. He has a round jacket; he has wide clumsy-looking pantaloons, and wooden shoes which he removes just inside the door, walking about the house in his socks or bare feet, according to the degree of cold.

The musical education of the male birds begins when they are six weeks old. Paul puts each bird into a box about ten inches long, with one small round hole in the centre of the front. Birdy gets barely enough light to enable him to find his seed and drinking cups.

Long rows of these box cages are placed, one on top of another, four or five deep, in a sound-proof room; for Paul wishes his pupils to hear only such things as they may imitate. Their music lessons are given every two hours.

At first the birds hear just flute notes. Next comes a scale, which is played softly and very slowly. Paul listens carefully; for some of the birds are bound to be deficient in the gift of imitating. With such as those it is idle to waste time. The chop-note is the natural song of the Canary; but Mr. Chop-note is immediately taken out and sold for any price he will bring.

As soon as the birds have mastered the flute tones Paul takes his violin, and while walking slowly along plays and listens to his pupils, that he may detect mistakes and correct them. During the time given to violin lessons the birds are not permitted to forget their flute notes. They get two or three turns at them each day.

The Human Voice Well Beat n

The trill is one of the most difficult things for the birds to master; yet in a few weeks Paul will have his birds trilling as no human voice can. Nor need these birds trill on one note. They change from one note to another, trilling all the while. My pet, in his trills, dwells on one note or more for such a length of time that I fairly hold my breath in amazed questioning as to how all that continuous music can come out of one little throat.

At whatever hour you switch on the electric light, "Pet" is ever ready to burst forth into song. If I am dull and worried, many things having gone wrong during the day, the songs of my yellow beauty seem to say, "Cheer up! You have health and me—many people have less!"

It was difficult to tame my pet, because, before I owned him, he had never been handled. By slow degrees he came to understand that I meant him no harm, and now he needs but one invitation to hop to my finger and let me thus carry him whithersoever I will. In that position he will go through his entire repertoire. When he gets to the end he expects his pay; which tin-bit consists of four hemp seeds.

HOW THE BIRDLING GOT HIS BREAKFAST.

THE WAR AND THE CAGE BIRD FANCY.

A Lecture by
given before the
C.B.S. on Nov. 9th.

THE effect of the war on the cage bird Fancy may to the person outside the realms of the "Fancy" seem a most insignificant matter, but to the bird-lover and fancier it is far different. When humanity gets to the end of its mortal tether, the sum total of its wealth consists not in the amount of money accumulated and spent, or left behind, but in the amount of happiness gained out of life; and only the fancier knows the happiness of hours spent in the company of his feathered friends. But this, it may be said, is only "sentiment."

Let us look again; this time from a material point of view. The war has robbed the "Fancy," and the trades allied to it, just as much as it has robbed any other trade. Open shows have been abandoned, and consequently the judges have lost fees; cage-makers have been robbed of orders for thousands of show cages, and this in its turn has affected the wire front makers and the manufacturers of cage wire. It has also prevented the fancier from exhibiting his birds, always with the chance of a profitable sale, and in turn traffic has been lost to the railway companies. It has increased the price of bird foods and upkeep generally, while at the same time it has decreased the value of the birds owing to "slump." To pile on the agony it has in some cases robbed the fancier of the work whereby he earns his daily bread, or his income has been reduced, and this may effectually prevent him holding his surplus stock over until more favourable times. The dealer in birds will suffer reduced sales, and will at the same time consider it only wise to be economical in his purchases. And thus all the way through the "Fancy" and the numerous trades in connection with it, depression is likely to be felt.

The Silver Lining.

Now let us cry "enough" to this tale of woe and endeavour to find the silver lining to the cloud. What can we do when peace is restored and we are happy in the resumption of normal conditions? Opportunities have been shown to us as fanciers, which we should be blind to ignore. Germany has been sending to this country probably well over 8,000 Canaries each year, and incidentally robbing British fanciers of a large and profitable trade; surely we can prevent a recurrence of this very serious leakage in our own business?

They have also been sending some 20,000 to America, and probably still further consignments to other countries. Now, if Germany can conduct this export business profitably, what on earth is to stop us from doing so? We ought, at any rate, to have a reasonable share of the profits accruing from an export trade which at present probably only represents to Great Britain about 6,000 birds per year sent out by our large dealers, and chiefly, I suppose, to British colonies.

A vital feature of this export trade would be the adequate collection and distribution of the birds. This would mean that a workable scheme would have to be evolved and adopted by our experts, who would systematise the methods and standardise the materials. To my mind (remembering always that I am a novice) this could best be done on the co-operative principle, and somewhat on the following lines.

Let a company be formed by share-holding cage bird societies, who shall invest in one or more £1 shares, carrying interest at five per cent., and who shall appoint a committee of management to take the responsibility of the collection of the birds at, say, two intervals at the end of the breeding season, from the shareholding societies who, in turn, would collect them from their own members, each charging a reasonable percentage for so doing.

A Capital of £100.

Let us say that out of the 500 or 600 cage bird societies in Great Britain, 50 societies having an average membership of 20 agree to take up the scheme, and each of these invests in two £1 shares in the central company, which is thus enabled to commence with a capital of £100 and immediately make investigations with regard to suitable markets, etc.

In due course it will notify the shareholding societies that it is prepared to receive and market the first consignment of birds. The local secretary notifies his members, who will deliver their birds to him on a given date, so that they may be despatched to the appointed post within a few hours, members supplying their birds in the travelling cages standardised, and possibly supplied at nominal charges by the central company.

So each of these 50 societies could consign on a given date to (say) Liverpool to the order of the central company probably about 150 birds, making in all a total export consignment of 7,500 birds. This looks a big lot, does it not? But it averages only 7½ birds per member, and I think you will agree that this average is reasonably low.

The percentage of charges payable by members per bird would be a detail for later arrangement. But taking the same average number of birds, let us suppose that members pay 2½ per cent. on the approximate nett market value of their birds, which we will place for easy calculation at 4s. per bird. Then each secretary receiving from his members 150 birds will also receive as fees 15s. to pay for preliminary packing and carriage to Liverpool, and also a small fee payable to the central company, say one per cent., which would give from the 50 societies a total fee of £15. Out of this the central company would pay final packing and loading expenses and also sea freight on the full consignment of birds.

Dividends for the Shareholders.

On completion of the sale of the birds, the net profit made by the central company would be subject to such financial charges as would be necessary to place the business on a sound basis, and the remainder would return as dividend to the shareholding societies, and through them to the original vendors of the birds in proportion to the value of the birds supplied, subject, of course, to any management disbursements locally.

This, of course, is only the rough principle, and my figures with regard to expenses and charges are only visionary. The matter would require much detail development by experienced business men and fanciers, but I think circumstances have made it sufficiently clear that the possibilities of the position are many and favourable. Fanciers have no doubt realised the attainments of various combinations of capital in other channels, and I feel sure that if this business was encouraged and developed in a proper and businesslike manner, much benefit would accrue to the Fancy.

The Pelican that Escaped

THE Pelican enclosure at the London Zoological Gardens, being situated in a slight depression in the ground and surrounded with trees, it has not been found necessary to pinion the birds, as it was thought to be practically impossible for them, even if they were capable of flight, to get enough to start off to enable them to rise clear of the trees. As a rule, we have cut a few feathers from one wing of each bird, and no more.

On rare occasions a bird of one of the smaller species has occasionally managed to fly, but has not been able to carry on for more than a few hundred yards. However, two months ago an Australian Pelican, which had not long arrived, was more successful. The keeper had apparently omitted to take the usual precaution of cutting a few feathers from one wing, and it is presumed that the bird, having managed to clear the fence of its enclosure, walked along the path leading to the terrace walk, from which it was able to get a clear start off.

At any rate, early one Sunday morning it was seen flying over the Gardens, and disappearing over Regent's Park. I felt sure that it would not have gone very far, as so heavy a bird which has not flown for some time usually soon gets out of breath, and is easily captured. However, all inquiries failed to reveal its whereabouts, and we could not hear of its having been seen by anybody, and the bird was eventually given up as lost.

Wherever had it Been?

It now appears that an Australian Pelican, without doubt the same bird, was shot the other day in Suffolk, and it would be very interesting to know where this bird can have been during its two months of freedom. The fact that so large and conspicuous a bird can escape detection for so long is very interesting. It may, of course, have been living on the sea, but even then one would have expected that so uncommon an object would have been detected and reported.—D. Seth-Smith, in "The Field."

OUR COLOURED PLATE.

Some Interesting Views of Sixty Years Ago on the "Turn-Crest" Canary.

THE coloured plate, "A Study of the Crested Canary," which accompanies this issue, is a reproduction of an oil-painting by Mr. H. Norman, and will, we venture to think, be voted one of the very best pieces of work yet accomplished by CAGE BIRDS' popular artist. It depicts, in addition to the clear bird, practically every stage of marking and colour found in this magnificent variety of Canary.

The acme of perfection is generally held to be the bird with a dark crest and a clear body, although in the estimation of many the bird which is evenly marked on the inner feathers of both wings ranks very little, if any, lower in the scale. The clear is, too, a most fascinating bird, though this and its "near relation" the grizzle crest, seem less often to possess the very high excellence of headpiece so often found in their dark crested brethren. Some of the best of their kind have been found amongst the variegated birds—specimens with wonderfully expansive and thickly built crests—and the same may be said of the self greens. Crested birds with cinnamon-coloured plumage are quite rarities—at least, on the show bench now-a-days. The silky quality of their plumage is fascinating, but they do not compare in size of crest with their green-marked fellows.

An Associate of "Low-bred Birds"!

In these days of Crests that fetch any sum from £10 to £50, and sometimes nearer £100, it is interesting to read the views of a writer on the Canary and its breeding (the Rev. F. Smith) taken from a book of his published some 60 years ago. This worthy bird-lover evidently held a very poor opinion of the "Turn-crown" of those days, and his views read very strangely in this year of grace. He says:—

There is yet another variety of our favourite songster which I must not omit to mention, or which, perhaps, more correctly speaking, may be found as it were by accident in most or all the kinds we have named, to wit, the Turncrest. With some people these are great favourites, more especially with the lower classes of bird fanciers for whom anything curious or novel appears to possess a great charm. Their peculiarity consists in having a crest of feathers on the top of the head, turned, as it were, the wrong way, and hanging down over the beak and eyes, something like an old-fashioned wool-mop, or, if the association be not too irreverent, like the crop of a Cistercian monk. In general, as might be expected from the above remarks, they will be found most plentiful amongst the common low-bred birds of the country districts, and associated with the greatest amount of ugliness in the outline of their figure.

If all such were to be exterminated by act of parliament, or a Canary jockey club, or any other power to-morrow, we hold it would be one of the greatest boons that could possibly be conferred on the Canary-loving community.

In breeding birds of this description, most people in order to obtain the greatest development of crest possible, would naturally select a male and female remarkable for the size and shape of this elegant appendage, and expect to see their offspring still more highly favoured in this respect than themselves. But experience teaches otherwise, and emphatically says that if we do this, the result will in all probability be in diametrical opposition to our wishes.

The Why and the Wherefore!

All writers, and every breeder I have spoken to on the subject, unanimously declare that if we pair two crested birds together, the majority of their offspring, so far from being more highly favoured than their parents, will absolutely be more or less deficient in this appendage so much desired, if their heads are not positively bald! Why this should be the case I cannot tell, nor could I ever obtain any satisfactory explanation of the matter, or, indeed, any reason at all beyond that it is so.

To obtain birds with fine crests, the practice is to select one parent only with this appendage, which signifies little, though for my part I should prefer it to be the hen, as we know from many careful experiments that have been made that it is the male that contributes for the most part the bones and what may be termed the locomotive organs, and the female the internal organs on which depend the skin, and, consequently, the feathers, which, of course, form the crest.

As in the human being, experience often shows that minds formed of the opposite attributes more forcibly attract each other than those which appear cast in the same mould, so we suppose a similar effect is produced in the bodily organism of our pets, and that in the case of our Turncrests the rule of contraries is more potent than the rule of harmonies. The greater the contrast the greater the fascination, and the more likelihood of success. In this respect, extremes shall meet, and a beauteous offspring of crested birds shall spring from a crested cock and smooth-headed hen, or from a crested hen and smooth-headed cock.

A WONDERFUL DISPLAY OF FEATHERED BEAUTY.

London's Great Show in Aid of a Noble Cause Attracts Britain's Best Birds.

EVERYTHING BRIGHT BUT THE WEATHER. THE "GATE" EXTINGUISHED BY THE RAIN. A GREAT ENTRY OF OVER 2,000 BIRDS.

A TRULY great show yet truly a great disappointment. This may sound paradoxical, nevertheless it is the only possible summation of the 26th International Show, held on Nov. 26, 27 and 28, in the Horticultural Hall.

If ever show deserved a brimming measure of success, assuredly 'twas this. It might fairly have advanced a claim upon the favour of the gods—to say nothing of mere mortals—for one of the objects of the exhibition was to donate all profits to the funds of the British Red Cross Society. No small amount of courage was called for to hold a fixture of such magnitude under the conditions prevailing at the present moment; unless everything proved propitious the possibility of monetary loss loomed unpleasantly in the background. Of mortals, the bird-loving fraternity played its part right well; but as for the gods—well, they just went copiously, practically the whole of the time! How it did rain, to be sure, poured on Thursday evening, fell steadily on Friday, and poured again on the Saturday, the "hissing touch," a sort of tropical cloudburst, being put on from 1 to 3 in the afternoon!

On top of this misfortune which meant the practical extinction of the "gate" and the chance of the show paying, it was found difficult to get much notice taken of the exhibition in the daily papers—their one and only acceptable topic is apparently the war—and this, of course, was the reverse of helpful in swelling the receipts for admission. A great pity, for it was an exhibition which deserved to draw half London, as the saying goes. We have never seen a better or more interesting collection of birds. The various sections are dealt with later, so we will content ourselves here with saying that the Foreign bird section itself was worth a long journey (and a wet one at that) to see—it was a sheer delight.

The Excellence of the Management.

The management of the show was admirable. Mr. John Tyson had been persuaded to step into the managerial shoes once again, and this led to the happiest possible results. He has forgotten more about shows and show management than the majority of us will ever have the opportunity of learning, and his experience ensured absolute smoothness of working. Although not in the best possible health, Mr. Tyson got through a tremendous amount of real hard labour—seemed here, there and everywhere, and to have every detail at his finger tips. The great success of the exhibition from the working side was a triumph for his powers of organisation. His son, Claude—a real "chip of the old block"—lent him very considerable assistance, and another invaluable and ungrudging worker was Mr. F. Knight. Mr. Knight was creditably associated with last year's show, and added to his laurels this—a more genial and capable helper would be difficult to discover. The much-respected president of the society, Mr. R. L. Crisp (recently christened, by the way, the "greatest bird fancier in the world") put everyone at their ease with his usual urbanity. His loss to the L.C.S.A. would be little short of a disaster, and we trust that the day is far distant when the cage bird fancy will lose its hold upon him, and the desire to put up a few pairs of birds will cease to exist.

Other workers who rendered most valuable service were Mr. and Mrs. Thynne, Miss Thynne, Miss Oliver, and Messrs. J. Bray (the popular hon. sec. of the L.C.S.A.), H. Smith, H. W. Cook, R. J. Pretty, T. L. Sayer, A. Wallington, G. Oliver, J. Franz, Paton, Penton, Wright (and son), A. Silver, Crust, and T. R. Trower. One or two visitors were also willing helpers, notably Messrs. D. A. S. Longden and S. J. Nicholas, of Swansea. The feeding of the exhibits was in very excellent hands. The Hon. Mrs. Bourke spent many hours amongst the insectivorous British birds, and hours of real hard work, too, whilst Mr. V. Wynn most ably looked after the fruit-eating and insectivorous Foreign birds, and Mrs. Thynne, the seed-eating species. The bulk of the remainder fell to the old campaigner, Mr. J. Dewhurst, and he, as ever, was unremitting in his attention to the wants of the birds. This quartette of enthusiasts well earned the gratitude of exhibitors.

The exhibits were very nicely staged, and the magnificent hall looked at its best. It is unquestionably an ideal building in which to hold a cage bird show, and a nice, even, healthy temperature was maintained the whole of the time. The local birds, and there was a rare lot of them, were packed with remarkable promptitude on the Saturday evening, and the remainder left early on the Monday morning.

The show was one which reflects the greatest credit on the three promoting societies, for the National British Bird and Mule Club and the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League this year shared the financial side with the London Cage Bird Association. If there be a loss—well, it is a splendid thing to be able to say that they at least refused to be daunted by circumstances, and held their show in the hope of helping along the hobby they love. The Fancy at large rallied round the plucky promoters right well. The entry of close on 2,000 birds, under the circumstances, magnificent, and had there been, as in previous years, a Roller Canary section, there is little doubt that all past records would have been easily left in the rear.

Some Bargains for Someone.

The funds of the Red Cross Society will still benefit, for certain donations were made towards them, and they take the proceeds of certain birds sold by tender. The committee, further, have remaining other birds generously left to be sold. These include a Norwich cock Canary, a Song Thrush, a cock Blue-winged Lovo Bird, pair of Orange-cheeked Waxbills, and pair of Bengalese. The highest bid takes them. Send your offers, readers, to Mr. Tyson (169, Sloane Street, London, S.W.), and help on the good work. All are really splendid birds.

The sales office, owing, no doubt, largely to the depleted attendance, had a comparatively slack time, having to be content with less than half the sum which usually flows into its coffers—a sum of, as far as we could roughly calculate, from £90 to £100. We did not hear of any birds changing hands at high prices, but sales at sums of £1 to £4 were numerous. We understand that £15 was offered for two Yorkshires in the novice section, and this was declined.

We were sorry to discover that not a single white Canary was on view. What has become of exhibitors of this new and really beautiful variety? It was pleasant to see a few London Fancies, even though the birds were very far removed from the ideal that once obtained of this glory of hygone days.

What was the "best" bird in the show? We heard some interesting speculation indulged in concerning this. What a lucky thing (for them) the judges were not called on to decide the point! The two Humming Birds were rightly enough the outstanding and sensational birds, the admiration of everyone.

Could You Have Found the Pea?

The Crested Canaries were a grand lot, of wonderful excellence all round; but we heard a well-known breeder and judge say that Mr. Crawshaw's young yellow Norwich Plainhead was absolutely the model come to life—if so, what of Mr. Houghton's yellow, which won the diploma? While yet another noted fancier averred that Mr. H. H. Tower's young cinnamon-marked yellow was the finest Yorkshire ever seen—better than Jim Bailey's York cinnamon-mark of some seasons ago. Who could have picked the pea out of this little lot?

And how would you separate Messrs. Martin and Archer's clear Linnet Mule and Mr. Crone's Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid—two real masterpieces—for the supremacy of the Hybrid section?

We may say that we ourselves thought Dr. Wilson's winning Bullfinch just about the best British bird in the show. We do not remember ever to have seen one that pleased us more—and we say this with a vivid recollection of the wonderful Bullie with which the great Job Williams used to smother all opposition some 15 years ago. There were those who questioned the nationality of Mr. Williams' champion (he was full size), but "doubting Thomases" can find no loophole in Dr. Williams' bird, one of the very best Bullfinches, on present form, that ever hopped into a show cage.

Out for an Airing!

We heard of no disqualifications, and similar unpleasant incidents, though no doubt the one or two exhibitors who had birds escape would classify this item as "unpleasant." We are certainly surprised that an experienced British bird exhibitor should use a show cage with a waterhole capacious enough to permit a hen Brambling to walk through it! She was a grand bird, and would have been well up in the prize list; but, as the judge said, "what would the other exhibitors have thought about it had I judged her when she was out in the hall?" We noticed several exhibits in the Redpoll, Siskin, etc., classes, which could quite easily have got out in a similar way. And tiny foreign birds seem always to be left loopholes of escape. When will exhibitors learn this lesson?

The judges, luckily, were favoured with a bright spell of weather whilst carrying out their far from easy duties, the deluge that did so much to wreck the prospects of the show holding off until late on the Thursday afternoon. This was doubly fortunate, seeing that the glass roof had had to be partially shaded (in accordance with the police regulations) in order to screen the electric light when in use at night. Good stewards were available—we noticed that several prominent provincial fanciers, including one or two from Wales, could not resist the temptation to "take off their coats" and join in the fray—and the awarding of the prizes was not unduly delayed despite the fact that the officials rightly waited the arrival of several packages of birds delayed in delivery.

We heard very little grumbling, indeed. This we take to indicate that the judges' awards were seldom far away from the bull's-eye, so to speak, and, further, to be distinctly complimentary to the several gentlemen who were officiating for the first time at a show of this magnitude. The judges were Messrs. H. D. Astley (For.), R. L. Crisp (Yorks), A. W. Curtis (Nor.), F. Easterling (Yorks), D. Jenkins (Bord.), A. J. Marley (Corks), C. Prior (Brit.), E. J. Rippon (Nor.), J. Robinson (Crests, Liz., Cinn., Hyb., Brit.), D. Seth-Smith (For.), A. Silver (Brit.), and R. J. Watts (For.).

Attractive Stalls.

In the centre of the hall Messrs. Trower and Co., the noted seed and bird-food merchants, had a very fine stall displaying the specialities of the firm. The grand quality of the seeds, etc., on view was the subject of approving comment from all who looked them over, while the foods for insectivorous birds (with the "Cecto" and "Softhly" mixtures in particular) met with equal appreciation. Messrs. Trower know exactly what the fancier wants and cater for his needs to a nicety and at reasonable prices (look up their advertisement in this issue). The grand condition of the birds reflected credit on the firm, for while at the show they were fed solely on Trower's seeds and soft-foods and not a sick or sorry specimen could be seen.

Another stall which attracted a deal of attention was that of Messrs. Baron and Co., where a fine lot of "Kozy Karriers" was on view. These splendid travelling cases have quite captured the fancy of exhibitors, and well they might, for the neat and novel material (vulcanised fibre) of which they are made is immensely strong, yet amazingly light, so that they save their cost in railway charges in a single season where much exhibiting is done. Exhibitors will find that the use of "Kozy Karriers" is good business. Messrs. Baron have something interesting to say to fanciers on page 251 this week.

Messrs. Hydes also had a stall, on which was a fine display of their packet seeds, Parrot foods, shell gravel, and other widely-known specialities, while CAGE BIRDS occupied its usual position near the entrance, where a selection of our coloured plates attracted much attention and our practical books for bird-keepers found many purchasers anxious to avail themselves of the knowledge and good advice packed between their covers.

THE YORKSHIRE CANARIES.

The Yorkshire section, as usual, was a big feature, and the devotees of the slim ones were constantly in attendance upon them. The entry in all classes was good, the novice unfledged heading the poll with twenty-eight good specimens. The merit all through has never been better, but the yell, and buff hen classes were without doubt the pick of the basket. In these two classes it was difficult to find an indifferent specimen, and so even were they that if one took the winner and compared it with the last in the cards, the difference in many cases was scarcely perceptible. The yell cocks class was a good one, Messrs. Ogden leading with a clinker, but there was little to choose between the three leaders. The buff cocks were a very fine lot, Messrs. Hawes Bros.' grand bird leading well, but one could look down the class and see winners in almost every cage. The same firm led in yell hens, just missing the coveted place in the buffs. Mr. Power's unfledged Cinnamon marked yell, won well in the unfledged class; it is certainly a charming specimen. The novice section contained some exceptionally good examples, particularly the birds put down by Miss Bowyer, she fairly romped home in buff cocks, buff hens, and unfledged yell, and buff classes, and it is just on the cards that she might have annexed the same prizes in the champion section, had the birds been entered there. It was a big triumph for a lady exhibitor.

Greens were grand, with a wonderful truthness to type, and even tone of col. Mr. G. A. Metcalfe, of Liverpool, kindly guaranteed the classes, and staged the winner in two of the four classes, and the second prize in every class. These birds have never been quite so popular as the clears down south, although we frequently noticed visitors looking them over rather closely.

Mr. F. Easterling's Classes.

YORKS. YELL. CK. The members' Yorks. classes contained as usual some exceptionally fine specimens, such well-known exhibitors as Messrs. Hawes Bros., Knight, Ayers, Tobbs, Buckingham, etc., putting down some real good ones. Great interest was centred in the unlighted class, in which Mr. Ayers scored a success, thus winning the cup for best unlighted bird.

MEMBERS' CHAMP. YELL. CK. (1): Ayers; 2, 5, Hawes Bros.; 3, Buckingham; 4, Bousfield; 6, 7, Knight. BUFF (1): Ayers; 2, Hawes Bros.; 3, Hall; 4, 5, Bousfield; 6, Neal. UNFLIG.: 1, Johnston; 2, Taylor and Wright.

THE NORWICH PLAINHEADS. Norwich were well up to the average, some of the best yellows we have ever seen being put down, and it was a treat to notice how well most of the birds were staged. Some very fine specimens were shown by Messrs. Houghton, Crawshaw, Jones, Hodder, Barker, and Thomas, in fact the cream of the fancy were on view; we greatly admired Mr. Crawshaw's unlighted yellow, a gem of the first water, and as near the ideal as any bird we have seen, indeed it was greatly admired by many. The novice, too, came up in force, and staged really good specimens; in several instances some of the birds could have held their own in the open. On the whole it was a grand show of Norwich. There were many good birds in members' champions, and some of them would have run winners in the open very hard.

Mr. E. J. Rippon's Classes.

OPEN, CL. YELL. (16): 1, sp, Houghton, massive build, full bold head, red hot col.; 2, 5, Irons, good shape, well cut away, hardly the size of leader; 3, 4, Saunders, champions, leader rather the stouter of the two, very pleasing exhibits; 6, Hirst; 7, Thomas. BUFF (15): 1, Houghton, neat all through, well fitted back, good wings, very close feather of the best texture; 2, Saunders, very shapely, splendid outline, hardly the bold chest of leader, but close run; 3, Pilcher, rattling good one, true wedge shape, well covered body and wings, silkist of feather; 4, 6, Ellis, nice ones, shown in fine form; 5, Hodder, regular model, richest qual., plumage fitting closely on body, good wings and tail, blaze of col. like a peacen; 7, Baker, fine shape and carr. TKD. ETC., YELL. (11): 1, Thomas, head tkd. line frame, neatly shaped head, very fine body shape, stands right across, pleasing exhibit; 2, Crawshaw, mkd. eyes and wings, similar build, grand texture of feather, short and compact, very close up; 3, Houghton, neat shape, rather on small side; 4, Baker, real Norwich all through, shown in the pink; 5, 6, Hodder, latter very cobby shape, rich qual. and col., fine cond.; 7, Cook. BUFF (17): 1, 5, Crawshaw, one of those which take the eye, all there for type, qual., and col., shown in grand form, wins; 2, Thomas, good round back and deep chest, very nice bird, pressed hard; 3, Houghton, well-known winner, in grand cond.; 4, Baker, very neat and useful, pressed hard for third place; 6, Rowley, more size, but not so fine in qual., or rich in col. as some; 7, Hodder, big bold bird with fine head, shown in fine fettle, excellent class all through. YELL. HEN (8): 1, Thomas, wonderful size and col. for a hen, bit horned on head, won no doubt for size and col.; 2, Gunnell, not so much size or col., but very fine shape and qual. of feather, claimed at catalogue price, £3 5s.; 3, Crawshaw, most useful hen, very short, well across perch, in grand show form, charming bird; 4, 5, Griffin, leader, unflig., all to be desired for shape and qual., should be heard of another year; 5, good one, very natty, and well shown; 6, Byne; 7, Ellis. BUFF (20): 1, Noyce, real beauty, sweetly moulded head, nicely clothed body, with feather of fine texture, one of the best we have seen for some time; 2, Baker, bold front, round back, well across perch, very smart, well shown; 3, Thomas, similar in build, but not so large as leader, nevertheless a hen to be proud of; 4, Sears, very sprightly, useful for breeding, hardly so large as leaders; 5, Taylor, fine style and carr.; 6, Harris; 7, Litchfield. UNFLIG. YELL. (14): 1, 2, 4, Crawshaw, one of the grandest yellows we have ever seen, all to be desired, and as near the perfect bird as anything one could imagine, wins easily; 2, nice shape, very fine texture of feather, but fails subs. to leader; 4, lovely bird, will make up into a good one; 3, Litchfield, well rounded head, good shape, tight fitting jacket, hardly so large perhaps; 5, Hodder, one of the cobbiest, sweet head, well moulded throughout, will be heard of again; 6, Baker; 7, Frost and Rogers, a very strong class. BUFF (16): 1, Silk, size and shape all there, lovely feather, could do with little more chest perhaps, but a nice bird; 2, Crawshaw, varieg., shape and style of the best, very pleasing; 3, Baker, same stamp, not much to choose, very smart; 4, Hirst, grizzle tailed, wedge shape, nice bold front, good carr.; 5, Ellis, nice feather and frosting, rather shimmer in build; 6, Griffin; 7, Taylor. MEMB. CHAMP. YELL. CK. (5): 1, 2, Hodder, leader head tkd., one of the cobbiest, true wedge shape, grand qual. and col.; 2, clear, beaming with qual., nice sound col., falls only to leader in depth of chest; 3, 6, Withers, well-known winner, thick-set, grand col., and qual., good 3rd.; 4, Baker, sweet bird, Norwich all over. BUFF (4): 1, Houghton, regular sterner, deep, broad chest; wide back; 2, Hodder, great size, grand shape and feather, falls only in col. to leader; 3, Baker, lovely exhibit, true shape, grand cond.; 4, Withers. HENS (5): 1, Houghton, grand hen, wonderful size, lovely feather; 2, Hodder, very short body, wings, and tail, feather of the best, splendid cond.; 3, Withers, another good one, very useful; 4, Baker, rich qual., good front, well cut away. UNFLIG. (6): 1, 2, Houghton, true wedge shape, grand feather, with little better head would be a sterner; 2, shorter in body, shown in the pink; 3, 5, Hodder, good, full, round head, short body, wings, and tail, good qual. and col.; 4, Baker, red hot col., splendid shape, lacks subs. to leaders, but nice bird.

Mr. A. W. Curtis's Classes.

OPEN NOV. NOR. YELL. CL. OR TKD. (16): 1, Heald, one of the cobbiest, well across perch, stands well, good bird; 2, 5, Burt, very smart, former very large and typical, good bold front, deserves its place; 5, hardly so large, but very useful; 3, Brown and Prosser, lovely qual., good, sound col., hardly so stout in build as leaders; 4, 6, Cole, leader, has wonderful frame, grand back and chest; 6, hardly so large; 7, Leech, another big one, right across perch. BUFF (18): 1, Leech, one of the most typical, neat all through, a bird we like much; 2, Heald, another sweet bird, hardly the subs. perhaps, but very nice shape; 3, 5, Burt, leader one of the cobby sort, takes the eye at once, lovely feather and mealing; 5, good one, of the two the largest, grand feather; 6, Cooper; 7, Trevallion. MKD., ETC. (4): 1, Dossert, cap mkd. yell., rattling good bird, shape all there, nice qual. of feather; 2, 6, Lacochee, larger, leader, but hardly so good in feather, most useful stock bird; 3, Leech, teeming with qual., put down in grand form; 4, Cole, one of the right stamp, most useful; 5, Jay; 7, Hewitt. HENS A.V. (25): 1, Hewitt, buff, very stout build, close feather, clean cut away, smart hen; 2, Lacochee, mkd. yell., grand back, full chest, very useful in any stud; 3, 4, Cannon, built on right lines, shows well, pleasing hen; 4, nice one, hardly the compactness perhaps; 5, Williams; 6, Dumbelton; 7, Leech, one of the best in class as we saw it. UNFLIG. YELL. (12): 1, Mrs. Stopher, grandly moulded, finest texture of feather, should make good one; 2, Leese, best of shape and style, looking little soft when we saw it; 3, Smith, nice exhibit, well shown, hardly so short as leaders, but good outline; 4, Tomsett, all there for style and qual., lacks little in subs. to leaders, but will improve; 5, Shirley; 6, Cole; 7, Leech. BUFF (20): 1, Bailey, real wedge shape, slips one claw, but a very smart youngster, and deserves its place; 2, Buxton, pleasing appearance, nice carr. and style; 3, Gardner, tight as a Java, sound col. and lovely qual., good 3rd.; 4, 7, Dr. Weeks, leader, one of the cobbiest, teeming with qual., col. of the best; 5, Smith; 6, Trevallion. LIMIT, 30s. (15): 1, Smith; 2, Gunnell; 3, Titchener; 4, Harris; 5, Silk; 6, Leese; 7, Martin. MEMB. AMAT. CK. (3): 1, Thurlay; 2, 3, Thurlay. HEN (5): 1, 5, Offord; 2, 4, Thursty; 3, Thursty. UNFLIG. (7): 1, 5, Thursty; 2, 3, Thursty; 4, 7, Offord; 6, Goymer. NOV. CK. (2): 1, 2, Brumbridge. HEN (3): 1, 2, 3, Brumbridge. UNFLIG. (4): 1, 3, 4, Brumbridge; 2, Goymer.

THE BORDER FANCIES.

Judge, Mr. D. Jenkins.

The Border classes filled exceptionally well, and quality was much in evidence. The majority of the exhibitors were southern men, very few of the north country enthusiasts venturing to send their birds the long journey, and those that did were not annexing all the plums, as in previous years. The southern exhibits are advancing, and doing it rapidly. The yellow cocks were a fine, typical lot, the leaders being quite high class. We thought the buffs scarcely so good as a whole, although a few good ones caught the judge's eye. The two classes of hens were very charming, and envious eyes were cast upon more than one of them. It was here that the winner of the special for best bird in the show was found, and we heartily congratulate Messrs. Burton Bros. upon securing the coveted honour; the brothers have done much for the "wee gems" in the south, and deserve all they win.

As usual, the novice classes contained some real good ones, and we particularly noticed the birds put down by Messrs. Preece, Kybert, Mugford, Last and Heslop. The addition of a separate class for hens was quite a success, as it contained more than either of the other classes. Just a word of warning to southern breeders. They must be more careful in their pairing. The majority of the exhibits were certainly on the small side; a five and a half inch bird is not a midget. Mr. Jenkins' awards gave general satisfaction.

BORD. YELL. CK. (18): 1, 4, Pratts, nice size, good head and neck, nicely moulded back and front, well braced wings, good carr. and style, in the pink; 4th, another beauty, excellent type and style, good head and wings, nice jaunty movement, clean cut to a good tail, but scarcely the high finish of winner; 2, Mrs. Thynne, nicely modelled, good size, neat head, well braced and packed flights, clean cut, nicely rounded, fine cond.; 3, Wilson, somewhat smaller, but a beauty for type, splendidly balanced, on good legs, A1 wing car., best of cond.; 5, Harry; 6, Elston; 7, Espie. BUFF (20): 1, Wilson, nice rich col., well balanced and moulded, not the best of heads, but splendid wings, capitally packed and braced, full of qual. and put down to time; 2, Espie, full size, fine type, good head, back, and wings, neat tail, nicely packed all round, cleanly cut away, beaten only in col.; 3, Madagan, scarcely so beautifully moulded as winners, good head and well placed flights, clean cut, very fine qual. feather, grand cond.; 4, Mrs. Thynne, well balanced, but a rather heavy neck, which spoils the contour, grand wings, well drawn, A1 cond.; 5, Gentleman; 6, Murrion; 7, Burton Bros. YELL. HEN: 1, Burton Bros., not a big one, but charming for type and style, good head, capital wings and tail, nicely moulded throughout, A1 col. and qual.; 2, Pratt, scarcely the col. of winner, but nicely drawn and moulded, lovely head and neck, tightly packed wings, rare qual. of feather, in the pink of cond.; 3, Blackie, nice example, moves beautifully, alert manner, typical, good back and wings, sound qual.; 4, Espie, check tkd., good stamp, lovely head, wings scarcely so nicely braced as winner, but A1 cond.; 5, Mrs. Salter; 6, Sayer; 7, Philpot. BUFF (1): 1, Pratt, lovely lady, slim type, free, jaunty movement, on clever legs, beautifully moulded, in the pink; 2, Espie, beauty for type and qual., neat head, nice curve from chin to root of tail, capital wings, fine qual. of feather; 3, Burton, lovely type and style, just a shade small, good head, tightly braced wings, neat tail, well cut away, line qual.; 4, Harry, typical, just a suspicion of heaviness at waist, but grand wings and tail, A1 cond.; 5, Claydon; 6, Madagan; 7, Harry. EVEN MKD. (9): 1, 3, Nicholson, very nice buff leading, capital type and style, good even eye and wing markings, neat tail, very line qual. feather, 3rd, another buff, rather heavily mkd., but nicely balanced, close fitting wings, clean cut, capital cond.; 4, Orton, very nice yell., typical and smart, neat head and neck, good wings, very good in marking and lovely qual. UNEVEN (20): 1, 4, Nicholson, beautiful four-pointed Cinn. mkd., fine size, excellent type, neat head, good, well braced wings, nicely moulded throughout, clean cut, in the pink, 4th, lovely three-pointed yell., grand type and style, good head, beautifully moulded, A1 wings and tail, very fine cond.; 2, Beard, slim, typical, three-pointed, nicely rounded and cut away, good head and back, tightly fitting wings, grand qual. feather, in fine fettle; 3, Pratt, Frizzle wing buff, nice type and qual., good head, neat wings and tail, sound cond.; 5, Burton Bros.; 6, Elston; 7, Large. CINN. (18): 1, 3, 4, 6, Wilson, very fine col., good head, shade weak in neck, but otherwise beautifully rounded, grandly braced wings, clean cut away, very fine cond., 3rd, slim, stylish yell., lovely type, free and jaunty, nice head, smart wing car., very fine qual. and col., 4th, grand buff, lovely Border type, beautifully rounded all through, clean cut, A1 wing car., fine, even tone of col.; 2, Whitelaw, beautifully modelled buff, very typical and free in movement, good head and wings, sound, rich col., evenly distributed, in the pink; 5, Gentleman; 7, Hamilton. GREEN CK. (15): 1, Campbell, lovely type and style, neat head, grand back and wings, smartly braced, clean cut, very sound, rich col., wealth of pencilling; 2, 6, Bacon, very jaunty and free in style, capital head and wings, clean cut, richly col., in fine fettle; 3, Hamilton, grand bird of nice size, beautifully rounded wings, tightly packed and braced, rich, sound ground col., splendidly pencilled; 4, 7, Middleton, good bird, although a wee bit heavy, capital head and wing, grand col.; 5, Goymer. HEN (18): 1, 7, Middleton, beautifully balanced and moulded, grand head, wings tightly packed, sound, rich, evenly distributed col., in the pink; 2, Blackie, hardly the sweet type of winner, although a marvel for col., bright and level, splendidly pencilled, very fine qual. of feather; 3, Whitelaw, very fine buff, beautifully moulded throughout, nice head, grand wing car., free movement, A1 col. and qual.; 4, Gentleman, slim type, yet nicely rounded wings, well packed and braced, cleanly cut, rich col., best of qual.; 5, Campbell; 6, Orton. NOV. YELL. CK. (18): 1, Kybert, beautifully moulded, nice size, neat head, well filled back and front, splendid wing car., clean cut and smart in movement, good sound col. and qual.; 2, Mugford, another nice one, very typical and free in movement, neat head and wings, clean cut, capital qual. of feathers, nicely put down; 3, Hine, slim build, capital col., nice head, smart in wing car., clean cut, sound cond.; 4, Last, good wing mkd., sweetly typical, good head, back, and wings, clean cut, nice style, A1 cond.; 5, Pegg; 6, Heslop; 7, Joplin. BUFF (14): 1, Preece, quite the correct type, beautifully rounded, neat head, good, tightly fitting wings, clean cut to a good tail sound cond., rare qual. of feather; 2, Last, scarcely so nice in type, nor so good in head, but capital back and wings, good tail, very fine qual.; 3, Pegg, cleanly cut, capital type and style, moves nicely, good head and wings, smart tail, good qual. feather; 4, 5, Hutchinson, very fine, typical, but hardly the polish of winners, neat head, good wings and tail, very good style; 6, Hine; 7, Martin. HEN (21): 1, Preece, one of the best hens in the show, smart and typical, good head, back and wings, nicely moulded, grand qual. and cond.; 2, Heslop, beauty, very little between them, scarcely the col., but lovely style and movement, grand head and wing, A1 cond.; 3, Pegg, rather small yell. and quite high wings, grand cond.; 4, Humphries, another that might be a shade larger, but quite nice in type and style, good wing car., very fine qual.; 5, Joplin; 6, Last; 7, Martin.

A.O. CANARY CLASSES.

Judge, Mr. J. Robson.

Crests and crested birds were an unusually level lot, there being such a well balanced array of quality that it must have set the judge a puzzler more than once. There was a noticeable prevalence of good bodied birds, and in the case of the crests toilet attentions were cleverly and correctly displayed in the majority of cases. In Yellow Crests there was quite a leap in numbers to what we used to see only a few years ago, when the general lament was that their star was waning. In Crest Breds some marvellous birds were staged, and there was quantity as well as quality. 1914 Crests and Crest Breds were of very high promise. On the whole we were well pleased with such a level lot. Novice open classes contained some few smart birds; and the Limit classes had many bargains. In Cinnamons entries were almost at freezing point, but the quality of the few that were shown was good. The variety class contained a right good specimen of the Cinnamon Crest, and several good Frills, as well as a Scottie and a Bel-

It is a pity that southern men do not take to the charming Lizards. There was displayed quite a feast for lovers of spangles, and yet few fanciers appeared to be interested in them. The gathering was a good one, and birds of the very highest merit were on view. All the champion exhibitors supported the show, and each class had a fair number of entries. We have always hugely admired the Silvers, and were pleased to see the winner of diploma for best bird turn up in this class, Mr. Hamer's lovely clear cap doing the trick. The bird is as near perfection as one could wish; full of quality and smothered with the most charming spangling. Spl. for best Gold went to the same owner's broken cap, a fine bird, with a wealth of work on him.

LANCS. COPPY YELL. (2): 1, sp, 2, Fitton, former cl., massive frame, nice headpiece, hardly so long in front as 2nd, a grizzle, but better back and closer lay, both grand fronted. BUFF (6): 1, 6, Green, former very full top, good size, rare shaped copy; 6, a grizzle, not the size or density of copy, and more spare in body; 2, 5, Jameson, about as much difference in point of merit as between the 1st and 6th, but we liked the 2nd very much, one of the old massive sort, grand top, and in every respect a good one, a grizzle; 3, Fitton, cl., sweet shaped copy, beautiful finish, must have run the others close; 4, Minty, very dense copy, long frontal, good centre, rather Norwich at back. PLAINHEAD, YELL. (3): 1, sp, 2, Green, tkd. on right eye and neck, very nice shape, stands well; 2, not so long in body, but good subs., nice feather and head; 3, Minty, stands across a little, good in feather, nice colour. BUFF (6): 1, sp, 3, Fitton, winner, massive body, head, grand lashing, good position and dense head feather; 3, grand head, not the length of body or position; 2, Minty, grand position, close feather, not quite the headpiece of winner; 4, 5, Green, 4 nice head, thick body, not quite the position; 6, Crab, good body, just a trifle short. BUFF CREST CK. (15): 1, Dobson, well-known varieg., just a few pens from the centre, nicely posted, good frontal, and centre, veiny feather; 2, Smith, not d. cl. body, last year's CAGB Buds Championship Palace winner, in grand form; 3, 7, Bale, cl. body, with dark tail, exceedingly dense coloured crest, massive frontal, somewhat marred by two or three feathers standing up from the centre; 4, a good grizzle; 4, 6, Evins Bros., former varieg., not the finish of crest, and fails a trifle in length of sides; 6, a grand broken green, wins well; 5, Wallace, more shapely if hairy crest, lovely droop and well put down, evenly mkd.; No. 1 in this class, a grand broken green, a trifle twisted, would pay for close attention. HENS (14): 1, 2, sp, 7, Radley and Sons, evenly mkd., grand frontal, veiny crest, well filled centre and sides, close lay, and nice droop; 7, heavily varieg., not so massive, not so nice in back crest, good centre, and radiation; 2, Smith, varieg., beautiful class of crest feather, leafy, nice vein, well filled in centre, droops grandly, full of qual.; 3, MacLay, broken gr., very long frontal, good centre and droop; 4, Bale, heavily varieg. crest trifle thin, nice veiny feather and good centre; 5, King, very long frontal, varieg., just fails at side, on the small side in body; 6, Miss Onslow, one dark feather in tail, smaller, falls side, nice centre. C.B. CK. (14): 1, sp, 3, Bale, massive bodied varieg., really a Pullinch-shaped body, grand skull, nice dome and beautifully browed, dense head feather; 3, varieg., similar in body, but hardly so massive in head; 2, sp, Evins Bros., truly grand head, just fails to win a little at entrance, else a close race; 4, Gale, varieg., not so wide in skull, or so dense and dome shaped, nicely lashed; 5, Smith, grand size, varieg., heavy back skull, long turnover, wide head feather; 6, King, very big body, not so dense as one above it; 7, Miss Onslow, massive, wide head, fails in density of head feather. HEN: 1, Smith, broken gr., L. and P.O.S. winner, in grand fettle; 2, Bewick, nice shaped skull, trifle narrow at entrance, dense head feather; 3, Brotherton, heavily varieg., dense back skull feather, cushioned head, not so wide at entrance, or so long in turnback as winner, must have run 2nd close; 4, Bale, broken gr., grand head, might be more even in lashing; 5, Dobson, cl., good one, nicely lashed; 6, Evins Bros., nearly gr., grand head, rare qual., seemed to have rather hard lines, wonderful entrance; 7, Miss Onslow, broken gr., nice skull, good length of head feather. CREST CK., YELL. (11): Crested yellows are evidently on the up grade, eleven of 'em: 1, sp, 8, King, good centre, long frontal, well filled at sides, grand body, a good one; 6, broken gr., should do well in the stock cage; 2, 5, Evins Bros., former even wings, good centre and radiation; 2, very smart, rare length of sides of crest; 3, Bewick, broken gr., grand frontal, very shapely crest, a rattling good one; 4, Franz, grey crest, grizzled wings, good length of crest feather, a large crest for a yellow; 7, Broad. C.B. CK. (12): 1, sp, Smith, broken gr., dome shaped skull, wide entrance, longer turnover than many buffs, a grand bird of splendid qual.; 2, 3, Evins Bros., former varieg., not quite so wide at entrance, splendid lashing, good length of head feather; 3, broken gr., not quite so stout in body, or so full in lashing, also a good one; 4, Franz, bit spare in head feather, good bodied varieg., not yet at its best; 5, Mrs. Litchfield, right good bird, nicely lashed, grand qual., a good cl.; 6, Brotherton, varieg., good head, nice length of feather; 7, Watcham, cl., wide head, nice qual. C. HEN (12): 1, Franz, grizzle crest, nicely centred, good length of frontal, nice droop, right good bird, might be a bit stouter in body; 2, Evins Bros., dark and mkd. on left wing, beautiful body for a yell., crest a trifle thin, and a great deal in pen feathers; 3, Smith, long frontal, trifle irregular back, dense crest feather, a nice one, runs 2nd close; 4, White, dark, even wings, nice frontal, but smaller; 5, Wallace, nice, but on small side; 6, King, shield shaped crest, rather open centre; 7, Mrs. Litchfield, similar shaped crest, neat body. HEN (6): 1, Smith, oval head, great length of head feather, fairly wide entrance; 2, 3, King, both var., former has the pull in all respects, both good; 4, Franz, bit too slim in body, and fine in head, broken gr.; 5, Broad, varieg., loses in skull, nice body; 6, Watcham, needs more width of head feather. BUFF CRESTS, 1914 (12): 1, 2, sp, Barker, splendid frontal, sides, and back, nice vein, probably a hen, even wings, beautiful centre and droop, a front ranker; 2, Smith, broken gr., immense frontal, sides and back good, rattling good bird, close to the winner; 3, 4, Evins, two good varieg., correctly placed, very promising; 5, Bewick, cl. body, D.C., dense vein, a hen, trifle short in frontal; 6, Edwards, a smart bird, nice all round crest; 7, King, long frontal, good centre, might have gone up a peg or two. C.B. (17): 1, 2, sp, 3, Bale, gem of the first water, varieg., wonderful skull, looked none too robust; 3, good, but paler beside the first; 2, Miss Onslow, broken gr., wonderful body, wide head and entrance, a good one; 4, Radley and Sons, lovely oval skull, good lashing, rare body and qual. of feather, we

THE HYBRID CLASSES.

Judge—Mr. J. Robson.

The Hybrid section was one of the features of the show, all the noted cracks throwing down the gauntlet, consequently a battle royal took place for premier position, many of the exhibits being so nearly equal that the judge must have had great difficulty in separating them. Messrs. Martin and Archer's light Linnet Mule, "Perfection," aptly named, carried off spl. for best light Hybrid. We have never before seen him in such exquisite condition. The same owner's Green-Chaffinch Hybrid carried off spl. for 2nd best Dark Hybrid. Spl. best Dk. Hybrid was won by Mr. J. Coone's Bullfinch, another gem of the first water. The wonderful breast col. this bird carries is an eye-opener, and he stood clear away from the other Dk. Can-Bullies. A notable exhibit in this class was Mr. Parlett's light Can-Bullie, which stood 2nd, a really grand bird of true Bullfinch type, with wonderful eyes, as large as a Robin's. Mr. Lawrence won spl. for second best Light with a lovely cl. Goldie-Can., and amongst other notable exhibits we must not forget to mention Mr. McQuiston's Dk. Jonque Goldie, a real marvel for col., as also were this exhibitor's Green-Can. and Linnet-Can. Hybrids. Pairs matched for Hybrid breeding were rather disappointing, both in numbers and quality.

CL. TKD., ETC. H.V.B. (4): 1, sp, Martin and Archer, well-known Linnet Can., "Perfection," well named, a real gem, looking better than ever; 2, sp, Lawrence, cl. Goldie-Can., good size and shape, lovely feather, in Al order; 3, S. Jones, jun., eye mkd. Goldie-Can., lovely shape and qual., grand size, we understand found a new owner at cat. price, 44 4s., and cheap, too; 4, Lamb, Goldie-Can., grand polish, hardly as large as leaders. UNEVEN OR LIGHTLY VAR. (9): 1, Martin and Archer, head and wing mkd. Goldie, a real beauty; grand blaze, exquisite shape, nice slze, perfect cond.; 2, Lamb, grand Goldie, eye and saddle mkd., beautifully moulded, not a feather out of place, grand size; 3, Lawrence, Linnet Can., practically an even bird, but under N.B.B. and M.C. rules competes here, a real topper, best of shape and qual.; 4, Martin and Archer, grizzled mkd. Green-Can. (many wondered which was the correct class for it, as by the wording of schedule it could have competed in either this or preceding class), well known, looking his best to-day; 5, Gilbert, buff Goldie-Can., grand size and shape, nice feather; 6, Gunnell, yell., wing and tail mkd. Goldie-Can., wonderful col., grand size for a yell., nice blaze, a trifle loose in feather when we saw him; 7, Hart, Green-Can., mkd. both checks, very shapely, grand order, trifle smaller than leader. HEAVILY VAR. (9): 1, J. and F. Bowler, Jonque Goldie-Can., a blaze of col., grand size and shape, beautiful qual. and cond.; 2, Lamb, Linnet-Can., close up, grand frater, perfect shape and cond.; 3, Inman, buff Goldie, well put down, nicely proportioned, boxy feather; 4, McQuiston, Jonque Goldie, very shapely, rich col., fine size and cond.; 5, Andrews, Goldie, nice col. and qual., hardly as large as leaders; 6, Carter, buff Goldie, very shapely, lovely feather and cond.; 7, Inman, Goldie, neat exhibit, trifle frilled in front. D.K. GOLDF. (13): 1, McQuiston, grand jonque, nice shape, sound rich col., well proportioned, Al order; 2, Crone, topping jonque, grand body, lovey col. and qual., little to choose between them; 3, Lark, very shapely, grand size and qual., hardly as 7-h. col. as leaders; 4, Lawrence, buff, grand size and shape, nicely mealed, lovely order; 5, F. and T. Bowler, buff, nice col. and qual., good blaze, hardly subs. of leaders; 6, Rees, very neat, we her quite a baby, should make a really good one later; 7, Dr. Wilson, nice size, very shapely, loses in col. LINNET (7): 1, McQuiston, real gem, wonder for size and shape, blaze of col., grand exhibit; 2, Crone, best of shape and qual., hardly as rich in col. as leader; 3, Martin and Archer, beautifully moulded, nice size and cond.; 4, Rees, good size and shape, full of qual., well put down; 5, Dr. Wilson, trifle smaller, nicely moulded, grand shape and qual.; 6, Lawrence, buff clinn., very neat, perfect feather and cond.; 7, Lamb, very neat, nice col. and qual. GREENE. (11): 1, Parlett, well-known jonque, capital size and shape, nice col., still many thought rather fortunate to beat; 2, 3, McQuiston, two grand exhibits, put down in perfect order, the latter a wonderful jonque, grand eubs., perfectly moulded, might have won and nobody grumble; 4, Lawrence, jonque, wonderfully improved, grand size, perfect shape, col. and cond.; 5, Casemore, buff, neat and shapely, loses subs to leaders; 6, Wilcox and Sons, again on the small side, nicely feathered; 7, Dr. Wilson, neat exhibit, rather wild when handled. SISKIN, ETC. (17): 1, Andrews, lovely jonque Siskin-Can., real topper, nice clear col., good eye and wing mks., perfect shape and feather; 2, McQuiston, equally good Twite-Can., perfect feather, lovely shape and cond.; 3, Goodall, neat Redpoll-Can., nice size and shape, shows parentage well, in grand order; 4, Crone, Siskin-Can., nice size and shape, good mks., hardly as clear in col. as leader; 5, Ford, Mealy Redpoll-Can., a regular bouncer, well laced, in Al order; 6, Miss Bousfield, Redpoll-Can., very shapely, nice qual. and cond., hardly as rich col. as third; 7, Buckingham, Redpoll-Can., very shapely, nice order. BULF. H.V.B. (9): 1, sp, Crone, well-known Canary-Bullf., grand size and shape, wonderful col. and qual., seems to keep on improving; 2, Parlett, the noted "White Rose," nearly cl. Canary-Bullf., good size, perfect Pullinch shape, grand col., staged to perfection, much admired; 3, Gilbert, Green-Bullf., nice size, perfectly moulded, exquisite feather and cond.; 4, Dr. Wilson, Canary-Bullf., lovely feather and cond., grand shape, hardly as large as winners; 5, Howick, Canary-Bullf., very neat, lovely shape, col., and qual., again loses subs.; 6, Crone, Redpoll-Bullf., lovely exhibit, shows parentage well, perfect feather and cond.; 7, Lamb, Green-Bullf., very shapely, lovely qual., hardly subs. enough. A.O.V. (11): 1, sp, Martin and Archer, Green-Chaffinch, well known, lovely shape and qual., shown to perfection; 2, Lamb, very neat Gold-Siskin, charming exhibit shows parentage well; 3, Gilbert, Bramble-Chaffinch, nice size, well spangled, whites in wings showing parentage plainly; 4, Lamb, Green-Chaff., beautiful exhibit, lovely col., qual., and shape, perhaps hardly the subs. of winner, still a real gem; 5, Mullens, Siskin-Greenf., lovely qual. and cond., showing parentage plainly; 6, Lawrence, Redpoll-Siskin, very neat, grand col. and qual., its size against it amongst such company; 7, Smith, Bramble-Chaff., loses subs to third; wrong class No. 11. PAIRS FOR BREEDING (4): 1, 3, Wren, 1 Goldf. and Bullf., 3 Redpoll and Chaffinch; 2, Offord, Chaffinch and Bramble; 4, Hobden, Twite and Norwich.

THE BRITISH BIRDS.

The British bird section, it is pleasing to record, was a distinct advance on anything previously seen at this Hall; and not only were the classes throughout very well filled, but the quality was exceptionally high, most of the best specimens of the season meeting in competition. Possibly the hottest class amongst the Hardbills was that devoted to the Greenfinches. It is but the simple truth to say that any one out of the seven birds which got "got in the cards" could win at meet shows. The judges' predilection for natural-coloured birds led to some good "red-hot luns" (too over-hot, some said) taking a back seat. There was nothing at all startling in the Goldfinch class, but the winning Bullfinch was the admiration of all beholders. Other outstanding specimens were Mr. Lloyd-James's Yellow Bunting, Mr. Marley's Corn Bunting, and Mr. Cottingham's hen Hawfinch, while Mr. McQuiston's two Linnets excelled their competitors to an extraordinary extent in depth and solidity of colour and display of white in the wings. The Small Insectivorous classes were, as usual, a feature of great interest, more than one exhibit securing for the second and even third time at this show 1st prize in its class. The Hon. Mrs. Bourke's splendid Nightingale won 1st in 1909, and although five years older he has again repeated his victory, and looks none the worse for his years of captivity; Mr. Frostick's Dartford Warbler, one of the smallest British birds, has competed at this show for the past three years, and has secured the highest honours on each occasion, and yet another instance we believe is Mr. Tout's Yellow Wagtail, which looks as near perfection as one could wish. These instances should set the faddists thinking, when they seek to condemn the keeping of birds in cages. A Reed Warbler is not often seen on the show bench, although comparatively numerous in suitable localities, but a beautiful specimen was here shown by Mr. R. C. Tout. It is also not often one finds four Black Redstarts out of an entry of seven, or the pretty little Treecreepers having to go as far down the list as 5th and 6th, whilst only a few years back they were considered pretty well cast-iron "certs." The class for Tits, Nuthatch, and Bearded Redlings produced an entry of 33, of which 12 were present, consisting of four varieties of Tits, and two Nuthatches. It would have added to the interest if the rare Crested Tit and the Common Great Tit and Blue Tit had been represented. We missed the usual array of Choughs, Magpies, and Jays, only one Chough putting in an appearance. The Pied Albino, etc., class, was not so well filled as usual, but some of the specimens were very pretty, the yellow Yellowhammer of Messrs. Martin and Archer well deserving its place at the head of the class, and the 3rd prize Goldfinch is a very pretty little fellow.

The Lark and Pipit class was good in quality and variety, five species being represented in a class of 8 exhibits, including the Rock Pipit, a rarer bird, but not so taking as the Tree or Meadow Pipit. Mr. Lott's Skylark had rather an easy win this time, for the Skylarks were poorly represented in numbers; possibly the fact of Skylarks having to compete with the Pipits may have had some influence in the entry. The Novice Section struck us as a great improvement in quality over last year. The Goldfinch, 1st, and Bullfinch, 2nd, being quite good enough for the open class, both being specimens of great merit. We were sorry to see a good Goldfinch entered in the class for A.O.S. Finch or Bunting, as it stood with a "Wg. Cl." ticket instead of probably gaining a prize in the right class. The Hawfinch also looked good enough for the open class in any moderate competition. The winning Linnet we liked very much, also the Chaffinch 3rd prize, a very rich coloured bird. Mr. Hepwood's Chough and Mrs. Askew's Thrush are also worthy of special notice, both being in Al condition.

Messrs. Prior and Silver's Classes.

Mr. C. Prior judged Greenfinches and alternate classes. Mr. A. Silver the remainder. GREENE. (23 of them) reached a very high standard of merit, the winner, J. W. Ford, being a buff of magnificent size and type, sound in col., and solid in feather, a fine bold-headed bird, in the pink of cond.; 2, H. James, again a buff, shade smaller than leader, yet quite big, richer tone of col., lovely silver grey wings, in perfect trim; 3, Francis, big bounding nat. col. yell., golden wing flights well displayed, just short of finish by comparison only; 4, Fairhurst, col. fed yell., lovely qual. and fine polish; 5, Francis, good all-round hull; 6, Lawrence; 7, Gentleman, both nice headed yellows, perhaps too hotly fed, latter seemingly a trifle unwell. HAWFINCHES (14) were particularly fine, indeed, better than we remember seeing here yet: 1, Camm, a real wonder in contrasts of colouring, beautiful blue neck and rich nutty back, large shapely bib, perfectly clean cut, and densely black, sound head col., plenty of size, polished, and shown to perfection; 2, Sykes, big bird of the "barrel" type, hardly at his best yet, nice clean cut bib, rather pale on forehead, very steady and stylish, and doubtless assisted to his position by these latter qualities; 3, Caunt, grand size and rare bib, splendid back col., trifle faulty in wing carr.; 4, Axe, lovely col. throughout, smaller bib; 5, Oliver, very fine, bold, close feathered specimen, trifle cloudy in col., and not perfectly steaded yet, will do better; 6, Marley; 7, Parlett. GOLDF. (24): Both in numbers and quality these restored the L.C.B.A. traditions in a single leap after last year's comparative lapse: 1, Cottingham, a bonnie Goldie, blaze of exceptional purity and richest crimson col., which may possibly soon become too dark, carried well past the eyes and nicely down in front, though not over wide, and free from all suspicion of guttering, beautifully tanned breast and solid chestnut back, perfectly buttoned wings, and best of condition, clear win; 2, Fairhurst, thoroughly typical show Britisher, which with another bird of the size would be about the ideal, wonderfully brilliant square-cut blaze, of the correct pattern, nicely lanced and buttoned, but failing a little in these points to the winner, fascinating quality of feather and polish; 3, Stephens, holdout in size of the three, and equal to either in body points, large expansive blaze of good level col., could do with a little more style; 4, Bowler, equal to any in silkiness of feather and col., exceptionally well buttoned wings, lovely bloom, rather small and not enough blaze; 5, Burr, quite the correct type, perfect body feather, good large square blaze, which is not quite up, trifle bare round eyes; 6, H. James, nicely coned body, good wide face; 7, Maxwell, lovely type, grand square face, left down by comparative poverty of feather. LESSER REDPOLLS (25) presented a problem which so impressed the judge that he generously awarded four extra 7ths: 1, Miss Bousfield, chubby type, quite medium size, and rather pale col., prettily pencilled, lovely qual. of feather, fine bloom, not much bib, good wide skull; 2, Heal, more size than the winner, and richer col., falls to him in head, however, beautifully laced flanks, perfect trim; 3, Jeffreys, still bolder and beautifully mkd., very fine bib and polish; 4, Rees, delightfully steady, great all-round qual.; 5, Dr. Wilson, remarkable head and breast col., very perfectly trained and shown; 6, J. W. Ford; 7, Marley; ex. 7, McQuiston, Lloyd James, Handley, all real good. SISKIN, MEALY REDPOLL, AND TWITE (17): Only three Siskins turned up: 1, Francis, Mealy Redpoll, an all-round clinker, much more stylish than the average Mealy, plenty of size without excess of fat, extra line bib and lacing, cond. and col. Al, wins; 2, 4, Heal, former well-known Twite, still looking fit, excels in col., and the desirable display of white in wing flights, 4 charming Mealy Redpoll, another old friend, any amount of style, unfortunately had lost a few wing flights, and fails to win in subs.; 3, S. Jones, jun., very neat yell. Siskin, a la natural, nice bib and thigh tucking, on small side; 5, Duncan, good Twite, requires steady; 6, Francis, Mealy Redpoll, too fat; 7, McQuiston, Twite, not looking fit when judged. LINNETS (20): A very hot lot: 1, 2, McQuiston, both combining tremendous size with sound, rich col., in an altogether exceptional degree, this, coupled with grand wing flights and other markings, makes them had to beat, the second is the better marked, but does not show so well, otherwise we liked him better; 3, 5, Francis, former very bold, upstanding, lovely headed Linnet, nicely mkd., and in fine order, some way behind winners in soundness of col., latter well-known London winner, very thickly pencilled, failing in col.; 4, Nicholas, beautifully modelled and sweetly mkd., Al col., feathered like wax; 6, James; 7, Ford. BULF. (17): A capital class, and a creditable demonstration of the high-water mark now reached in moulting and staging the national feathered prototype: 1, Dr. Wilson, an embodiment of all that is good in the highest possible degree, the word perfection scarcely does him justice, marvellous purity and depth of breast col., grand back, exquisite feather, thoroughly British in character, although quite big, masterly staging; 2, Lloyd James, typical, though smaller, rich even breast col., of a less fiery tone than winner, capital back col., dense cap, beautifully polished, and well put down; 3, Tapper, more size again, and excellent col., staged on hard, smooth perches, on which he was far from comfortable, a handicap this; 4, Rutherford, very near the borderline that divides British from Continental, equal col. to anything after winner, less attractive in style; 5, McQuiston, nice one, of rather slim build; 6, Thomson; 7, Burr. BULF. HEN (9): 1, Sykes; 2, Rees; 3, McQuiston; 4, Lloyd-James, a quartette of charming damsels, as like as twin sisters, and sleek and tame as Robins; 5, Woods; 6, Gentleman; 7, Proce. CHAFFINCHES (16) were nice, but scarcely up to the best standard, the attractive contrasts of colouring which distinguish the ideal specimen being generally lacking, whilst a sort of chocolate self colour seemed the rule: 1, Marley, fine, big, solid feathered bird, excellent cond., good skull, nice head and neck col. for the season, good whites, not sufficient contrast in back and breast col., still a clear winner; 2, Francis, rather nearer the ideal in colouring, but shade finer in skull, and not so forward in blue head and neck col., and general cond.; 3, 4, Sykes, the former again, like winner, too self coloured, though in excellent feather, beaten by first in size and steadiness, the latter best in class when ready, but backward yet; 5, Vale; 6, Coe; 7, Gentleman. BRAMBLING (24): 1, Marley, stylish jonque, very nice mantle, and back spangling, moderate thigh lacing, has a weak back claw, fine trim, claimed at cat. price; 2, Mrs. Longden, rich col. and good back spangle, spectacles rather spoil him, scores by cond. and behaviour; 3, Parlett, stormer for size, col., qual., mantle, back spangle, and thigh lacing, must somehow have failed to do himself justice before the judge; 4, 5, Sykes, old champions, not quite in their old form; 6, Coe; 7, Stephens. YELLOW BUNTING (12): 1, Lloyd-James, one of the usual champion class associated with his name, tremendous width of skull, magnificent head and eye markings, grand body, pure rich natural col., perfectly staged; 2, Jones, not so very far behind, real good head, albeit lacking the subs. of winner, profusely pencilled, nicely fed without being overdone; 3, McGillivray, beautifully mkd. body and well defined head-markings, close up; 4, Coe, exceptional size and density of body markings, worth another moult; 5, Miss Bousfield; 6, J. W. Ford; 7, Marley; wrong class. MRS. SHIPTON, abnormally feathered specimen. VARIOUS BUNTINGS AND CROSBILL (11): A small but nicely assorted collection: 1, Marley, clinkling Corn Bunting, tremendous size, grandly pencilled, and in the pink of cond.; 2, Pearce, equally meritorious, and much more rare Cirl Bunting, in good order; 3, Frostick, remarkably good H.M. Snow, staged in great style; 4, Madame Feist-Made-well, perfect house-moulded Crossbill, now almost equally rare, busy with chillies and monkey-nuts; 5, 6, Marley, Cirl and Corn Buntings. FINCH AND BUNTING HENS EXCEPT BULF. (20): Quite a representative lot, and difficult to do justice to: 1, Cottingham, Hawfinch, beautifully feathered, with quite a respectable and clean cut bib, and rich col. for the sex; 2, Price and Fellows, the other extreme, a sweetly marked Siskin; 3, Gentleman, as fine a hen Yellowhammer as we have ever seen; 4, Heal, Corn Bunting (the sex of these has to be taken more or less on faith, this one certainly looked a hen), very tame indeed, and nicely feathered; 5, Miss Smyth, a dainty Chaffinch; 6, Woodcock, pretty Reed Bunting; 7, Andrews, smart Green. Several other worthy aspirants had to be most ungraciously passed over, not enough tickets, notably another Hawfinch which pressed winner hard, and at least one probable hen Corn Bunting.

Messrs. Robson and Silver's Classes

In the insectivorous classes Mr. J. Robson took the Thrush and alternate classes. Mr. A. Silver the remainder. THRUSHES, ETC. (16): A most interesting and comprehensive selection: 1, 2, 5, Marley, Blackbird, Ring Ouzel, and Missel Thrush respectively, a highly creditable team, the Blackbird doubtless one of the old champions, "niff said" the Ouzel, now very rarely staged, worth his place for this alone, the Missel Thrush an immense bird, with an almost perfect distribution of mouling, all of them in the best possible cond., and perfectly tame; 3, Lott, very lovely Song Thrush, much improved in ground col. since last year, beautiful regular arrowing, and best of cond., pluck reward, what competition for a Song Thrush; 4, Crawford, magnificent Fieldfare, if a better has ever been shown we have no recollection of it, deserved an extra first; wild and intractable as they usually are, this one was as docile as a Dove; 5, Lean and Son, capital Blackbird; 7, Miss Thynne, Song Thrush. The common, but beautiful, Starling quite crowded out. NIGHTINGALE, BLACKCAP, ETC. (17): 1, 3, Hon. Mrs. Bourke, two charming 'Gales, very little to choose both as near perfection as possible, the winner repeating his honour of 1909, very rich col., lovely shape, very tame, not a feather out of place, beautifully staged; 2, Maxwell, gem of a Blackcap, silky and well polished plumage, tight as wax, good cap and a grand olive tint, well worth its place; 4, Stone, another good Blackcap, in rare fettle, hardly so large, perfect cap, very steady; 5, Vale, Blackcap, not so good in col., very nice cond.; 6, H. James, 'Gale, in perfect feather, very steady; 7, Heik Nightingale, No. 12, Lund, a very promising youngster, also Greater Whitethroat, same owner. WARBLERS, WRENS AND CREEPERS (9) A very hot class, but the champion Dartford Warbler rightly added another victory to his long list of honours: 1, 4, Frostick, Dartford Warbler, very rightly named "Perfection," all agreed he won by "streets," and the owner is to be congratulated on its condition, it seems to improve in col. with age, the blending tints of brown and the movement of the tail make it a very interesting exhibit, 4th sweet little Jenny Wren, beautifully staged and quiet content in its cage; 3, Frost, honny Gold Crest, well shown, perfect in feather, lovely rich golden crest, very attractive; 2, 7, Tout, former a fine specimen of the somewhat rare Reed Warbler, sleek in feather, very like a miniature Nightingale in colouring, 7th a nice Gold Crest, tight in feather; 6, Mays, gem of a Treecreeper, shown in Mr. M.'s usual red-baize lined cage, beautifully marked and silvery white breast; 6, Frost, again a good Creeper, in perfect feather. FLYCATCHER, ETC. (7): 1, 2, Taylor, Black Redstart and Redstart respectively, both ideal, the former undoubtedly the best of the four of the same species in the class, very dense col., fine size and shape, 2nd as good a Redstart as possible, very rich reddish breast, clear white forehead, good frosting on throat, well staged; 3, Dewhurst, Wheatear, fine size, capital col., good eyemarks and very clear white marks on forehead, in splendid order; 4, Frost, another Black Redstart, smaller and not so deep in col. as 1st, tame and in perfect condition, probably younger; 5, Lean and Son, Black Redstart, in fine fettle; 6, Tout, Greater Wheatear. WAGTAILS (6): 1, 5, Tout, topping Yellow, beautifully fed, splendid body, capital eye-marks and not overdone with the col. feed, very nicely staged, we believe last year's winner at this show, 5th another nice Yellow (catalogued as Grey), very good colour and tame, not the subs. of 1st; 2, Mays, medium sized Grey, very clear white throat and eye-marks, deep breast col., very racy bird, took the perches well, beautifully staged; 3, Hatlaway, real good Grey, larger than 2nd, but fails in col., very steady, first class cond., well shown; 4, Mays, Yellow, not so large as 1st, good col., shows the black dots on breast as often occurs in autumn plumage, nice wing bars, and head markings; 6, Dewhurst, Grey, very big specimen, in good feather. LARKS AND PIPITS (8): 1, 3, 5, 7, Lott, very nice team of Mr. L.'s special favourites, winner a rare chested Skylark, beautiful upstanding bird, with a good bold chest, nice warm col. and well mkd., 3rd a clinking Shore Lark, clear head marks, rich plumage, perfectly tame, 5th Tree Pipit, we liked very much, full of bloom, deep markings, nice size, 7th another Skylark, with the bold carriage of 1st; 2, Goodall, Meadow Pipit, very nicely pencilled and rich tint of plumage, shapely, fine big bird, well staged; 4, Tout, rare Rock Pipit; 6, Mrs. Askew, Shore Lark, honny big bird, not the col. of 3rd. TITS, ETC. (13): 1, Dr. Lovell, grand pair of Bearded Redlings, cock beautifully mkd. on the head and throat, fine big birds, very well shown; 2, Frost, pretty pair of Long-tailed Tits, quite at home, tight as can be, perfect feather, and very tame; 3, 7, Miss Smyth, Marsh Tit and Cole Tit, both good specimens; 4, Rochl, good coloured Nuthatch, very interesting exhibit which seems to rarely get a "look in" now-a-days, well mkd. head, nice deep breast; 5, Mrs. Thynne, pretty pair of Bearded Redlings, tastefully shown; 6, Frostick, fine Long-tailed Tit, tight as wax, beautifully mkd. A.O.S. INSECTIVOROUS (5): 1, Marley, Great Grey Shrike, another old friend, looking better than ever, very tame, perfect feather and cond., clear grey back and white underparts, wins easily; 2, Frostick, nice Waxwing, good crest, rich body col., good cond.; 3, Frost, beautifully mkd. Wryneck, perfect lacing on throat and breast, colours on back well defined, good size, very steady; 4, McQuiston, Cornish Chough, very glossy, nice coloured legs and hank, but unfortunately the ends of hank cross badly, and want attention, very fit otherwise; 5, Miss Bousfield, Waxwing, large bird, but pale in colour. PIED ALBINO, ETC. (4): 1, Martin and Archer, well-known clear yellow Yellow Bunting, very shapely and perfect in feather, shows the Bunting characteristics too plainly to be mistaken for any other species; 2, Frostick, White Blackbird, yellow beak, perfect in feather and carries a lovely bloom; 3, 7, Wade, former a very pretty Goldfinch, white body, yellow flights, and slight trace of red blaze, very steady, taking exhibit, 7th a good ... whiter than 211, 4, Lamb, ...

Mr. A. J. Marley's Classes. OPEN NOVICE GODLE or BULLF. (9): 1, sp., Miss Mantell, topping Goldie, very rich tanning, grand square blaze, perfect tint of col., well buttoned and mooned, shows to perfection, well up in col.; 2, Hodden, clinking Bullie, very shapely, well polished ebony cap, rich breast, good clear back and snow-white rump; 3, Sadler, another good Goldie, good flights, not such a bold one as 1st, good buttons and moons; 4, Elliott, good rich coloured Goldie, capital tanning, perfect buttons and moons; 5, Carter, Bullie, good col. and size. LINNET, ETC. (10): 1, sp., Hobden, Linnet, fine shape, well pencilled, splendid head and throat markings, well polished, good enough for open class; 2, Collier, Siskin, good size and col., dense cap, clear wing bars, col. sound throughout, will improve; 3, Pettit, bonny Lesser Redpoll, nice bib, typical shape, very rich col., well mtd. on flanks, well shaped head; 4, Perks, another Linnet, shade paler, well pencilled, very shapely, steady as a rock; 5, 7, Sadler, F.M. Redpoll, good col. and cap, 7th Linnet, in fine condition; 6, Carter, Linnet, perfect plumage, nice chested, but falls in pencillings. A.O. FINCH or BUNTING (9): 1, sp., 3, Hepwood, topping Hawfinch, good enough for open competition, rich head and body col., perfect bib, well defined grey collar, wins well, rare bold carr., 3rd fine Chaff., very hot col., good white wing bars, rich back and head, very shapely and in splendid fettle; 2, Pettit, steady Corn Bunting, plenty of pencilling, rare size, well polished plumage; 4, 5, Miss Mantell, Yellow Bunting, heavily marked on head, will become clearer in yell., on the small side, 5th one Chaff. INSECTIV. (7): 1, Hepwood, Chough, good specimen, shines like satin, nice red legs and beak; 2, Simmonds, Bonny Thrush, beautifully spotted, very shapely, big bird and very tame, rich col. back and throat, a real good bird; 3, 4, Mrs. Askew, Blackbird and Thrush, both in capital trim, former well spotted, and good col. on back, Blackbird, rather slim, plumage well polished, good bill and eye cere.

Members' Hybrids and British-Members' Hyb. (4): 1, Buckingham; 2, Lamb; 3, Crabb; 4, Wade. GOLDF. (6): 1, Wade; 2, Marley; 3, 5, Francis; 4, Offord. BULLF. (3): 1, Wade; 2, Francis; 3, Marley. LINNET (2): 1, Francis; 2, Marley. SISKIN, ETC. (7): 1, Crabb; 2, 3, Marley; 4, 5, 7, Francis; 6, Offord. A.O.S. FINCH or Bunting (9): 1, 2, 3, Marley; 4, 5, Francis; 6, Offord; 7, Dewhurst. INSECTIV., SMALL (2): 1, 5, 7, Dewhurst; 2, Marley; 3, Mrs. Maher; 4, Wade; 6, Mrs. Thynne. LARGE (2): 1, 2, Dewhurst.

THE FOREIGN SECTION. Messrs. Seth-Smith and Astley's Classes.

The foreign section of this show cannot fail to be a notable one, if only because the conditions due to the national crisis through which we are passing may have appeared to make its success problematical. An exhibition that can muster 2 Humming Birds, a King Bird of Paradise, some 12 or more other species that were new to the show bench, and a whole host of rarities cannot be anything but notable, and must remain so for some considerable period. It was most regrettable that bad weather spoiled the gate on Saturday, so that the attendance of the public was considerably below the average. The interval between the show and our going to press does not permit of research, but the writer believes the following species to be first appearances on the show bench. Hahn's Macaw, Miss A. B. Smyth; Brown-fronted Conure, Mr. A. Silver; Aztec Conure, Mr. J. Frostick; Speckled Conure, Mr. C. T. Maxwell; Crimson-ringed Whydah, Mr. R. E. Simpson; Red-headed Bullfinch, Mr. A. Ezra; Montezuma Quail, Mr. J. Frostick; Garnet-throated Carib, Mr. A. Ezra; Ricordi's Humming Bird, Mr. A. Ezra; Bullock's Hainnest, Mr. A. Silver; Wedge-tailed Glossy Starling, Mr. A. Silver; White-eyed bordered Blue Flycatcher, Mr. A. Ezra; Tawny or Tamaulipas Thrush, Mr. B. T. Stewart; Black-gorgeted Thrushes (?), Dr. L. Lovell-Keays; Violaceous Hangnest (?), Mr. A. Silver; Wagler's Hangnest, Mr. A. Silver. Possibly there are others. Space forbids introductory comment on the grand array of Sunbirds, the fine entry of the Parrot tribe, the largest, I think, for some years, the interesting Hybrids, and other groups too numerous to mention. The foreign section was certainly a memorable one.

COCKATOOS AND MACAWS (6): 1, Miss A. B. Smyth, Hahn's Macaw, very rare, will greatly improve after another moult; 2, 4, Mrs. Taylor, Bar-eyed and L. Sulphur Crested Cockatoos; 3, Mason, smart Lemon-crest Cockatoo; 5, Newmarsh, Military Macaw, not tightly feathered; 6, 7, Dawson, Lemon-crested Cockatoos, an interesting lot of birds, most of whom talked amusingly at intervals. GREY AND AMAZON PARROTS (17): A goodly array of interesting and entertaining birds, many of them excellent talkers and mimics, the rarest among them being the Double-fronted and Salvin's Amazons. 1, Miss J. Smyth, Green-checked Amazon, a smart bird, in excellent form; 3, Frostick, Double-fronted Amazon, in fine form; 4, Silver, Salvin's and Mealy Amazons, both really smart birds; 5, Dewhurst, a good Grey Parrot; 6, Mrs. Johnston, Blue-fronted Amazon; 7, Ditchfield, another good Blue-front; no less than 6 each of

Blue-fronted Amazons and Grey Parrots were staged, of the latter only one caught the judge's eye. LOVEBIRDS, ETC. (16): An interesting class, most species of the Lovebirds being staged, and some of the smaller Parakeets, but the class contained nothing new. 1, 6, Miss A. B. Smyth, lovely Peach-faced Lovebirds, rich col., and a nice pair of Tui Parakeets; 2, Dr. Lovell-Keays, charming pair of Orange-flanked Parakeets, like silk, very tame; 3, 7, Maxwell, Black-faced Lovebird, grand col., and Peach-faced Lovebirds; 4, 5, Silver, Blue-winged and Madagascar Lovebirds, both pairs, in perfect form. A.O.S. PARROTS (14): An interesting array of beautiful species, and, we think, the rarest. Mrs. Moore's Short-tailed Parrot has not been previously staged. 1, Rev. G. H. Raynor, an excellent pair of Meyer's Parrots, with the yellow areas well developed, tight and silky; 2, Maxwell, Black-headed Calque, a beautiful exhibit, in good form; 3, Miss A. B. Smyth, another good pair of Meyer's Parrots, but still in the immature plumage, and not showing any yellow on the head at present; 4, Mrs. Frost, Senegal Parrot, rich col., very tame; 5, Mrs. Moore, Short-tailed Parrot, quaint, wee bit rough; 6, Frostick, Eclectus Parrot, in perfect plumage, lovely col.; 7, Miss Thynne, Red-vented Parrot, very smart. GREEN BUDGERIGARS (12): A good lot of these interesting and beautiful birds, not an exhibit, in really poor form, the general merit being much as placed, with the winners run very close by the 2nd prize birds, but nevertheless deserving their position. 1, Frostick; 2, Shipton; 3, Mrs. Longden; 4, Mrs. Bayley Ransom; 5, Tyson; 6, 7, Silver. RINGNECK, ETC. (16): An attractive array of many species, among which the Brown-fronted Conures (Conurus ocellaris), very similar to the Brown-throated, but lacking the blue crown and orange abdominal patch common to that species, the Aztec Conure (C. aztec), and the Speckled Conure (C. euops), all staged for the first time, we believe, yet the Malabar Parakeet fully deserved its position; it is in these days an uncommon species, while its condition was marvellous, the colouring very rich, beautifully blended, and not a feather out of place. 1, Dr. Lovell-Keays, Malabar Parakeet, a grand bird without blemish; 2, Miss Clare, Red-rump Parakeet, one of the best, but rather lucky in such company; 3, Mrs. Frost, Plum-head Parakeet, in fine form (2 and 3 evidently scored on condition over the rarer species); 4, Maxwell, Speckled Conure, a rare species, still showing a few pens; 5, Silver, splendid Rosella, a good bird, but the yellow margins to mantle-feathers not so rich as some; 6, 7, Frostick, Aztec Conure, rare, but not attractive, and wee bit rough, and a very tame Ringneck Parakeet, in perfect form, grand bloom. LORIES, ETC. (7): Lories, Lorikets, etc., mostly appeal to all, because of their gorgeous coloration, which is certainly very striking, and this class certainly contained a glare of tropical brilliancy. 1, 4, Maxwell, Crimson-fronted Lory, rare, in perfect form, and an equally good pair of Red-collared Lorikets, very rich col.; 2, Mrs. Moore, charming Red-capped Hanging Parakeet, rich col., tight and silky; 3, Smith, Yellow-backed Lories, a grand pair, in perfect form; 5, Mrs. Longden, Red-collared Lory, grand col.; 6, Rochl, pair Red-collared Lorikets, very tight, not good col.; 7, Frostick, Crimson Lory, smart and beautiful exhibit, in good form. A.O.S. BROADTAILS (4): The paucity of entries here is surprising, as many of this group are kept, but not very often in cages, and therein presumably lies the reason. 1, Hon. Mrs. Morrison, pair Mealy Rosellas, very tame, good col.; 2, Frostick, King Parakeet, rich col., good form; 3, Mrs. Frost, a good Barnard's Parakeet; 4, Shipton, Yellow-naped Parakeet, wee bit rough. GRASS PARAKEETS, ETC. (2): A disappointing entry, but both exhibits grand birds, and in finest condition, though the leading birds were looking a bit soft on the last day of the show. 1, Miss Clare, grand pair Queen Alexandra Parakeets; 2, Miss A. B. Smyth, exquisite Bourke's Parakeet, without a blemish. WEAVERS, Whydahs, ETC. (11): A most interesting class, containing specimens of the rare Crimson-ringed and Jackson's Whydahs, the former, however, needs to pass another moult before it will do itself justice, and it had, moreover, evidently knocked itself about a little during transit, but in spite of these defects, it was in good condition, and simply lacked depth of colour, and seemed to be rather hardly treated. The class contained a melanistic Orange Weaver, entirely brownish black, with the orange areas only obscurely indicated by the bases of the feathers. 1, Maxwell, Jackson's Whydah, easy first, grand tail, not a blemish; 2, Mrs. Longden, Queen Whydah, one tail feather missing, otherwise grand form, trifle lucky; 3, Frost, very fine pair Scaly-crowned Weavers, gems, but lucky in such company; 4, Simpson, Crimson-ringed Whydah, very rare, not yet reached full depth of col.; 5, Dr. Lovell-Keays, Brown-backed Weaver, a gem, but rather wild; 6, Goodall, Paradise Whydah, tail wee bit rough; 7, Wade, Orange Weaver, but entirely brownish-black (melanistic), good specimens of Orange and Crimson-crowned Weavers also staged. DOVES, QUAILS, ETC. (7): 1, 7, Frostick, Emerald Spotted Dove and Button Quail, the former perfect and steady, but somewhat lucky; 2, Stone, Californian Quail, exquisite condition, also a bit fortunate; 3, Madame Madewell, Masked Doves, wee bit soft; 4, Frostick, Montezuma Quail, very striking, might have been first; 5, Harris, pair Triangular Spotted Pigeons, perfect and steady, we liked for second; 6, Wallington, Cape Doves. HUMMING BIRDS, ETC. (8): Every exhibit a gem of the first water, and excepting for the Humming Birds, most of the others might, if practicable, have been placed equal. I would like to enlarge upon the wondrous coloration to be found here, but if I did the Editorial Censor would spoil all with his blue pencil, so I bow to fate and pass on. Equal 1 (2), Ezra, Garnet-throated Carib and Ricordi's Humming Bird, we have noted these gems elsewhere; 2, 3, 5, Ezra, Greater Double-collared Southern Malachite and Lesser Double-collared Sunbirds, each perfect, and a gem, to describe them is impossible, their plumage glitters like rubies, diamonds and sapphires, etc., ever changing with the play of light; 4, 6, 7, Maxwell, Red Sunbird, a marvellous specimen, cage moulted, and yet retaining full natural colour, Lesser Red-collared and Southern Malachite Sunbird. This class was, of course, the centre of attraction, owing to the unique rarity of the Humming Birds, but the Sunbirds are but little below these marvels of the feathered world in beauty, grace and interest, and Messrs. Ezra and Maxwell are to be congratulated on such rare and exquisite birds. SUGAR BIRDS, ETC. (8): Another gorgeous array, running the former class very close for beauty and interest. The Australian Zosterops have not appeared on the show bench for many years, even if they are not making their first appearance, all the others, however, are well-known species. 1, Miss Clare, Australian Zosterops or White-eyes, beautiful and unique, good first; 2, Hon. Mrs. Bourke, exquisite pair Purple Sugar

Birds, grand col., perfect in every way; 3, Lady Pilkington, Black-headed Sugar Bird, in perfect trim; 4, Dr. Lovell-Keays, Purple Sugar Bird; 5, Silver, pair Yellow-winged Sugar Birds, in perfect form, but cock in winter plumage. CERTAIN NAMED TANAGERS (3): Very disappointing entry. 1, 2, Silver, cock Violet and pair Tri-coloured Tanagers; 3, Miss Bousfield, Maroon Tanager. A.O. TANAGERS (5): Another disappointing class as to numbers, but some exquisite birds were staged, including two rarities, though not new to the bench. 1, 2, Lady Pilkington, Blue-headed Tanager, very rare, violet black above, golden-chestnut beneath, with enamel-blue cap like silk, faultless, and Black-checked Tanager, these two might well have been placed equal firsts, the delicate and ever-changing hues of the latter are impossible to describe; 3, Miss Bousfield, exquisite Pestic Tanager, not one whit below above in condition or beauty, but not quite so rare, a difficult species to keep; 4, Maxwell, Blue-headed Tanager, young bird, moult not complete; 5, Stone, Necklace Tanager, hit soft. BULBULS, ETC. (11) The rarest bird, the Black-crested Yellow Bulbul, is a handsome bird of fine contour, black above, and greenish-golden-yellow beneath, it has an upstanding crest, also a fine song, and makes an ideal cage bird. A welcome re-appearance was a cock Blue Robin; 1, Lady Kathleen Pilkington, Black-crested Bulbul, rare, perfect, good 1st; 2, Shepherd, Blue Robin, a well-known favourite of the past, in fine form; 3, Silver, Pekin Robin, very rich col., tame and silky; 4, Frostick, Dhyal Bird, in fine form, a picture; 5, Miss A. B. Smyth, Shama, perfect cond.; 6, Miss J. Smyth, nice pair Pekin Robins; 7, Maxwell, another good Pekin. CROWS, MYNAHS, ETC. (12) A class of more than usual interest, containing at least two species new to the bench, and the Purple-headed Glossy Starling makes a welcome re-appearance; 1, Silver, pair Purple-headed Glossy Starlings, perfect in every way, better pair never staged; 2, Frostick, Yucatan Jay, a rare and beautiful species, which made its debut at this show last year, a beautiful arrangement in blue and black, with yellow bill, legs and feet; 3, Mrs. Thynne, Chinese Starling; 4, Shepherd, Mynah, the well-known winner; 5, Miss Hawkes, Black and Yellow Troupial; 6, Wade, good Purple-headed Glossy Starling; 7, Frost, pair Cambodian Starlings. Two very rare birds, the writer thinks first appearances, failed to obtain recognition, though in perfect order, viz., Bullock's Haugnest, a striking arrangement of guinea-gold, black and white, and a shapely bird withal; the other the Wedge-tailed Glossy Starling. The birds catalogued as Chinese, Chinese Rosy, and Cambodian Starlings were all the same species. HYBRIDS, ETC. (9) A welcome increase here and all most interesting. The Red-headed Ribbon Finch hybrids were all bred from the same source, and while the underparts of one pair favoured the Ribbon Finch, the others were almost as well and cleanly spotted as the Red-headed Finch; both cocks had the red pectoral band and a partially red-head. In size they ran the Red-heads very close. In the other hybrids, in most cases they about equally favoured both parents, Miss Smyth's Bulbul hybrid being of perhaps the greatest interest, though the Greenfinch-Himalayan Siskin runs it very close in this respect; 1, 2, Miss A. B. Smyth, Red-vented-Red-eared Bulbul, favours the latter species most, the former species being indicated in the modified crest, and lightish mottled underparts, 2nd Red-headed-Ribbon Finch hybrids, underparts favour the Ribbon Finch; 3, 5, Shore Bally, Green-Himalayan Siskin, in size and form a small Greenfinch, with the plumage of both parents well indicated, and Spice Finch-Bib Finch, a pretty hybrid about the size of a Bronze Mannikin, dark brown above, tawny-brown beneath, with a white bib margined by a black border; 4, Silver, Red-headed-Ribbon Finch, underparts favour the Red-headed Finch; 6, Wade, Magpie Mannikin-Bengalese, white, with patches of grey-brown on back and wings, larger, and with longer tail than Bengalese; 7, Mrs. Longden, Silverbill-Bengalese, a handsome hybrid in which the Silverbill parentage predominates. FLYCATCHERS, ETC. (7) Not a numerous entry, but each a rare gem; with grace, elegance, character and beauty as the chief characteristics, and if only one is a first appearance, several of the individual birds only made their debut last year; 1, 2, 4, 5, A. Ezra, White-eyed-browed Blue and White Flycatcher, a dainty sprite, clad in blue and pure white, with a long name, it is a first appearance and another of India's gifts to aviculture; Small Minivet, another exquisite from the same far-off land, clad in blue, white and pink, but on its native heath it wears a garment of blue and flame-red; Red-tailed Minla, a Tit clad in a contrasty garment of brown, black and white, with red margins to wing and tail feathers; and, last but not least, the Rufous-bellied Niltava, a gorgeous arrangement of glittering blue and golden rufous-chestnut, a grand team and each faultless; 3, c, Lady Pilkington, Black-ohinned Yuhinas, a fascinating small Babbler from India's sunny clime; and Loo Choo Robin, a charming songster from the Islands which give him his name; 7, Mason, Japanese Red-breast, well-known prize winner looking as well as ever. BIRDS OF PARADISE (4): 1, Ezra, King Bird of Paradise, suffice it to say that its regal garment was faultless and its resplendent beauty beyond description. I think a first appearance, quaint, handsome and full of character; 3, Stewart, Tamaulipas Tawny Thrush, in fine form, rare but not beautiful.

Mr. R. J. Watts's Classes.

The classes which fell to the lot of Mr. R. J. Watts to judge mostly comprised freely imported species, but in beauty of plumage most of the well-known foreign birds vie with the rarest, and that a charming collection of exquisitely feathered foreigners is within the purchasing power of all was here made evident. Condition all round was of the very best, and practically every exhibit compelled admiration. The winning pair of Combassous, Mr. F. Howe, were perfection personified; the delicate beauty of the Gold-breasted, St. Helena, Sydney, and other Waxbills exhibited was absolutely fascinating; richness of colour in the plumage was represented by the Violet-eared Waxbills, Parrot Finches, Fire Finches, and many others, while the many perfect Gouldian Finches, the Rainbow Buntings, etc., had a gorgeousness equal to many of the fruit-eating and insectivorous birds which lent so much attractiveness and fascination to the section as to make the show a memorable one indeed. The class for True Finches, etc., was one of the most interesting in the show, the leaders being a first introduction of their species, Red-headed Bullfinches, to the show bench. The Sepoy Finch in this class is an old friend, now cage-moulted, and looking as well as ever, though the richness of its wild colour has, of course, been lessened with a moult in captivity. Dr. Lovell Keay's Columbian Siskins came in for a deal of admiration, and the beautiful foreign Hawfinches, the Black-tailed pair shown by Miss A. B. Smyth, and the 1st prize by Mr. ... in their docility and perfection as could possibly be imagined.

YELL. BUDGERIGARS, ETC. (9): 1, Shipton, beautiful pair Yellow Budgerigars, could win anywhere, fine size, perfect feather, steady, really yell. in col., shown well; 2, 4, 5, 6, Silver, faultless pair of Fawn and White Bengalese leading, very lovely, 4 Yellow Budgerigars, bit greenish in tone, and not so steady as might be, 5 nice Brown and White Mannikins, 6 lovely pair of spotless White Javas, hen just a little black in neck feather, otherwise a faultless couple; 3, Madame Madewell, beautifully pure cock Java, presumably one of the well known pair often shown; 7, Miss Smyth, MANNIKINS, ETC. (7): 1, Howe, beautiful pair of White-headed Mannikins, in perfect plumage, very steady and well shown; 2, Miss Bousfield, magnificent pair Grey Javas, typifying the expression "tight as a Java," perfect all round; 3, 4, 5, Silver, good pair Magpie Mannikins, fine size even for this large species, nice plumage and very steady, 4 beautiful Tricoloured pair, 5 sweet little Bronze Mannikins; 6, Simpson, perfect Nutmeg Finches; 7, Wade, Magpie Mannikin. RIBBON FINCHES, ETC. (18): 1, 4, Howe, exquisite pair of Combassous, cock shining with the metallic lustre only seen when in perfect cond., hen a worthy mate of so beautiful a bird, equally clock in plumage, 4 finest possible pair of Ribbon (Cutthroat) Finches that could be imagined, tight as wax, a wonderful couple; 2, Buckingham, champion pair Silverbills, perfection in all respects; 3, Mrs. Thynne, nice Zebra Finches, cock seemed a bit dull in demeanour at times, perhaps a bit lucky to beat the 4th winners; 5, 6, Silver, lovely Saffron Finches, bit wild, will improve, and pair of Combassous; 7, Hathaway, Zebra Finches, we liked better than the 3rd for their fine cond., trifle small. GOULDIAN FINCHES, ETC. (11): 1, 2, Miss Bousfield, cock Red-headed and pair Black-headed, the finest examples of these gorgeously coloured Australians possible to imagine, beautiful as the winner was, we preferred the magnificent pair of Black-heads for premier position, "perfection" describes both exhibits; 3, Row, nice Red-heads, cock somewhat dull in crimson of face, hen a beauty all over; 4, 7, Frostick, two lovely pairs of Black-heads, 4 might have replaced 3 for fine cond., cock especially fine; 5, Muscott, 6, Mrs. Longden, FIRE-TAILED FINCHES, ETC. (8): 1, Row, fine pair Fire-tailed, a bit shy, lovely plumage, markings well displayed; 2, 6, Dr. Lovell-Keays, beautiful Parrot Finches, sprightly, tight in plumage, deep crimson faces, nice pair, and a smallish Rainbow Bunting; 3, 5, Maxwell, leader, very good Rainbow Bunting, rather a drop from comparatively recent times, when the first shown specimen aroused such admiration, few would have criticised if it had been placed 2nd here; 5, Parrot Finches, shade rough; 4, Miss Bousfield, extra large Pin-tailed Nonparadi, intense colorings, but not so nice in plumage as 7, Mrs. Longden, a very perfect cage-moulted one. A.O.S. GRASSFINCHES, ETC. (13): 1, Miss Bousfield, pair of Masked Grassfinches, delicious in their perfection of plumage, steady and well shown; 2, Goodchild, good pair Diamouid Finches, not quite so brilliantly spotted as some; 3, 7, Frostick, Long-tailed Grassfinches, in magnificent leather, cock a bit nervous, which probably lost them 2nd prize, 7, nicest pair of Chestnut-breasted that could be imagined, finest possible cond.; 4, Frost, good Diamond Finches, not quite the size of those above them, perfect cond.; 5, Row, Bichenca Finches, should do better when they show themselves to more advantage, very shy; 6, Silver, pair Red-headed Finches, would not show. AFRICAN FIRE FINCHES, ETC. (22): 1, Buckingham, sweet pair Golden-breasted Waxbills, superlative cond., lovely col., and beautiful markings; 2, 7, Brumbridge, lovely African Fire Finches, a perfect pair, and excellent pair Cordon Bleus; 3, Howe, nice Cordon Bleus, hen much the better bird, quite dwarfs the cock by comparison; 4, Silver, Lavender Finches, cock rather rough in plumage, hen very beautiful; 5, Goodchild, nice Green Avadavat, rather small for the species, good plumage, nicely barred; 6, Maxwell, very good African Fire Finches. COMMON AVADAVATS, ETC. (12): 1, 5, Howe, both St. Helena Waxbills, leader cock, 5 a hen, equal in perfection of plumage, beautifully shown; 2, Miss Bousfield, quite a perfect pair of Grey Waxbills, silky plumage, sweet little couple; 3, Dr. Lovell-Keays, lovely Orange-cheeks, pretty as paint; 4, Mrs. Thynne, pair St. Helenas, lovely plumage, distinctly mtd., shade smaller than 1st winner, but equally perfect in all else; 6, 7, Silver, nice Greys and Orange-cheeks respectively. A.O.S. WAXBILLS (10): 1, Miss Bousfield, Violet-eared, satiny plumage, lovely coloration, extra fine size; 2, Mrs. Thynne, delicious pair Sydneys, quite faultless, we liked as well as the winner for top place, best possible pair imaginable; 3, Howe, Melba, lovely face and breast col., very distinct body markings, perfect cond.; 4, Mrs. Longden, Violet-eared, not so bright in col. as 1st, but lovely cond., looks to be a cage-moulted one, which would account for the loss of brilliancy of the plumage; 5, Frost, good pair of Blue-breasted, hen a bit soft, cock a lovely bird; 6, Silver, Bar-breasted Fire Finches, a great rarity, not seen on the bench for many years, cond. kept them from top of the class; 7, Dr. Lovell-Keays, Violet-eared. CARDINALS (6): 1, Frost, very fine pair Virginians, nice plumage, cock very brilliant in coloration; 2, 3, 5, Silver, Pope in lovely plumage, but exceedingly wild, champion of its kind when steaded; 3 very good Green, shows better than the Pope; 5, Silver, nice Virginian, deeper in crimson than the 1st, very good bird indeed; 6, Rochl, nice Grey, very interesting to have four species of Cardinals together. A.O.S. FINCHES (8): The most interesting class of all among the seed-eaters; 1, sp, diploma, best in 13 all seed-eating classes, Ezra, Red-headed Bullfinches, a seed-eating class, Ezra, Red-headed Bullfinches, in general first appearance on the show bench. In general body col. both sexes greatly resemble our own hen Bullfinch, but neither has any black cap, both birds have a black mask extending back over the eyes, and are slightly reddish on the crown, the cock showing most of this colour; 2, Hathaway, very fine cage-moulted Sepoy Finch, lovely cond., but here we thought it lucky to beat 3, Dr. Lovell-Keays, beautiful pair of Columbian Siskins, these sweet little things came in for a lot of richly deserved admiration; 4, Miss Smyth, perfect pair Black-tailed Hawfinches, tip-top condition, steady, and beautifully shown; 5, Silver, Japanese Hawfinch, tight in leather as a Waxwing, steady as a rock, a lovely exhibit; 6, Larking, Himalayan Goldfinch, another rarity, in perfect condition; 7, Mrs. Cloupe, Alario Finch. No one envied the judge his task of sorting out this lot. SELL. FOR. (3): 1, Reed, Red-headed Gouldian; 2, 3, Maxwell, Greater Amethyst Sun-bird and Violet Tanager. MEMBERS' SEED-EATING FOR. (6): 1, Wade; 2, Miss Bousfield; 3, 5, 6, Silver; 4, Mrs. Thynne. INSECTIVOROUS (7): 1, Abraham's memorial cup, 2, 5, Silver, winner a rare Wagler's Hangnest; 3, 7, Dewhurst, Metallic Starling, and our old friends the pair of Coleys; must now be at least seven years old; 4, 6, Shepherd.

Several reports of members' shows are unavoidably held over owing to pressure on space due to reports of open shows, but they will appear in due course.—Editor.

ALL JUDGES AND SHOWS SHOULD USE OUR JUDGING BOOK.

The advantage this book has over others is that it has 3 columns for awards, and is therefore a great help to, and a double check for judges, while there is always a slip free to be sent to the printers of the catalogue. Prices:—1 Copy, 6d. post free. 6 Copies 2/6 post free. 12 Copies 4/5 post free. A sample page on application to "CAGE BIRDS," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

PAISLEY.

22nd annual show of the Paisley O.A., Nov. 23, Tannahill Hall, a suitable one for the purpose, comfortable in every respect. Birds were neatly staged on three tier shelving and were all seen to the best advantage. Entries were about the same as last year, and some grand specimens were shown. Many old fanciers travelled a considerable distance to meet old friends at this popular exhibition. This progressive body of fanciers caters for the novices who have a good list of specials entirely for their own competition. See Neil O'Donnell had all arrangements well in hand. Unfortunately he has not been well for some time, but was able to turn out later in the day. Mr. Lambie, sec. of the New Year fixture, rendered valuable assistance during his absence, aided by a capable band of office-bearers: Pres., Mr. A. Livingston; vice-pres., Mr. Thomas Hamilton; committee, Messrs. A. M. Baird, J. Kennedy, Mr. A. Livingston; vice-pres., Mr. Thomas Hamilton; Mr. A. M. Baird, J. Kennedy, Mr. A. Livingston, Neil Paterson, A. Baird, A. Kennedy, and John Hart, who all worked well for success. Mr. Allardice (Wishaw) won cup and gold medal for best young bird, Mr. J. D. Brown (East Kilbride) gold medal opposite sex. First novice sp., Wilson; 2nd, Frew; 3rd, Jackson. The judges were Messrs. J. Main (Coatbridge), R. Price (Barrhead), A. McLachlan (Govan), and A. Baird (Paisley), and their awards were well received.

CL. YELL. CK.: 1, Gray, good size and thickness through, fine reach and length of wing, grand action; 2, Muir, only falls size and depth, full of fire, gets head well down and pulls hard all the time; 3, Muir, better size and thickness, scarcely so good action; 4, Strathern, hard up, fine reach, gets tail well under, trille short in body; 5, Caldwell; 6, Lyon; 7, D. PROVINCIAL ROLLER C.S.

A Success at Manchester.

7th annual exhibition at headquarters, the Old Boar's Head, Corporation Street, Manchester, Nov. 27-28. It appears to one who visits the different contests, that Roller societies vie one with another who can provide the most suitable room for the purpose. The showroom is heated from both ends, and lighted by electricity. Mr. Percival, the sec., makes a good working foreman, and superintended two hard-worked stewards in Messrs. A. Leuch and H. Clarke. In previous years the shows have been held in the Coal Exchange, Belle Vue, Bury, and at headquarters, but the latter place was always the most popular with the visitors; and for their comfort this year the centre row of staging had been abandoned. The Roller Fancy in general has proved itself stamnel, for notwithstanding the increased calls upon their purses, they rallied well to Manchester's support. I am requested to convey a word of thanks to all concerned. Birds that arrived late on Friday morning were allowed to feed and rest before they went to the judges' rooms. Four judges were engaged, and judging went ahead well while daylight lasted, with the exception of the novice class, where entries were very large. All birds were on the judges' tables during the daylight, and it was only the tail end of the classes that were finished off in electric light. The very low number of birds marked "no song" was remarkable. Sky singers were allowed two hours. Faulty Bell Gluckes seemed to be on the increase; they could be heard, too. That some birds had been giving trouble was evident, for the very low number of their points told that they had not done their duty, either to themselves, the judges, or their owners. In Classes 1 and 2, prize money and specials were given for the first six birds, and specials for the next three. In Classes 3 and 5 prize money and specials for the first four; while Class 4 had prize money and specials for the first four birds, and specials for the next two. Specials took the form of silver cups, medals, Canaries, portraits, and cash. Portraits seem to be exclusive as specials with the Provincial, but they are a work of art. Entries were received from London, South and North Staffs, Lancs., and Yorks, being well represented. Scotland was represented by Mr. Stewart, of Ayr. A good number of visitors attended during Saturday, and amongst them were fanciers from Leeds, Wakefield, Liverpool, Southport, Wrexham, Wigan, Bolton, etc., etc. Mr. Unsworth wins the Provincial trophy for the current year. In the report which follows, the abbreviations are: H.R. hollow roll, H.B. hollow bell, Sch., schockel, W.G. water glucke, B.R. bell roll, B.T. bell tour, W.R. water roll, D.B.W.T. deep bubbling water tour, G.E. general effect.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1) All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.
(2) The proper name and address in full of querist must always be written on a separate sheet of paper, and enclosed with the query.
(3) Queries intended for different specialists must not be written on the same sheet of paper.
(4) Queries must not include or be included in orders for books, instructions re advertisements, or any other matter for publication.
(5) The department to which the queries refer must be stated on the left-hand corner of the query.
(6) If an answer in the same week's issue is desired queries must be posted to reach us by Monday's first post at latest.
(7) If an answer by post is desired from our specialists, a postal order for sixpence must accompany any query relating to sickness of birds, or a shilling in ordinary enquiries, with a stamped and addressed envelope in either case. Dead birds must not be sent to the office (see Post-mortems.)
(8) All who desire letters of complaint written to advertisers must state grounds for doing so clearly and fully, and enclose a fee of sixpence. All the fees received from this source will be handed over in full to the "Referee's" Poor Children's Fund (London).
(9) All queries must be addressed to the Editor, "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C. Postcards are not admissible.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

FEEDING ROLLER-YORKSHIRE (R. W. J.).—I take it the bird is a crossed Roller-Yorks. You should feed and treat it just the same as you would a Norwich or any ordinary variety. Give as staple a mixture of three parts Canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately every second day either a pinch of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, and broken groats, or half a teaspoonful of egg food, or the equivalent in bread and milk. Of course, you will ring the changes on these items, giving first one and then another, not more than one on the same day. Give a morsel of green salad daily in summer, and three times a week in the colder months as long as you can procure it free from frost and wet, and in a sound, healthy condition, and when greenstuff is not fit to use substitute a little sweet fruit—banana or apple for preference. Allow it to bathe as freely as it likes in bright warm weather, but during the winter two or three times a week will suffice. The jet being on the opposite side of the room to the bird, there will be no risk whatever from the gas, particularly if it is burnt economically. But you should see that the bird is free from direct cold draughts, and do not hang it high up near the ceiling. For fuller details of general management, you should get a copy of the Nutshell Booklet No. 5, on "The Canary," which our manager would send you for 2d., post free.
NORWICH CONTINUALLY MOULTING (R. W.).—You are probably keeping the bird under unsuitable conditions, where it is exposed to cold draughts or extremes of temperature. It may be too near a fire, which goes out at night and leaves the situation very cold in the early morning hours, after being correspondingly warm by day.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Boltje's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Avaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries." or it may be near or over a burning light in the evenings. Any or all of these exciting causes must be removed before you can hope to remedy the effect. Keep the bird in a fairly equable temperature, not necessarily very warm, nor yet quite on the cold side, and see that it is free from direct cold draughts. Give a staple diet of a mixture of three-parts canary seed to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, millet, teazle, and broken groats, and on the alternate days a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed. Dissolve half a drachm of ammoniated citrate of iron and quinine in an ounce of sherry, add a teaspoonful of glycerine, and give twenty drops of this mixture in the drinking water two days in every three for a week, and then every second day until the feathers cease dropping. Continue this treatment generally until the moulting is quite stopped. The bird is not likely to sing until the moulting is stopped, but should resume its full song soon after that time.

EARLY PREPARATIONS (B. K.).—It would have been very helpful if you had said whether the old buff cock was from an even-marked strain, and also whether the pair of old birds are related at all, as it would enable me to give a more definite reply. As you mention no markings, I take it that the five young yellows are all clears. If you wish to try exclusively for even marks, you might as well discard the young buff cock with mark on head, and run six pairs instead of seven, but if you decide to mate him, get a tail or wing-marked hen from an even-marked strain to pair him with, and let the wing marks, if a wing-marked is selected, be very light, say, three or four feathers in each wing. As regards your definite questions. (1) Yes, put the old pair together again on the chance of a marked bird being produced, in which case pair it back the following season to the parent of the opposite sex. (2) If the breeder from whom you got the old pair runs a stock of any size, particularly if he has a strain of even-marked birds, it would be an advantage rather than otherwise to get the birds for mating with your young ones from that source, but you should ask for stock that is not closely related to the old pair. Or, you may get three of the five birds that come of an even-marked strain from elsewhere. The latter course would enable you to go on longer without introducing fresh blood. (3) You should get hens of an even-marked strain, and as closely approaching marked specimens as you can get failing actually even or uneven marked birds. At the same time you must see that they match your birds as well as possible in colour, type, and other essential features. Besides the hen suggested above for the buff cock, have at least three marked or ticked birds, wing and eye marks preferred, and two clears from even marked parents. Avoid splashes of colour on head or breast.

A YORKSHIRE DUET (M. S.).—(1) Place the hen in a fairly warm position for a time, but do not overdo the thing, and give half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake, with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, every second day for a week or so, and on the alternate days give in the water five drops each of oxymel of squills, ipecacuanha wine and sweet spirit of nitre. You should be careful to avoid as far as possible a very great drop in the temperature during the night. This may be the cause of the bird's trouble. (2) It is useless speculating about the cause of this bird's sudden death. Most probably it was the result of an apoplectic seizure, but nothing short of a post-mortem could reveal it with any degree of certainty.

TO EXTERMINATE GREY LICE (Danree, U.S.A.).—If the birds are at all badly infested, the quickest and surest method of clearing out the lice is to hand-wash the birds twice with an interval of a week between, and in the first two waters used in the process mix a little Croolin—a teaspoonful to a pint of water. Whilst the birds are drying, also clean the cages, and thoroughly wash them, and all perches and appliances, with a warm solution of Croolin, of the strength named. For a week or two from the time of the first washing give a bath every third day with a teaspoonful of sulphuretted potash dissolved in each pint of the bathing water. If you are not skilful at hand-washing, and cannot get it done for you, give the potash bath alone every second day until all trace of the insects has quite disappeared, but in following this method you must not omit the cleaning and washing of the cages and appliances twice a week either with the Croolin or the potash solution; either may be employed.

BORDERS SHELLING SEED (T. H.).—The birds are suffering from digestive derangement, and the following treatment should soon set matters right. Give a staple diet of three-parts canary to one part summer rape. In addition, give separately every second day a piece of bread and milk the size of a small walnut, sprinkled with soft sugar, to each bird, and if it is obtainable in good condition a small spray of watercress, and on the alternate days give half a teaspoonful of a mixture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle and millet, and a morsel of banana. In the drinking water give six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence every second day for a week, and afterwards substitute four drops each of tincture of gentian, tincture of calumba, and dilute sulphuric acid every second day for a fortnight or so.

SWELLING ON LEG (Miss E. Young).—At an earlier stage than this it might have been useful to paint the swelling with tincture of iodine, but it is too late now, as it would only increase the irritation and make the bird pick it more. It is undoubtedly a serious abscess, and only two courses are now open to you, either of which should only be carried out by a qualified veterinary surgeon or a kindly disposed medical man. First, injections of iodine, to cause absorption; secondly, free incision, with after treatment to induce healing from the bottom of the abscess. It may help the bird if you keep the bowels rather free for a time by adding a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, and ten drops of lemon juice to the drinking water three or four times a week, but do not make the droppings watery loose.

BALD HEAD AND NECK (H. G.).—To be successful, treatment should coincide with a normal moult of the bird. But you may try the effect of the following treatment for a month or so. Feed as advised in the first part of reply to "Miss Nicholson," November 7, but instead of the cod liver oil and sherry in the sponge cake, slightly dust it with flour of sulphur and sprinkle with maw seed. On the days when you do not give the soft food, add to the water 20 drops of whisky, ten of lemon juice, and as much chlorate of potash as will cover a threepenny-piece. Continue to slightly moisten the bare skin with sulphur ointment twice a week for a month, but do not use it liberally enough to soil the plumage.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

FEEDING YELL. BUNTING (Novice).—The staple food for the Yellow Bunting is sound canary seed; of this they never appear to tire, but at the same time it is as well to supply them with something else. Offer a little rape, cracked hemp, small oats, maw, and any good wild seed mixture you can obtain. They should also have a little insect life occasionally. Soak a few good ants' eggs in new warm milk, drain off in a cloth, and offer in a suitable vessel; these make a nice change in diet. When you get them to eat the ants' eggs you can mix just a little good insect life food with these. All these things should be given a little at a time, so as to vary the bird's diet. You are quite right in separating the fighters, they can perhaps be put together later on. Let them see each other if it can be managed.

FEEDING A TWITE (Springburn).—Your birds should do well on the food you are giving them, although I would advise you to slightly increase the quantity of teazle. Twites are very liable to put on flesh, and should not be fed heavily with fattening seeds. To give salts occasionally is good, but I would not give the iron, they do not need it unless they are low in condition or are recovering from some illness. You make no mention of green food or wild seeds; you should supply these, only see that the green food is not touched with fro. If you have no wild seeds stored you can obtain some in packet form from any good corn merchant. Are you supplying plenty of good sharp sand or grit? This is necessary.

LINNET IN MOULT (A. Phillips).—No doubt the fright had something to do with your Linnet dropping into a soft moult. You do not say how you are feeding him, but I would advise the following:—For stock mixture give canary 3 parts, teazle 2 parts, rape, charlock, linseed, 1 part each. Make up another mixture of equal parts gosh of pleasure, niger, and maw; give a spoonful of this twice a week, and a spoonful of good wild seed mixture on other days. Three times a week crack a little gosh for him. This should help to bring him along, and get him once more into condition, when the dropping of feathers will cease. An occasional dose of Chemical Food in his drinking water will not do any harm just now; put a small teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water that has been previously boiled. Keep him in an even temperature free from draughts, and let him bathe on bright days; he should do this in the early part of the day.

PLAN OF AVIARY (E. F. Thregey).—I have examined your plan and would advise one or two alterations, or I fear your aviary will not be a success. In theory, small holes for birds to enter a building look quite right, but we find that although birds can find their way out of a building through these openings, they seldom re-enter, and they certainly would not do so in your case, because the interior would be much too dark for them. Birds always fly to the light, and to get them to fly in any particular direction we must see that they have it. I would therefore advise you to cut a large opening about 3ft. long by 2ft. deep in place of the holes shown in your plan of partition. The board to fit into this opening could be made to work on hinges, so that you could close it when required. You should also have a good large window in the building, and it should be placed above the sliding panel shown in the drawing; 3ft. long by 1ft. deep would be about right. The ventilation holes, if required, should be at the top of the building, not at the bottom, and they should be covered with perforated zinc. Respecting the outside portion, I would advise you to cover in part of it or it will get terribly wet in damp weather. (2) Do not overcrowd a dozen pairs should do very well. With these alterations you would have an excellent aviary. Our book on "Aviaries, Etc.," would be useful to you.

BULLFINCH CAPING (W. G. S.).—Give your bird an occasional dose of glauher salts, as much as will cover a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of water, and vary the diet. A Bullfinch should be fed as follows:—Make a seed mixture of canary two parts, teazle and rape one part each, linned half part. Give a spoonful of wild seed mixture twice a week, and a little sunflower seed daily. A small quantity of hemp and maw seed can be given as tit-bits. If she will eat soft food, give a cube of bread soaked in hot milk, with just a dusting of sugar on it; let her have this twice a week until better. Supply her with privet berries, piece of apple, or other fruit, besides green food when obtainable. Put her in a cage large enough for her to fly and stretch her wings. Give the bath on suitable days. With this treatment your bird should soon recover. It is just possible you have been giving her too much hemp seed, consequently she is far too fat.

GOLDFINCHES BREEDING IN CAPTIVITY (Thomas).—Sorry your birds did not manage to rear the young ones, as you appear to have kept them well supplied with wild food; you deserved better success. You have quite room for a couple more pairs. Next year try them with soaked seeds and a little egg and biscuit as supplied to canaries. I have known them rear on this food. I am not so sure about your birds returning if you had allowed them out, a pair of Greenfinches I had once did so, and reared the young, but then I did not care much if they did or not, which appears to make a difference in these matters. (2) I think you would do well to try and mate up your pairs of Goldies before turning them out. (3) It would not be safe to put more than one pair of Bullfinches in the same aviary, the hens are inclined to be quarrelsome. (4) Yes, English and Foreign Goldies may be mated together providing there is no great disparity in the size of them. I would advise you to stick to English Bullies. (5) You would find Greenfinches, Linnets and Redpolls as suitable as any for breeding purposes.

BULLFINCH BARE OF FEATHERS (Buller).—You are evidently not feeding your bird quite correctly, and I would advise you to send for our Nutshell Booklet on the Bullfinch, which can be sent to you post free for 2d. You had better discontinue the millet and hemp seed, and procure a packet of wild seed mixture, and give a spoonful of it three times a week. Let the bird have a little sunflower seed every day. Your great mistake has been in not keeping him supplied with green food and berries. To should have some daily, not a lot, but just a tray of watercress, chickweed, shepherd's purse, &c.; see that it is free from frost; also give a daily pinch of privet berries, or a piece of apple or other fruit. Before commencing this change of diet give an aperient of Glauber Salts, as much as will cover a sixpence dissolved in two tablespoonfuls of water, and anoint the bare place with a little fresh lard.

TREATING A GOLDFINCH (Distressed).—The mistake you made was in treating your birds as though they had been caged for a long time, whereas just possible they were only freshly caught. When you buy again, keep in separate cages and lace in a quiet corner of the birdroom; supply them with a little cracked hemp, teazle, niger, maw, linned, and canary, also cracked sunflower. If you can get some good wild seed mixture, supply a little of it in the bottom of the cage. Soak some rape seed teazle, not a lot, just a taste to keep them going until they are well on to dry food. You should also give a spray of green food. After you have had them a couple or three days, give as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of water. Give this for one day only, and repeat in a week. With this treatment you should manage to keep your birds—that is, of course, providing they are healthy when they arrive.

BULLFINCH BARE OF FEATHERS (C. T. Jarvis).—I think you must have misunderstood my previous answer. It was not red mite that I feared but the grey lice that live on the bird. These are most difficult pests to get rid of, but with a single bird, if he has them you should be able to manage by careful washing in soap and water and rinsing in water that has had some essence of quassa mixed with it. After the wash the bird should be placed in a thoroughly clean cage, one that has been recently scrubbed and dried. Just smear the bare places with carbolic vasoline, this will assist the feathers to grow. Do not feed on stimulating seeds. Give a little sunflower daily but no hemp, and the Finch mixture only occasionally, say twice a week. Let his staple food be equal parts canary and teazle and half-part amaranth rape. Offer a spray of privet berries daily, and a little greenfood or apple free from frost. Let him bathe on suitable occasions, but not after mid-day.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

FOREIGN DOVES (Depressed).—(1) If your birds are the small Diamond Doves (Geopelia cuneata) they are worth 25s. to 30s., but the name you use is new to me. (2) Once they settle down to breeding these little Doves are very prolific, and you cannot do better than leave them to themselves, and hope for better luck next season. I have not found this species at all partial to boxes to nest in; with me they have always preferred to construct a fragile nest of short twigs and straws in branches, or a living tree or bush. As regard dietary, I have always found mine to live mainly on canary and millet seed, and if these two are in sufficient bulk in your mixture, then nothing more is required. I should, however, supply a little flint grit, as sold for the purpose. Keep a piece of rock salt in the aviary. (3) Providing you do not live in the far north, and your shelter has a rain-proof roof, and draughtproof walls, the Doves, if as above, should comfortably pass the winter in the aviary.

HOW CAN I START? (J. J. P. K.).—Your best plan will be to begin by covering the floor with linoleum or sheet zinc, to prevent sand, etc., from going between the boards. Then erect a lobby of light framing and wire netting inside the room, the room door to open into this lobby; about three feet square will be large enough for the lobby. Light wood frames covered with wire netting will be required to fix over the window, fireplace, skylight, and ventilators, if any. Then some dead fir trees or twiggy branches should be securely fixed in large pots or boxes and stood round the room, the centre of the room being left open for flight exercise. Round the walls, in the branches, nest-boxes, rush nests, and cocoa-nut husks must be fixed—a numerous supply of these saves much bickering during the nesting season. For a bath some kind of shallow dish will be required. A whole-plate shallow porcelain photo developing dish, standing in the centre of a large tray, is the best arrangement, as by this means the room floor is kept dry, and on the tray round bath there can be pots of growing grass, canary seed, etc. What I have suggested would be much better than the large cage, and not be costly if you do the work yourself, and be better for the birds and enable you to enjoy them to a very different degree than if caged. There must be several food dishes to prevent quarrelling. Into such a room you could turn pairs of Zebra Finches, Cutthroats, and Avadavats, Bronze, Magpie, Black-headed and White-headed Mannikins, Gold-breast, Orange-cheek and Grey Waxbills, Bib, Spice, Diamond, and Finches, Silverbills, Bengalese, and Java Sparrows, Grey and Green Singing Finches—all fairly cheap, hardy and easily kept birds, which would make a really nice display; all the above are hardbills. If the above is out of your reach, then simply put up as large a flight as you can inside the room, from floor to ceiling, proceeding on similar lines to above, and select birds from above list according to size of flight.

should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Avaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Gouldian Finches," No. 16 "Avadavats," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Budgerigars," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Waxbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

FOODS (Monroe, U.S.A.).—The sample seeds are of fair average quality. The Jap. Robin should get soft food, ripe fruit, live insects (mealworms, gentles, spiders, etc.), and about a teaspoonful of white millet seed twice a week. Re wire, 15 and 20 gauge respectively would meet the case. I am assuming that by Jap. Robin you mean Lithothraupis. The gravel you refer to will meet the case quite well. I should not give the pounded shell; either stick to gravel or get proper flint grit from some bird stores. Re soft food, any good make of dog or puppy biscuit makes a good base, but it must be crushed or ground to the size of small millet seed. Get from some bird stores 1lb. each dried Ant's eggs and dried flies, crush 2lbs. of dog or puppy biscuit, and mix the whole together; this will keep indefinitely stored in a dustproof tin, and kept in a dry cupboard. For use, take the required portion, and make it crumbly moist with boiling water, then add a little crumbled sponge-cake and grated cheese, well stir together and supply to the birds.

GREEN AMAZON (E. J. Col.).—Most pleased to hear so good a report. I think, however, that the irregular moulting is an aftermath of the previous trouble, and will pass in due course. Keep a watch on the birds' bowels, and keep them moving freely, also give twice weekly half a teaspoonful of Syrup of Hypophosphites in the drinking water, and regularly dust its boiled maize lightly with flour of sulphur, keeping up this treatment for quite a little time. In the case of any recurrence of a fit, repeat the former treatment at once.

ARE THEY GOOD FOR A SHAMA? (A. M. B.).—Gentles, that is, well cleaned ones, those which are white, and do not show the internal organs black, are good for Shammas, and all insect-eating birds that will take them. They should be kept in sand or bran—I prefer the latter—in a tin or glass jar, over which a covering should be placed; thin muslin will do; if the cover is metal, one or two fine holes must be punched in it. They must be kept in a cold place to prevent them turning into pupae quickly; however, the bird will eat the pupae almost as readily as the grub. A small teaspoonful twice daily should suffice.

AILING GREY (Emily Owen).—You must send me full details as to how you have been feeding and treating this bird, before I can attempt to give you a reply. The fee for a reply per post is sixpence, see rules. In the meanwhile, dissolve 2 drops of laudanum in two tablespoonfuls of chilled ROSEATE COCKATOO (A. W. C., Brighton).—I am afraid, unless you can give me more data, I cannot help you much, as there is really nothing for me to go upon. Is there any swelling or the sign of internal or external inflammation about the feet or toes? In the meantime, bathe the feet in hot water (not hot enough for discomfort), dry with a soft cloth, and then paint the parts he bites at with Friar's Balsam. Also put one teaspoonful of Dinneford's Magnesia in the drinking water every other day till the bowels have been fully relieved. When writing on other matters, state how you have been feeding, and generally treating it.

GREEN AMAZON (F. Lamb).—You must give me the full history of the trouble before I can help you, as you have not written till the case is really acute, and at the same time inform me how you have been feeding and treating it generally. In such an emergency I should certainly give a little milk sop, stirring in three or four drops of brandy. Also let it have free access to the seed. Boiled maize would also be good for it at this time. Boil the maize till soft, but the corn should remain whole; drain away all water, and supply to the bird. This only keeps fresh one day, so must be prepared fresh daily. A little honey and borax should be put in the mouth from the end of a stick once or twice daily, but the stick must be well cleansed before being put in the mixture again. However, I consider that if you have a vet. near it would be better to take the bird to him for examination.

HEATING BIRD-ROOM (Old Reader, A.J.).—I do not care to advise an oil-stove, though such are used, and I have used them myself without mishap, but then I attend to it myself, and everything lies in the way it is looked after; however, if you have an oil stove, it must be on your own responsi-

A Prize Winner's Testimony

(Unsolicited)

Mr. H. HEALD, Claypit Lane, Leeds, writes, Dec. 7, 1914:—

"Seeing your splendid advertisement in this week's 'Cage Birds,' I think it my duty to write you to show what the book has done for me. I got one when it first came out. If you look at the list of awards in this issue, you will see that I have been successful in gaining First and Special in Mr. Curtis's class, and Second and Special at the L.C.B.A. The great thing is that I bred the Bird that won First and Special, and I put it down to the fact that I gained my knowledge from your fine Book. I think every novice should have it. It is money well spent."

A Great Christmas Opportunity

The secret of Success in Canary Breeding, as in everything else, is KNOWLEDGE. It is easy enough to win IF YOU KNOW HOW. Mr. Heald's letter is conclusive proof that the secret of successful Breeding is a thing that can be learned, and that the WAVERLEY book, "CANARIES, HYBRIDS, AND BRITISH BIRDS," In Cage and Aviary (complete in one compact volume) is the book that can teach you as it has taught him.

THERE IS MONEY IN CAGE BIRDS.

There is plenty of money as well as scientific delight, and the satisfaction of following a most fascinating hobby, to be got out of Cage Bird Breeding if you study Canaries and Hybrids scientifically.

The Waverley Book on Canaries is THE STANDARD BOOK ON THIS SUBJECT; it is written by experts, by men who have mastered the secrets of successful breeding by years of patient study and experiment, and who here teach YOU, in simple direct style, HOW TO BREED BIRDS THAT WILL WIN. Its reliable Coloured Plates are universally acknowledged to be invaluable in showing the student what to breed to. The unique section on HYBRIDS presents information that has never before been tabulated. With this knowledge at hand any intelligent breeder may confidently set himself to produce one of the "crosses" that have not so far been achieved. This book teaches all about what has been done, how it was done, and what has never yet been accomplished.

CANARIES, HYBRIDS AND BRITISH BIRDS is up-to-date in every department. It gives the latest authoritative information on Shows, Exhibiting, Standard Points, Defects, Marks, Judging, etc., etc., of every known breed. This is the only book that will show you how to win. It has no silly talky—talky about the delight of Bird-keeping; it is crammed full of solid information.

We do not ask you to take our word as to its merits. We ask you to accept our grand Christmas Offer of FREE Approval and judge as to the usefulness of this sound book for yourself.

Buyers Praise it Enthusiastically.

Mr. McLinden, Dublin:—

"It commends itself to the past master in bird keeping, and is invaluable to the amateur, for it is written in such simple language. The chapters on Rearing and Pairing are very explicit, and the coloured plates are, to my mind, simply superb."

Mrs. Bertram, Christchurch, Hants:—

"I have found it of the greatest use, while the illustrations are of value to the novice and the expert alike. The sections dealing with Hybrids is especially commendable, and should prove of service to fanciers."

Mr. Tett, Hillside, Brisport:—

"I made up my mind to retain it as soon as I examined it. It is full of useful hints most useful to bird-keepers."

Mr. W. G. Evans, Seaforth, Liverpool:—

"In my opinion there is not a finer book on Birds on the market. I have shown it to some of the leading fanciers in Liverpool, and they all speak very highly of it. No novice should be without it; in fact, all canary breeders would do well to secure a copy."

Mr. E. C. Penlington, Lloyd Park, Walthamstow:

"One of the finest books I have ever seen; one that would be most useful to any fancier whether an old hand or a beginner. I think the Plates are worthy of the highest praise."

Mr. Bryant, Acton, London:—

"Best work on this subject I have ever seen."

Mr. Ralph Harrison, Whitley Bay:—

"The book to make breeding a success—complete in every department."

Mr. H. Hancock, Burslem:—

"I think the book a great help and well worth the money."

Mr. Lenyon, Clydach, Rhondda Valley:—

"I have no hesitation in recommending it to young breeders as essential. Without doubt the most complete work of this kind."

The BULL-DOG STRAIN.
20/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- per pair.
CHAMPION NORWICH, Etc.

The above strain needs no bounce. All I need do is to refer you to reports of leading shows. My birds are still winning consistently. For years they have been in the front rank, winning numerous champion trophies of the Specialist Clubs. There is no better blood in the Fancy. I am now offering a few pairs bred from these noted winners at above prices. Single birds, cocks or hens, at proportionate prices. Every bird is worth double. I have also a number of good birds from other well-known strains as follows: Smart Thick-set Cocks, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- each. Good Cobby Hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6, 10/- each. Matched breeding pairs, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 17/6, 20/- per pair.

CHAMPION YORKSHIRES.

Grand lengthy Yorkshire Cocks, in perfect feather and condition, and on full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- each. Erect racy Hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6. Matched Pairs, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-.

EXHIBITION YORKSHIRES bred from my own winners, and ready for immediate benching, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- each upwards. I have also a choice selection of Crests, Borders, Mules, British, Rollers, etc., etc. I invite all fanciers to come and make their own selection. To those unable to come I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the United Kingdom, on 10 days' approval, at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to everyone, or cash returned in full. Send a P.C. for my Free Illustrated Catalogue. Travelling Cages, 3d. extra in all cases. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers.

CRAGHEAD WORKMEN'S CLUB.

Special meeting, Workman's Club, with a good turnout of fanciers. Decided to have an open Linnet class at show to be held Dec. 19. Mr. Risborough, Sunderland, judge. We are looking forward to see some good Linnets staged. Prizes, 8s., 4s., 2s., 1s. Ent. fee, 1s.—Aif. Dawson, Sec.

NEWTONGRANGE C.B.S.

Meeting (place and date not stated—Ed.). Sec. intimated that he had not yet received the order from Calabar, and his action in getting envelopes locally was endorsed by the committee. Sec. also reported that he had made special arrangements with the stationmaster, and stated that the Lothian Coal Co. had agreed to put up the staging on the usual condition. Agreed to allow exhibitors the privilege of getting their birds dispatched so as to reach home the night of the show. Decided to retain 6d. for model cards. Stewards were selected: Norwich, J. Smith and Alex. Ketchen; Bord., J. Steel and J. Thomson; Brit., S. Smith and W. Thomson. Unanimously carried to divide the profits from the show equally between the Red Cross and the Belgian Relief Funds. Specials, numbering about 80 over the 49 classes, were drawn, all guaranteed by the society, and a nice lot they are, both in coin and in kind. Many a bird out of the money can win extra good specials, and it now lies with exhibitors to make the show spell success.—A. M. Gardner, Pres.

HIGHGATE & HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Annual prize distribution and social held Spencer Hall, on Nov. 30, Mr. Geo. Gardner, in the chair, supported by Messrs. R. T. Dann, vice-chair, J. P. Ayers, and G. E. Weston. Mr. C. W. Law once again kindly provided the musical entertainment, which was under the able management of Mr. Sami Claremont (Gloucester Street, Clerkenwell), whose party of entertainers caused much merriment and laughter. Mr. Claremont's humorous songs, and those of Messrs. Alf. Houghton and Jack Perry came in for special commendation, whilst Miss Elsie Edward at the piano, and Mr. J. Edward (tenor), added much to the enjoyment of all present. Although a very wet evening, the hall was crowded with members and friends. Mr. Gardner distributed the prizes, including 4 silver cups, 6 medals, and other specials, also cash prizes amounting to £14 15s. Mr. Ayers was thanked for his splendid gift of two silver cups, and in reply very promptly and generously said that he hoped to provide another. The chief item of the evening, however, was the presentation by Mr. Gardner, after a few very appropriate remarks, of a handsome marble clock from the members, to Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Law, as a token of high esteem and appreciation for their ever ready and willing services to the society. We all hope we shall continue to have their presence and support for many years to come. Mr. Law replied on behalf of himself and Mrs. Law, and said the handsome gift would be cherished by them as much as anything they possessed, knowing, as they did, the kindly feeling which prompted the members in making the presentation. Mr. G. E. Weston proposed a collective vote of thanks to the hon. sec., Mr. J. Hyde, to the artists, and to Mr. Gardner, for so ably presiding. He said that Mr. Hyde was an inestimable asset, a secretary who did his work quietly, cheerfully, and well, without either grumbling or boasting—an expression of opinion which elicited loud approval. He also spoke of the great enjoyment the artists had given, and fittingly eulogised the long and many services Mr. G. Gardner had rendered the Society and the Fancy at large. This vote was carried enthusiastically, and all joined in singing: "They are jolly good fellows."

Twitterings.

We hear that the Watford C.B.S. will hold an open show on Jan. 13-14 next.

I liked very much your study of the Crested Canary accompanying the Xmas Number, writes Mr. T. Billington (Nottingham).

In the Green Budgetary class at the recent Horticultural Hall show, Mrs. Hay won 3rd, not Mrs. Longden, as reported.

Mr. S. C. Pearce, hon. sec. High Wycombe F.S., writes that all profits accruing from the show of Dec. 29 will go to the local War Fund.

We are pleased to hear that Mr. W. Adams the sec. of Rochdale Good Intent C.B.S., has made a good recovery from his recent illness.

Members please note the patronage of the Y.C.C. has been granted to Doncaster C.B.A., Dec. 19, a fixture I hope they will liberally support, writes Mr. Greaves, sec.

Special No. 21 in the Hamilton "War Fund" Show schedule, writes Mr. W. S. Wilson, hon. sec., should read 5s. for most points in Classes 1 to 4, and 36 to 39, and not as printed.

Owing to the military occupying the Drill Hall, writes Mr. W. Davie, sec. Dunfermline and W. of Fifo O.S., the society has had no alternative but to cancel its show fixed for Jan. 1 and 2.

We have engaged as judges for our 1915 show, write Messrs. Metcalfe and Green, secs. Liverpool O.S.; Messrs. Mundell and Cowgill, Yorks.; W. Vardy, Nor.; J. Dixon, Bord.; C. Houlton, Brit.

Please ask exhibitors to note, writes Mr. Hunt, sec. Doncaster C.B.S., that we are looking forward to a good show, and that we shall close the show at 6.30 in order that all birds may be sent off in good time.

I omitted to state in the Whitehaven show schedule, which was advertised in last week's CAGE BIRDS, that the entrance fee is 1s. 6d., writes Mr. Jas. Stewart, hon. sec. Entries will be accepted up to Dec. 16.

Mr. W. Espie writes that he won 3rd in the Uneven Border class at the Horticultural Hall, not Pratt as in report and catalogue, and Mr. Faux writes that "1st Mrs. Stopher" in catalogue and report of the unflighted yellow novice should be 1st Faux.

I am pleased to see members of the Pathhead (Kirkcaldy) C.B.S. giving Fifeshire exhibitors a chance of turning out their winners for 1914, writes Mr. J. Ross. Schedules can be had from Mr. J. Thomson, sec. (2, Junction Road, Kirkcaldy).

I was pleased to see published in CAGE BIRDS our subscription to your Hospital Canary Scheme, and hope that it will induce other members of clubs to support your efforts on behalf of our wounded soldiers, writes Mr. S. Morley, sec. Castleford Linnet Club.

Will readers please note that the Border Fancy Canary advertisement of Mr. W. Rudd (Norwich) was by error inserted under the heading of Crests in last week's issue. Mr. Rudd writes that he has received a large number of applications for Crested hens at 2s. and 5s. (these, of course, should have been Border hens).

Mr. J. Nelson, sec., Newtongrange C.B.S., 85, Dean Park, Newtongrange, writes that he has sent out 1,000 schedules for the show, Dec. 19. Anyone overlooked please apply. All specials are guaranteed by the society, and the profits of the show will be divided between the Red Cross and Belgian Relief Funds.

In the report of the Foreign Hybrid class, at the Horticultural Show, the words "latter" and "former" in the description of Miss Smyth's Hybrid Bulbul should be transposed, as this Hybrid favours the Red-vented species, its male parent; the Red-eared is only slightly indicated in the Hybrid's plumage and contour.

Exhibitors coming to see the "Palace of the North" show should note that the Rochester Street Schools are five minutes' walk from Gateshead Railway Station, or High Level Bridge, writes Mr. W. Curry, the sec., or if they take the Bensham or Saltwell tramcar, and ask the conductor to put them off at Burt Terrace or Alexandra Road, it is the first street on the left (fare 1d.). Fanciers wishing to exhibit and too late for a schedule should look over the review in this week's CAGE BIRDS and send their entries on, when I will classify.

Our Songsters in Canada.

It may be within the memory of many readers, writes Mr. W. A. Lott, the well-known British bird enthusiast, that a huge quantity of our British songsters, namely Blackbirds, Thrushes, Larks, Linnets, Goldies, Bullies, Redpolls, Siskins, etc., was transported from the homeland to far away Vancouver Island, B.C., some eighteen months ago. What reminds me of the event is that I have had a note from a relative (not a fancier) in which he says: "Tell Mr. Lott that there have been several Blackbirds at 'Cedar Cottage,' which is just outside the city of Vancouver."

OBITUARY.

I am very sorry to inform you, writes Mr. S. Morley, sec., Castleford Linnet Club, that we have lost one of our old members last week in Joseph Kirk, who has been ill for some months.

It is with much regret, writes Mr. W. S. Wilson, that I intimate the sad bereavement Mr. Geo. Marlin, Hamilton, has sustained in the passing away of his dear wife. Mrs. Marlin was affected by heart trouble, and during the early part of last week indications were visible that her case was getting more serious. She passed away peacefully early on Thursday, Dec. 3. On behalf of the very many fanciers who personally know Mr. Marlin, we extend our sympathy to him in his bereavement.

Another Record Show.

We hear that the show of Swansea F.S. has closed with a record entry.

Extra Judge at Aberdeen.

Aberdeen show finds it necessary to appoint another Norwich judge, namely Mr. James Ritchie (Brechin) writes Mr. Allison, the sec.

Photographing the Pheasant.

Mr. O. G. Pike states that it has frequently taken him an hour's manoeuvring to get within "touching" distance of a Pheasant sitting on her nest. A precipitate movement would cause her at once to leave her eggs, but the great thing for the photographer to do was to stand quite still himself each time she showed the slightest sign of moving. In that way it was possible to get up to the most timid bird during the nesting season.

Cuckoo's Curious Choice.

In July of this year a Cuckoo chose to deposit her egg in the nest of a House Sparrow in the middle of the town of Shrewsbury. The nest was under the eaves of the premises of Mr. Salter, chemist, and was discovered by some painters who were renovating the front. The egg was duly hatched by the Sparrows, and the foster-parents in carrying out their onerous task of filling the capacious maw of the intruder, had to pass within a few feet of the painters working on the ladders.

Two Avicultural Feats.

A notable triumph in bird-keeping was when a German naturalist induced a pair of hand-reared Nightjars to lay, sit, and rear their young on the hearthrug in his sitting-room. Another striking case was given some time ago in the "Zoologist," where Miss R. Twyman succeeded in rearing a young Swift. The bird was found by her, an unfledged nestling which had fallen from a crevice in a wall above. She carefully tended it and fed it on wasp-grub and gentles; its voracity being so great that it would consume, it is said, thirty every two hours, an astonishing feat for so small a bird. The Swift is described as having moulted successfully, and as spending its time on the edge of its basket, taking exercise by flapping its wings; it is said rarely to fly.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

Well-known Judge's Sad Loss.

I am sorry to inform you and fanciers that Mr. Geo. Marlin (Hamilton) the well-known judge, was unable to be present to judge our show, through the sad loss of his wife, who died very suddenly. The heartfelt sympathy of all fanciers will go out to him. We appointed Mr. R. Bald (Bathgate) in his place, who gave general satisfaction.—R. Lambie, sec. Whitburn Show.

Longevity of Captive Birds.

There are cases on record of many species of small birds living for long periods in captivity. I know of two instances of Linnets living in cages for seventeen and eighteen years respectively. One was over a year old when purchased, and when I last heard, which was seventeen years after purchase, the bird was in good health and vigour. It was then over eighteen years old. Many small foreign birds live for several years in this country when properly caged and fed. Dr. A. G. Butler purchased two male Scarlet Tanagers in 1897, which I was surprised to see living and apparently in perfect health last month, having been in his possession over seventeen years. He also had a Red-billed Weaver in his aviaries for nineteen years, a Common Hangnest fourteen years, Zebra Finch ten years, Gouldian Finch nine years, and a number of other species lived for long periods.—F. W. Frohawk, in "The Field."

Canary-breeding in War Time.

Only those who have devoted themselves to the hobby favoured by our readers know the delight of getting quite away—temporarily, at least—from war, with its anxieties and constant distresses, to an interest that never palls, but that grows more and more enthralling the more we study it. It is possible that Canary breeding—entirely for its own sake, and without reference to its financial side, which is well worth attention—would attract many more devotees if its charms were everywhere known. We commend to our readers, and especially to new readers, a grand book that will enable them to achieve success in Canary breeding with the minimum of cost and trouble if they will faithfully follow its explicit instructions. The Waverley Book Company's publication "Canaries, Hybrids, and British Birds" actually teaches the fancier how to breed birds that win. So confident are its enterprising compilers that they make a unique Christmas offer to our readers, namely, to send this excellent book on approval for a week's free use, and to take it back without the reader spending a penny if he decides it will not be useful to him. This speaks for itself as to the good value offered. We recommend all who wish to study successful scientific Canary breeding to send the free approval form (it will be found in our advertising columns) and to give the Waverley Publication a week's fair (and free) trial during the approaching holidays. They should send in good time, as the Christmas congestion may cause some delay later on.

SPLENDID RESULTS FOR A TRIVIAL OUTLAY.

"I sold 28 pecks of wild seed from a sixpenny advertisement in CAGE BIRDS three weeks ago."—W. HEPWOOD (Albrighton).

"Please thank the 87 readers who answered my advt. re Norwich. I cannot reply to all. I supplied all who enclosed Postal Orders."—Wm. HAINSWORTH (Preston).

"Kindly thank all those that replied to my advert. re Finches for Cock Canary, as they are too numerous to answer individually. I have made the exchange."—E. COCKRAM (Tatworth).

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

JUST THE THING FOR XMAS PRESENTS.

No Better Books for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES. 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES. 1/11.—By H. W. Batty (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES. 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vake, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post fr. 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT. 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS. 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL. 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATELS. 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS. 1/11.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc. Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL. 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Fiftieth Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK. 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE. 3/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM. 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, G. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS. 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, rearing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS. 3d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/-, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

DUBLIN.

Sixth annual show of the Y.C.C. and C.H.S. of Ireland, Antient Concert Rooms, Great Brunswick Street, Nov. 25 and 26. The hall is the best room in Dublin for the purpose, being of good size and well lighted. Entries exceeded those of last year, and the committee may congratulate themselves on the success of the show. There was a splendid lot, and showed a marked improvement on last year. In fact one could not point out a bad bird in the sections. Norwich were few, but of very good type. British and Mules come out better than last year, the Goldfinches, Linnets, and Bullfinches being well worth seeing. The officers and committee worked together, and everything was carried out in first-rate style and in good time. The vice-presidents, Messrs. Sholeidice and Keating, and the chairman, Mr. Gillen, were constant in attendance, and ready to see to all wants, and the hardworking sec., Mr. Lattimore, did his part of the work to the satisfaction of all. These were backed up by a very strong committee, Messrs. Kelly, Mulcahy, Kennedy, Burtonshaw, Keogh, Power, Williams, Farrell, Magee, O'Toole, Mr. Dowling (ex-chairman), and Mr. Whitty (treas.). Hyland got local sp. for best yellow hen; Keogh, sp. best bird in show, with a splendid tkd. buff cock, which also won two diplomas; Mrs. O'Keefe, best hen; Fleming, sp. tkd. yell. ck.; Keating won four specimens in non-fed classes, Morgan one, Reilly one, Stedman one. In novices, sp. for best bird was won by McKeon with a very nice mkd. ck.; sp. best yell. ck. and hen, Byrne; sp. best cl. buff ck. and hen, Burtonshaw; best tkd. hen, Hartford; sp. and diploma in Mule classes, Alexander, with his Linnet-Bullie; best British, also diploma, Mulcahy, with his renowned Chough. Mr. R. Halliday, Shipley, judged, and his awards were received with satisfaction.

CARDIFF.

The fifty mile radius show at Glamorgan Buildings, November 28, attracted a grand entry in Canaries, notwithstanding the fact that there had to be 12 entries in a class before full prize-money was paid. This again goes to show that societies were too hasty in rushing to cancel shows instead of sticking to the "firmness as usual" motto. Nor and Yorks. were indeed a show in themselves, and competition was very keen, many really good birds having to be content with cards only, and in some classes not having even that consolation. British did not come up as well as usual, due no doubt to the L.C.B.A. Show clashing, most of the Welsh fanciers being represented at the London Show. Wales some few years ago was a veritable hotbed for British, but there has been for some time past a falling off in these classes, which is very regrettable. The Sec. and Show Manager, Mr. E. Thomas, had everything well in hand, and was ably assisted by a willing hand of stewards who did everything possible for the welfare of the exhibits. All exhibits were sent by rail in time to arrive home on Saturday night. Mr. J. Robson judged.

EASTLEIGH.

First annual show, Boy Scouts' Rooms, Nov. 25-26. Birds were sent all the way from North of England, and competition was very keen. Quality was really A1. Mr. Alderslade makes a very able secretary, and Mr. Clarke, his assistant, worked like a Trojan. Mr. C. E. Hill, Emsworth, judged.

NOR. CL. (13): 1, Morrison, grand yell. fine head and chest, not looking over well in cond., wants tubbing; 2, Fellows, buff, staged to perfection, good body, not quite the head properties of winner; 3, he, Welch, buff, rare qual. and col.; res, Page; vhc, Miles. TKD, ETC. (5): 1, sp, best Nor., Hydes' sp., Welch, fine yell. best of heads, wonderful col. and subs.; 2, Fellows, very taking; 3, Morrison, one of the best of type and qual., but out of cond.; res, Miles; vhc, Potter; he, Page. GR. OR HEAVILY VAR.: 1, Foyle, splendid Nor. properties, wins; 2, Morrison, very fine var. yell., bit down when we saw it; 3, Welch, rare type, smaller than winners; res, Washer; vhc, Miles; he, Page. HEN (8): Grand lot: 1, 2, Morrison, good bulls, not much to choose between them; 3, Welch, nice type and qual.; res, vhc, Miles; he, Foyle. YORKS. CL. (13): 1, vhc, Gamble, leader, finely drawn, put down in the pink; 2, White, buff, feathered like a Java, lovely Yorks. properties; 3, Yates, yell., very quick to respond, gets into pos. well; res, c, Adams; he, Matthews. TKD. (11): Here the sensation of the show: 1, sp best Yorks., Gamble, one of the best drawn birds we have seen, straight as a rush, well up to standard length, not a feather out of place, tail beautifully folded, gem of the first water, soon found a new home; 2, vhc, Matthews, nicely mkd. yell., only fault crosses his wings a wee bit; 3, White, rare good one; vhc, Gamble; he, Maidment. GR. OR VARIEG. (5): 1, Yates, good yell., should have been in previous class, only the word "variegated" lets any bird with two colours compete, the class, however, would not seem to be intended for a lightly mkd. bird; 2, he, Fellows, nice shaped Green; 3, White, close up; c, Clarke. HEN (8): 1, Maidment, very neat yell., beautifully drawn; 2, 3, Gamble, 2 close up, 3 another nice hen; vhc, Yates; res, Matthews; he, White. CRESTS (1): 1, Adams, lovely Grey Crest, well radiated, and good size. BIRD. OR ROLLER: 1, Thornback, very neat, well shown bird; 2, vhc, Page, former nice cinn. mkd. bird; 3, Woolgar; he, Alexander. LIGHT MULES: 1, 2, Harnell, nice broken birds, one very nearly even mark. DARK (11): 1, Lomer, fine Green, very lustrous col., good size; 2, res, Clarke, nice Siskin Mules, good size, feather, and cond.; 3, Alderslade, pretty Goldf. Can., not over large, but very bright in col.; vhc, White; he, Lacey, Fellows. GOLDF. (8): Very nice lot indeed: 1, sp, best Brit., Burr, one of the best, col. beautifully defined, whites and tanning good, a first-class exhibition Finch, soon sold; 2, Foyle, very good Finch; 3, Fellows, real Britisher; res, Alderslade; vhc, Washer; he, White; c, Clarke. BULF. (5): Nice level lot: 1, vhc, Potter, excellent col., lovely cap, put down to perfection; 2, 3, Burr, not much to choose, 1 had it a bit in size; 3 another smart Finch; res, Alderslade. LINNET: 1, Burr, standing right out for pencilling and col., wants some beating, fine size, lovely shape; 2, Clarke; 3, Alderslade, both well shown. GREENF. (8): 1, Burr, lovely Finch, fine in col. and size, wonderfully steady; 2, Lomer; 3, Vale, both good Greens, but beaten here; res, Clarke; he, Lees; c, Alderslade. CHAFFINCH: 1, sp, Cook, well defined markings, very steady; 2, Alderslade, less in size, but a good Finch; 3, Woolgar. REDPOLL, ETC.: 1, Hames, Redpoll, shown in the pink of cond.; 2, Alderslade, Twite, very pretty, very fit; 3, Woolgar, good Siskin; res, Fellows; vhc, Lees; he, Potter; c, Daniels. A.O. HARDBILL: 1, Burr, clicking Yellow Bunting; 2, Lomer, Cirl; 3, Vale, Reed Bunting, both in rare show form; res, Vale; vhc, Alderslade. FOR.: 1, Lacey, in fine trim, col. most beautifully blended; 2, vhc, Alderslade, pair White-headed Mannikins, well shown; 3, vhc, Thornback, pair Cutthroats and Jaws. SELL. (11): 1, Page; 2, Foyle; 3, Mules; res, Gamble; vhc, Clarke, Fellows.

HIGHGATE, HAMPSTEAD C.B.S.

Annual members' show, Nov. 20 and 21. Thanks to the indefatigable efforts of Mr. A. Hyde, the popular and efficient hon. sec., and the excellent response of the members to his appeal, the entry was very little below that of past shows, and quality in some sections was decidedly superior. Norwich contained some remarkably fine birds, type and quality being pre-eminent, whilst some of them were fed to perfection. It was to the Yorkshire section that the Fouche challenge cup for the best unfledged bird fell. Mr. A. Knight winning with a full-blooded, grand positioned bird, which was generally admired. Mr. Knight is to be congratulated upon securing this trophy in the novice section. The same gentleman also won Mr. Weston's cup for the most points scored by vhc, he, and a bird at Pairs, Young Birds, and Annual shows, 1914. Mr. Kent won sp. for best Canary bred by exhibitor in the champion section; Mr. J. Hyde in amateurs; and Mr. Millsom in novices. Mrs. Ward won sp. best bird shown by a lady. Messrs. P. Johnson, W. Shorter, and W. Large tied with 15 points each for Mr. Trower's special. Amongst the other special winners were: Messrs. A. Lovegrove (6), W. J. Kent, J. Hyde, W. Knight (2), H. Bailey, S. T. Newcombe, R. T. Dann, E. T. Bush, Wills (3), Millsom, A. Knight (10), Byne (2), Cowie (2), Walmesley, Shearer, Withers, Large, Mound, Alton, M. Jones, Pike, Mr. J. Robson judged, and had a sharp morning's work. During the day Mr. C. W. Law, the respected late sec., was present to render assistance, thus maintaining his interest in the society. The staging was well arranged, and the attendance, especially on the Saturday evening, was excellent. The general verdict was "a good show, quality excellent, numbers quite the average, and management first-rate."

ASHINGTON, HIRST C.B.S.

Annual Show Nov. 7, Harmonie Hall, a nice place for a show, plenty of size, nice light, and comfortable in every way. Entries totalled nearly 200, quality throughout being very good, especially in Norwich, Yorks, and Borders. Spl. for best young bird was won by Mr. J. Anderson, with a very smart unfledged yell. Yorks. cock, slim and stylish, and always in position. The same bird also won Sandford's medal for hottest fed bird, and deserved the honour, its colour being magnificent. Mr. J. Graham, Newbiggin, was the runner-up for spl. for best bird, with a lovely clear yellow border of grand shape and col. Mr. J. Miles, the general chairman, despite the urgency of business matters, found time to attend the show and do his share towards making it a success. He was greatly supported by a line of fanciers, Vice-Chairman (Mr. T. Thompson), Treas. (Mr. J. Miles), and a grand committee composed of Messrs. F. Baker, J. Graham, G. Hall, C. Tapson, J. Embleton and J. Anderson. Mr. Joe Lock, who is a reservist, and has been called up to the Colours, obtained leave of absence to visit the show and have a look at some of his favourite Borders, which had been very nicely staged by Mrs. Lock. Good luck to him. In Mr. W. Hall the Society have a very energetic Sec., courteous and obliging to all, and he got through his work splendidly. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged.

GOVENTRY (Godiva) C.B.S.

Special Members' Show, Oct. 24, in place of the Open Show cancelled on account of the War. Plough Hotel, Queen Victoria Road; upwards of 150 birds were shown, a record for any members' show in Coventry. Councillor Poole, President, kindly gave four pairs of Coventry made braces as specials; these were won by Messrs. Wright, Roycroft, Rowley, and Cox. Mr. Fincher won Rameden's and Mr. Rowley's specials for the best bird fed on Ramsden's peppers, and Mr. A. Wright Mr. Blackshaw's special for most 1st prizes. Mr. A. J. Davies, Coventry, judged, and his awards gave every satisfaction.

CLYDEBANK.

Annual show held Lesser Town Hall, Clydebank, Nov. 28. The hall is a very suitable one, free from draughts and well lighted from both sides of the roof. Mr. G. McGowan, President, and Mr. W. Kane, Sec., are worthy of the appreciation and trust reposed in them, and they are ably backed by Messrs. Morton and Sheridan as Vice-Pres., Mr. Chambers, Treas., and an experienced and capable committee in Messrs. Laing, Tawse, Robb, McBride, Easton, Hutchison, and McArdle. Mr. A. McLean and Mr. Matthew Craig judged, and got through their duties in a smart and businesslike fashion. Entries were in excess of last year, and the show was well patronised in the afternoon. Mr. J. Tawse won spl. most points.

COLINTON AND CURRIE PARISHES O.S.

3rd annual show, Village Hall, Juniper Green, Nov. 7. Entries totalled 230, and showed a vast improvement in quality from previous years. The fanciers in this locality are paying a great deal of attention to the staging of their exhibits. At previous shows some good birds were out of the tickets owing to not being well staged, but they are gaining experience, and a vast improvement is the result. Cup for best Scotch Fancy was won by Jas. P. Rodgers with a buff pied-bill hen of grand quality and position. Cup for best Border by Sec. Jas. Napier, with a sweet little lady, a buff variegated hen as tight as wax. The Norwich section was a feature of the show, some real stormers being forward. The pride of place and Fowler cup were won by Mr. T. B. Preston with a slashing yell. hen; cup for best British or Mule was won by the Vice-President, Mr. J. Michie, with a very nice Bullie cock put down in grand cond. A new feature is a cup presented by Mr. Gibson for the best bird shown by a novice, and this nice piece of plate was captured by Mr. H. Dickson with a very nice Goldie. As in previous years, a splendid lot of specials were got together, totalling 67, and a fine array they made spread out on a table at the top of the hall. At the close, Mr. and Mrs. McPherson kindly presented them to the successful competitors. Great regret was expressed throughout at the inability through illness of our worthy president to attend, and the wish of all is that he will soon be himself again. A handsome and interesting British species, quite Parrot-like in its actions and capacity for chewing things up. Mainly a winter visitor to our shores.

Peter's Spotted Firefinch.

THIS beautiful Finch (Lagonosticta niveiguttata) is a rare appearance on the show bench, and the specimen exhibited by Mr. Frost would have been much higher but for a damaged wing, otherwise it was in good condition and perfect plumage. It certainly is one of the most beautiful of the many beautiful Finches Africa gives to the bird-lover. In form it more closely resembles the Melba Finch than the typical Firefinches, and it very probably has closer affinity to the former than the latter. Mr. Goodchild's characteristic drawing clearly indicates the plumage pattern, and a few words will suffice to clothe it with the splendour of the living bird. The forehead, top of the head, wings and back are warm olive-brown; lobes, sides of face, sides of neck, chin, throat, upper breast and tail glowing crimson; remainder of underparts dark brown and black, regularly spotted with pure white spots; the beak is silver-black, and the legs and feet greyish. The female is mostly brown, spotted with white on the underparts; she has a red tail and a patch of the same colour on her breast. Over a long period of years it has appeared on the show bench only on three or four occasions, and very probably these appearances cover but two specimens. Aviculturists have longed to possess it in pairs, that they might attempt to reproduce it in their aviaries, and the competition will be keen indeed for the first pair Fate places within our reach.

But for the blemish above referred to, viz., a wing that has been broken, and though perfectly healed, does not lie in quite the correct position, handicapping it for exhibition, though not for the aviary, it would most probably have secured premier honours. It is a species that would adorn any collection.

Bourke's Parrakeet.

While the beautiful Parrakeets of Australia are almost legion, there are few, if any, that rival or surpass Bourke's (Neophema bourkei) for exquisite and chaste colouration, and to beauty of plumage must be added graceful contour and small size.

The plumage pattern can be clearly seen on our plate—as regards colour much space would be required to give it in detail, and I can only state that it is a charming arrangement of delicate greys, delicate pinks, delicate blues, brown, black, and white; the whole so chastely thrown together that the harmony is perfect.

It is a species that does well in captivity, and once established can be comfortably wintered out of doors in any aviary that has a draught-proof and dry shelter attached to it. It has shown itself fairly ready to reproduce its kind in captivity, but, like the Budgerigar, seems to be most productive where several pairs are housed together. It is an amiable species, but, of course, this must be qualified by the remark that, even among species of gentle repute pugnacious individuals occur. But for the fact that Parrakeets destroy plant life so rapidly, I should not hesitate to include it in a large aviary among Finches, etc., providing there was ample space for all.

It makes a gentle and fairly quiet cage-bird, but as far as my experience goes has not so much character and vivacity as some other genera (Brotogerys for instance) under such conditions. As an aviary bird it is ideal, while as an exhibition bird it is sure to catch the eye of the judge if in passable condition. The bird from which our illustration is taken was staged by Miss A. B. Smyth in perfect condition, and very steady. It was second to a beautiful pair of Queen Alexandra Parrakeets staged by Miss Clare.

The menu of Bourke's is very simple:—Canary, white millet, and millet sprays form the staple dietary. Green-food and any kind of fruit the birds will take should also be regularly supplied. To these should be added the essentials for every bird—grit, cuttlebone, and fresh water for drinking and bathing.

The Black-checked Tanager.

This species (Calliste cayana), also known as the Lesser Rufous-headed, is certainly one of the most beautiful of a marvellously beautiful group, and merits a full description. Top of head shining rufous-ochreous; general body colouring, golden-ochreous; facial patch round eyes and over ear-coverts, black; back and rump, greenish; wings and tail, black, broadly margined on outer webs with brilliant bluish-green; throat with bluish-refulgence; breast and upper abdomen glossed with greyish-lilacine, varying in intensity according to light; beak, blackish; legs and feet, greyish-brown. The female differs from the male in being altogether plainer in colour, but is nevertheless a very pretty bird. General body colour, greyish-ochreous, washed on the crown with rufous, and on the breast with bluish; the facial patch is smaller and less distinct than that of the male; wings and tail blackish with broad olive-green margins.

The genus Calliste contains many species that are certainly half-hardy, but I should have no hesitation in leaving an established Black-cheek out of doors all the winter. I possessed a male of this species in 1907, which was successfully wintered in a rather damp outdoor bird-room, where the temperature was often as low as 28 deg. Fahr., yet during the dullest and coldest period of that winter's days it was never dull, but always cheery, bright and vivacious, which is more than could be said for its owner. Early in the following summer it went to Mr. O. Millsum, eventually, I believe, passing into Mons. Pauvvels' collection. It makes an ideal cage bird, but it is still rare and difficult to procure in this country, though apparently quite common in British and French

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

TO be fully explicit I will illustrate it so: Judge A. judges two birds that make a tie, neither of them are penalised for any faults, he gives to one bird five points for general effect. In his opinion the beauty of the whole song, and maybe individual tours, are worthy of these five points. To bird No. 2 he gives four points for general effect; Judge A. says the bird with five points for general effect is the winner.

Judge B. gives one bird four for general effect and another three for general effect, yet in the event of a tie, should the bird with the three points for general effect have sung a larger number of the lower tours Judge B. says that this bird with the smaller number for general effect is the winner. I myself favour Judge A's principles. Reader, it is for you to be stirring in these matters rather than be apathetic, trusting that a reverse under such differences of opinions will not come your way.

Required from the Fancier.

I believe I have now written quite sufficient about the birds' requirements, and would like to touch on a few points that are required from the fancier. In our zeal for our hobby, we are liable to overlook the fact that we should be just not only to ourselves, but to our families. If we accumulate stock to the detriment of the family purse, we are not just to those dependent upon us. If we allow our stock to grow to over-large proportions, the feeding, watering, and other requirements will be an arduous task, instead of being a labour of love.

Old fanciers keep the amount of their stock down to reasonable proportion. But what of the new fancier? He may find that the large stock accumulated in his zeal is becoming a burden, and in such case he should follow the method of the old fancier, rather than give up the hobby under the mistaken impression that it is too hard a labour, and takes up too much time.

Should he be desirous of joining a society, it is his duty to understand what will be required from him as a club member. After he is elected and his club subscription is paid, he is, for better or worse, a shareholder in his society and its affairs. In the event of a deficit in the finances, he is equally responsible with every other member for his proportion of that deficit. On the other hand, in the event of a society being disbanded, he is eligible to receive an equal proportion, with every other member, of the balance of cash that stands in the name of the society.

It is his duty to attend the club's meetings, especially if he reside within an easy access of the society's club room, and not to leave the business of the club to be carried on by the few, for it is disheartening to the secretary, and those who attend each meeting, to find a poor attendance of their fellow members. Even should there be no special business to be transacted, he is shirking his duty by non-attendance. It is the bounden duty of all, when possibly convenient, to attend the meetings.

The Use of a Bird Organ.

Our duties are not completed by attendance at the club's meeting; we should promote and enter into discussions for the edification and welfare of our fellow members, for all are not familiar with the various and sometimes intricate subjects connected with our hobby. One may be well versed in the breeding, another in the training, another may only have a rudimentary knowledge of the proper feeding, or say the renovating of the cages, and an exchange of ideas is beneficial to all, makes the meetings attractive and instructive, and is an incentive to the recruiting of new members. Remember always that the expert staff and the columns of CAGE BIRDS are ever at your service, gratis.

I have frequently been asked whether it is necessary to have an organ to assist in the training of the young birds, and many debates have taken place on the usefulness or otherwise of the organ, while the point of their often being offered for sale has not been neglected. It is obvious that all are not for sale for the same reason; in one the tone may not be to the owner's liking, sounding hard, or forced, and not sufficiently mellow, or, it may be pitched too high on some of the tours. Again, organs vary in the length of time of "running down," and more attention is necessary for one organ than for another.

ALWAYS have plenty of fresh air in your room, but avoid draughts.

Always have clean water in the drinkers, and freely use the bath.

In Winter think over what you intend to do in the Spring. Never wait till that season of the year comes round.

Get your breeding cages ready and fixed up by the end of January, with all the accessories complete and in working order.

Have movable cage fronts and perches. Also have sand-trays, so that you can go in the evening and clean out without disturbing the hen on her nest when sitting.

Use Sanitary Distemper for the inside of cages. It is so easy to use, and is also a disinfectant and kills red-mite.

Look out for your stock birds as soon as the moulting season is over (about October) and not later than December, so that the birds get to know their new owner—especially the hens.

Feed your birds that you intend to breed with about the month of February with egg-food, and also some mixed seeds. At this time of year the weather is more trying, and they want warmer food. Don't give a lot of green food; soaked rape and sweet apple are best.

The beginning or middle of March I consider soon enough to pair your birds, unless they are in a very forward condition. Those that are backward then should be given a leaf of dandelion daily and a liberal supply of egg-food till ready to nest.

Do it Yourself.

Try and look after your birds' welfare yourself; don't trust to anyone else if you can help it.

I advise a beginner not to take the eggs away as laid; let the hen alone for at least the first round, and see how she goes on.

When she has laid her clutch of eggs remove the cock bird altogether, as he may do more harm than good.

When the young are 16 to 20 days' old then run him with hen and young, and watch how he treats them. If inclined to be nasty and pull feathers from the young put the wire slide between, so that he can feed young through this. Run the hen with him, of course, now and again, say for 15 to 30 minutes in the morning and evening. If he proves a good feeder let him stop with the young, who will get on all the better for his help.

When the young are taken from their parents (can feed themselves) I always give a liberal supply of soaked seed, also some crushed dry seed and rolled oats.

SOME FEATHERED EXQUISITES AT THE HORTICULTURAL HALL SHOW.—Concluded.

Guiana. It requires a roomy cage, as it is a restless, active, vivacious, and I must also add a truculent species. It thrives well on a good insectile mixture, ripe fruit ad lib., and a few live insects.

The specimen staged by Lady Kathleen Pilkington was in tip-top form—the purity and richness of the hues of its tight and silky garment could not be surpassed, not even by the bird in its native haunts. The excellence of Lady Pilkington's bird was, with that of other exhibits staged in its near vicinity, an ample demonstration that a bird can enjoy a long, happy, and contented life though caged, and its general condition and fitness not be one whit below that of wild nature itself.

The species above noted are merely a tithe of the "Feathered Exquisites" staged, but are representative of the many Orders of birds on view.

Special Prizes from Australia.

SIR,—I have received from the L. and P.O.S. £3 3s., from the Victorian Canary Society and Mr. Frank White, to be used as special prize money at L. and P.O.S. shows. I am asked to acknowledge receipt of same in your columns, which I now do, with many thanks.

Hamilton (War Fund) Show.

SIR,—Are the fanciers doing their duty here? Entries are disappointing in the extreme, and I am compelled to extend entries up to morning of show, Dec. 12, to exhibitors outside the borough. Lanarkshire is full of fanciers, and Hamilton is in its centre, and there is no reason why a large entry should not come. There is no "prize-money," no doubt, but we have the Border Fancy three medals—one for best clear or ticked, even or uneven marked; one for best green or cinnamon, and one for the novice—also a whole lot of valuable specials. I again appeal to fanciers to help.

WALTER S. WILSON, Hon. Sec.

The Rambling Brambling.

SIR,—Allow me to put right one item in your very excellent report of the show held at the Horticultural Hall. In it you "express surprise that an experienced British bird exhibitor should use a show cage with a water-hole capacious enough to permit a hen Brambling to walk through it." I wrote to Mr. Tyson asking for an explanation, and he writes me as follows:—"I was standing by the cage at the time and directly the cage was lifted out the door sprung open, and the bird was gone. Whether the fastening had become unloosed through taking the cage out or whether it had not been securely fixed, I cannot say." In conclusion I must heartily thank Mr. Pretty for all his trouble, and for being the means of restoring her back to me.

Leicester Sets a Splendid Example.

£20 Given to Charities.

SIR,—I have the pleasure to inform you that on behalf of the Leicester Hand-in-Hand C.B.S. I have handed to the National Relief Fund £4 2s. 6d. and to the Belgian Relief Fund 30s., being the proceeds of our late open show. Through the columns of CAGE BIRDS I beg to thank all those who supported us in this good work. With the aid of our sister society, the Leicester C.B.S., we have during the past twenty months given £20 to various charities. We consider this good business, and hope that societies in other towns will follow our example.

Is Face Value Better Than Pedigree?

"How Pedigree May Tell!"

SIR,—Under the above quoted heading you printed last week a paragraph relating to five Yorkshires, every one a winner, bred from one pair of birds, presented by Mr. Crisp to the daughter of a friend, and you ask the question: "Who said face value was better than pedigree?" The paragraph recalls the interesting controversy of a few years back between two writers over the noms-de-plume "Sunny Jim" and "Little Jim." I remember at the time we fanciers were left in doubt as to the ultimate result of the conflict, and I believe the contestants decided to call it a draw; but we were so eaten to the bone with curiosity as to the identity of the warriors that they were persuaded to reveal themselves, and—if my memory isn't playing me a scurvy trick—they turned out to be Mr. Crisp (the donor of the pair of birds) and Mr. Frank Cole. When I read your par., I thought what a wonderful coincidence, albeit a disastrous coincidence to Mr. Crisp's line of argument; for it bears out Mr. Cole's arguments and contentions far more than a sheaf of letters could ever do. Trusting again to memory, I think Mr. Crisp's arguments in the controversy were in favour of the face value theory, and anyone who recalls those arguments and has read of his success on the show bench must have thought him right—which he was, for no Yorkshire breeder's career has been so surprisingly successful—yet he himself supplies an unanswerable argument in support of Mr. Cole's theory of pedigree. One can't help but think that when Mr. Cole read the par it would be soothing to his pride; for weren't the birds which bred the five winners of little—comparatively speaking—value facially? But what a pedigree they had! Is it possible that both Mr. Crisp and Mr. Cole were right, and that the contest really and actually ended in a draw?

SUB ROSA.

When Is a Novice Not a Novice?

SIR,—Would you explain to me, through your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, what "a novice" means? If a novice has won a 1st prize in open competition in the Norwich section, would that bar him showing as a novice in any of the other Canary sections, or only in that particular section? Also if a novice has won one 1st in Mules, open competition, would that make him a champion in all sections and bar him showing as a novice in any Canary section?

A NOVICE.

[We believe the generally accepted rule adopted by societies is (1) if a novice wins a 1st prize in open competition with any variety of Canary, he becomes a champion, and must thenceforward show as such in all Canary classes; (2) a win with Mules or Hybrids does not make a novice a champion in the Canary section, but only in the section in which his win was scored; this applies similarly to the other sections (British and Foreign birds). We should be glad to hear from societies whose ruling differs from the above.—EDITOR, "C.B."] and Perches on Gun for Tit-bits.

Robin Sings to Soldiers at the Front

SIR,—Being a reader of your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, and also a lover and keeper of birds, I am sending you this, hoping it will be of interest. About ten yards from the muzzle of my gun there is a small tree in which a Robin has made his home. Although the gun has been fired daily for weeks, and gives a very loud report, our Robin takes not the least bit of notice, but still gives us his little song. He has now got so tame that he takes up a position on the "traversing lever" (when we are not firing, of course) and waits for the usual crumbs and tit-bits. This has been going on for weeks, but the noise has no effect on our little friend. My gunners take a lot of interest in him, and you may be sure that he doesn't go short of anything. We have given him the name of "Robbo." I am afraid that I cannot conform to your rules about writing on one side of paper only, as writing paper is rather scarce, so please excuse me this time. I must not send you my address either, but would you please acknowledge this letter to my wife, who will let me know.

Sad Ending to Career of Noted Redpoll-Bullfinch Hybrid.

SIR,—I am sorry to report the sad loss of my well-known winning Redpoll-Bullfinch Hybrid, through being delayed during transit to Sale show, held Nov. 27 and 28. I entered a team and dispatched them from here (Accrington) on 7.15 p.m. train for Sale, via Manchester, and they did not arrive till the day following at 6 p.m. Needless to say they were too late for judging, it having taken the railway people 23 hours to deliver birds which had only about 25 miles of a journey. On the return journey they left Sale Station on Saturday 8.19 train, and I did not receive them until Sunday evening at 6.30, they having been travelling again about 22 hours to reach their destination. The Hybrid did not look so grand after doing this double journey of mishap. However, I left nothing to chance as regards giving him special care, and he seemed to improve wonderfully till about Friday, and then a change for the worse came, and he died on Sunday last, just a week after getting back. He was only quite a young bird, having had two full moults, and he had again come out a grand colour and was in splendid show form. He has been out only twice this season (with exception of Sale) and he stood 1st at Liverpool and 2nd at Manchester. Last show season he had a grand record, winning eight 1st prizes and specials and a 2nd, 3rd and 4th prize at the leading shows, also CAGE BIRDS Diploma and special at Liverpool show and a championship diploma at the Bradford National, truly a good beginning on the show bench, a career which by misfortune is now cut short. I must live in hopes of getting another as good.

I have noticed from time to time the railway transit of birds has been brought before the Fancy through CAGE BIRDS and I have not the least doubt it will have to be dealt with by a strong body of fanciers who can wrench better conditions of travelling from the railway companies. I will just quote an instance of a railway servant's statement concerning birds. A short time ago I was waiting with a friend for some birds coming on rail, and a railway servant remarked: "You want to start keeping Newfoundland dogs, and then when you send them to shows they can see them, and they will not get lost."

WHO FIRST BRED AND EXHIBITED THE YORKSHIRE CANARY?

SIR,—Who bred the first Yorkshire Canary? I see my name was suggested as being that most fortunate individual. This is the first intimation that has reached me, either publicly or privately, of my name being associated with either the breeding of or the naming of the first Yorkshire Canary. Who bred the first Yorkshire Canary, or even when, are questions that are shrouded in obscurity, and will probably remain so in the days that are to come. Were it at all necessary, abundant proof could be adduced in confirmation of this view by myself, and very probably others of a like age or experience.

Mr. J. Holroyd evidently takes the same view as myself as to the obscurity attending who bred the first Yorkshire Canary. He gives his version of the less obscure question—who exhibited the first Canary, accompanied with the prefix Yorkshire as a distinguishing marking, or making, of a new variety. Here again I am led to the conclusion that, though sincere in his belief that what he has written is in conformity with actual facts, Mr. Holroyd is somewhat lacking in those essential facts which, when minutely examined, will, or can prove that his version is the correct one. Let me give an instance. Mr. Holroyd infers that the late Mr. William Heap was the first exhibitor at a Crystal Palace show who exhibited a Canary bearing the name "Yorkshire Canary," and further says that it would be about the year 1870. Now had Mr. H.

consulted a Palace catalogue he would have found that a number of Canaries were exhibited in the any other variety class in 1863 that were catalogued as "Yorkshire Canaries"; and for ten successive years Yorkshire Canaries continued to be exhibited as such in the any other variety class. During this period Mr. Heap's name appeared as an exhibitor in 1865, 1867 and 1868. It will thus be seen that Yorkshire Canaries were exhibited in two successive years prior to the advent of Mr. Heap's Yorkshires at the Palace. It was in 1875 when a separate class was given for Yorkshire Variety Canaries, since which time they have not ceased to be represented there in varied quantities.

Knowing Mr. Holroyd as I have known him for a great number of years, I feel sure that he is innocent of giving anything but what in his belief is true and accurate. I feel that he will be ready to forgive me for the correction of his statement, as I know well enough that the opinion and belief is generally held, at least in Bradford and the surrounding districts, that Mr. Heap exhibited the first Canary at the Palace show as a Yorkshire variety bird. I will go further and say that Mr. Heap himself honestly believed that such was the case; and in all probability I myself would have been one who would have shared in that belief had not extracts from the early Palace catalogues convinced me differently. JONAS KNIGHT.

Abandonment of the Crystal Palace 1915 Show.

SIR,—I regret to have to announce that owing to the war difficulties have arisen which make it practically impossible to complete the necessary arrangements for this, the 56th National Cage Bird Show. The committee of the L. and P.O.S. have decided that under these circumstances they have no alternative but to cancel the show. There is every reason to believe that the show will be held in February 1916 at the Crystal Palace as usual.

Novices and the Recent Sheffield District Show.

SIR,—I desire to ask the officials of the Sheffield O.S., through the columns of CAGE BIRDS, whether it was their intention, at their late District Show, for the novice first prize wins to be counted as though the wins had been taken in their respective society's club shows? Take, for instance, a novice who shows and wins two firsts at the S.O.S. District Show, and then wins one or two firsts in his own members' show; would that member be considered as out of the novice section next year? I am speaking of members' shows only. I have been told such wins are not counted.

EXHIBITOR.

Lizards Abroad and at Home.

SIR,—I am pleased to say I have received a letter from Mr. Dowler, of Johannesburg, South Africa, saying that the trio of Lizards I sent him arrived in good condition, and that he is highly delighted with same. This is the second consignment to this gentleman. I sent them away in early October, and they arrived at their destination Oct. 24. I have also sold my 3rd prize Liverpool broken cap Gold to Miss Alice V. Hatch, Redhill, but in a letter from her she tells me he arrived two tail feathers short, and a Yorkshire cock I sent her at the same time arrived in a very poor condition; and this in spite of being in show cages and case, as when sending to shows. I shall have something to say to the railway officials here, as on Wednesday night last I kept on the station to see these birds put into the van. The porter had some distance to travel, and I only managed to spot him just as he was putting the case in the luggage van; he had the case upside down! You may imagine I let myself go, and in the face of events I am only sorry I did not report the matter to the station-master. I expect this was the reason they arrived in such a condition. Then I am told that the railway company, acting under Government orders, does not accept any risk—yet they still charge the 50 per cent. extra for small birds!

The A.O.V. Bunting Class at the Scottish National Show.

SIR,—As a regular visitor to Scotland's great annual event in the cage-bird world, it has always struck me as being very unfair that birds of the Bunting species, not included in the National B.B. and M.C. list, should be allowed to compete in this class. The birds I refer to are the Meadow, Black-headed and Oortolan Buntings. At such shows as the L.C.B.A. and the Crystal Palace only the Corn, Cirl, Snow, Reed and Lapland Buntings are eligible, and rightly so, in view of the fact that the others are not recognised as British birds by the national specialist club. I hope to see the Scottish National fall into line with the two other great shows above-mentioned, as by so doing they will encourage the exhibiting of the recognised British species in greater numbers. I do not know who is to judge this class at the coming show, but I hope on New Year's Day to see only the N.B.B. and M.C. named species in the cards.

B. B.

[Possibly our correspondent has overlooked the fact that the official list of the Scottish British Bird and Mule Club (under whose patronage the show in question is held) includes the names of the Meadow and Black-headed Buntings as being eligible to compete as British—maybe, though we cannot say for certain (we are writing from memory), that of the Oortolan as well.—EDITOR.]

SUNDERLAND C.B.A.

Meeting Dec. 5, Mr. Farrer presided over a good attendance. Decided to add another hen class to the Lizard section, three classes of which are being guaranteed by five fanciers. The secretary of the N. L. Club informed the meeting that he had five cash specials to give to Lizard classes for open competition. We have also been granted the patronage of the L. and L.F.A. The meeting finished up with several small matters relating to open show. Admission tickets were distributed to members for sale, any member not present can have same on application.—John Peacock, Hon. Sec.

General meeting, Dec. 3, Mr. A. Holden chair. Letter read from Mr. J. Craig (ass. sec.), 1st Cameron Highlanders, from 1st General Hospital, Aberdeen. He was rendered hors de combat on Nov. 11 at Ypres, whilst knocking the Prussian Guards out. He hopes to see some of his Newcastle chums shortly. Will members and other fanciers please note I have still some of Mr. Craig's birds for disposal at my address at 218, Ladykirk Road. See advert. this week's CAGE BIRDS. Nomination for officials for 1915 must be sent in by next meeting in January.—J. W. Reed, Sec.

EDINBURGH WESTERN O.S.

Meeting, Riego Street Hall, Dec. 3. Mr. Ballantyne chair, in place of Mr. Andrews. The auditor, Mr. Bowman, reported the books in good order. Balance-sheet was read, and showed a good record of the year's working with a substantial balance. It was proposed to break up the Cinnamon and Green class for Borders, and to open up a class for Greens in the Norwich section; this will be brought up again at next meeting. Agreed to try and run a table show on one of the club nights on the same lines as the annual show. Sec. was instructed to write the B.F.C.C. patronage for next year's show. Mr. Hogg, Broughton Road, was admitted a member. C. Graub, Sec.

BIRMINGHAM'S BEST ENTRY

Annual Open Show of the City of Birmingham (C.B.S., Dec. 2 and 3, at the Crown Hotel, in a splendid room, well lighted and free from draughts. The entry was a fine one, the best the society has had, and totalled £10, quality throughout was of the very highest standard, many crack exhibitors sending in grand teams, and each section contained birds of the very highest merit. The men in charge are all old fanciers, and the society is very smartly officered, the president, Mr. J. A. Eckersley, being one of the right sort, an enthusiastic fancier and good supporter. The genial chairman, Mr. A. Broadhurst, works very hard, being ever ready to give any information possible, while the vice-president, Mr. J. H. de Mallet, deserves special praise and thanks for the way he worked at the show, and all night previous, these gentlemen were backed up by a grand committee in Messrs. W. C. Wells, H. T. Collier, J. H. Allen, J. Clay, T. Jones, Burke, Childs, Jerry, Dipple, Fessy, Jeffreys, Crowther. The secretarial reins are still in the hands of that good old fancier, Mr. J. H. Jones, who thoroughly understands the weight of his post, and carries out his duties in a businesslike manner, while his kindly and courteous manner makes him very popular.

Norwich were a great show on their own, and were well above the average, which speaks well for having the patronage of O.N.P.C. The old yellows, 21, were not only the biggest lot ever seen together, but the finest; in fact, the cream of the fancy was here, and many noted winners were cardless. Novices, as usual, came up in great force and staged some real beauties, and in some instances would have held their own in the champion section; many exhibitors claimed it the best lot of Norwich ever seen together. Yorkshires, too, were a great attraction and many admirers of the gentleman Canary were in attendance. The merit throughout was fine. In the novices some very nice ones were staged. In Crests, the £5 limit kept away the tip-toppers. Cinnamonons were not much, and Borders were down in numbers, but in hybrids and British there were again all the noted cracks, Messrs. Martin and Archer's Linnet-Mule, "Perfection," and Greenfinch-Chaffinch Hybrid, both being staged in lovely order, as also were Mr. Parlett's noted light Can-Bullie and Greenf-Mule, the latter we heard has won 81 first prizes, a wonderful performance. Goldfinches were a fine lot of 21, and Foreigners were a nice collection. The show was well patronised. Mr. J. Robson judged Norwich, Hyb., Brit., and For., and Mr. J. H. Roe the remainder.

NOR. CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK. NORTHERN YORKS. C.C.

The value of enthusiasm and efficient organisation was amply demonstrated at Newcastle on Dec. 5, when the Northern Yorkshire C.C. held its first annual show. Not so many years ago fanciers from the county of many acres could come North and practically carry everything before them, but now they would do very well to hold their own. This is entirely due to the N.Y.C.C., which organisation, since its inception some years ago, has done everything in its power to further the interests of the Yorkshire Canary, guided by such sterling fanciers as the President, Mr. T. C. Crawhall, and Mr. R. Tindale, together with other keen enthusiasts. The show was such a success that it is likely to become an annual affair. The large room above the King Edward Hotel was just the right place for the purpose—nice size, good light, and entirely free from draughts, and the thanks of the club are due to the genial landlord, Mr. J. Bell, who generously placed the room at the disposal of the members entirely free of cost, and also did everything in his power for the comfort of visitors. The courteous and obliging secretary, Mr. R. Tindale, had everything well in hand, and also undertook the duties of show manager; the whole of his arrangements went off without the slightest hitch. Good work was also done by the chairman, Mr. C. Cattell, and the vice-chairman, Mr. L. Dix; while Mr. J. Stewart, from Whitehaven, Mr. L. Laidlaw, of Norwich fame, and Mr. Natrass, from Bishop Auckland, got through their work as stewards in fine style. Entries came up well, totalling about 180, and quality throughout was superb, the majority of the birds being true to type and teeming with quality. Challenge cup for best unflighted was won by Mr. Crawhall with a magnificent yellow cock, its first time out, it doubtless has a great future before it. Ramsden's cup for 2nd best unflighted went to Mr. J. Stewart's buff cock, another gem of the first water, which should also do well. The novice classes contained some grand birds, but were rather disappointing in numbers. The show was well patronised, and we understand will undoubtedly be a financial success. Mr. F. Armstrong (Halifax) judged.

Abersychan Proves Another Welsh Success

Third open show, Co-operative Hall, Dec. 3. The show proved another great success, nearly 100 more birds being staged than at last year's show, and the promoters were highly delighted at their efforts meeting with such good response from fanciers. Norwich were a very level lot, some really good birds heading the different classes. Yorks were well represented, Messrs. Ogden Bros. sending some of their noted crakes, as also did Messrs. Thompson and H. C. Smith. Novice classes filled well; indeed, it is remarkable how well these classes are supported in Wales, many of the exhibits would have caused some alteration of the awards in the champion classes, and many of those lower down in the awards were separated by condition only from the leaders. British formed a very nice collection, the winning Goldfinches and Bullfinches were indeed real gems, and should do a lot more winning for their owners. Everything passed off without a hitch, thanks to the excellent management of Mr. T. Conch, who was ably assisted by a hardworking committee, Messrs. T. Parry, T. Ashman, G. Walters, R. Cleaves, W. Parfitt, and H. Walters. The secretary, Mr. Fred Sweeting, is a very energetic and hardworking official, of whom the society have good reason to be proud. Mr. H. W. Battye judged.

WHITBURN.

9th annual show, Dec. 5, Town Hall, quite a suitable place for the purpose, comfortable in every respect. Birds were neatly staged, and were all seen to the best advantage. Entries in Norwich, British and Mules were similar to former years. Borders, which provided 13 classes, made a great show, 140 exhibits came up in this section, some grand specimens being amongst them. In the Border Green and Cinnamon sections Councillor Lambie accounted for five 1sts and annexed the Ure cup for most points with six nominated birds, quite a creditable performance. The executive of the society are blessed with a wealthy patronage, and there was also a fair gate, so it is to be expected the exhibition will again turn out the success it deserves. Mr. Snillie, Rickarton, judged Border Fancies; R. Bald, Bathgate, Norwich, Mules and Brit., in place of Mr. Marlin, Hamilton, who, owing to a family bereavement, could not fill his engagement.

CREST (4): 1, Sneddon, large varieg., nicely got up, well groomed crest; 2, Laing, similar to winner, lovely cond.; 3, 4, R. Lambie, cl. and gr. C.B. SOUTH LONDON COL. AND F.A.

40th annual show, Grand Hall, Old Kent Road Baths, November 19. Entries totalled 216, slightly down on last year, but quality throughout was in advance of previous years, the exhibits in several classes being hard to separate. Cup for best young bird went to Mr. J. S. Fairman's mkd. Yorks, a bird of exceptional merit, which also took the cup for best 1914 Yorks. Cup for best Bord., Messrs. Burton Bros., for the second year in succession. The Lee Novice trophy for best bird bred by a novice also went to a Border, Sergt. J. H. Joplin being the winner. The birds were staged down the central aisle with plenty of light, and great credit must be given the stewards, Messrs. G. F. Crawford, W. G. Martin, and J. Fuller, for the way in which they looked after the exhibits. In spite of the wretched weather a large number of visitors visited the show in the evening. Mr. J. Rohson judged.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS FOR RULES, SEE LAST WEEK'S ISSUE.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SWELLING ON LEG (Miss E. Young).—Correction: In this reply last week the words "a serious abscess" should be "a serious abscess."

CAVITY ON CHEEK (Mrs. B. Gunn).—The depression you mention is undoubtedly the nasal orifice—the "gar-hole"—which may be rendered more than usually conspicuous by a thinness of the plumage; and the bird's behaviour is due to a low state of health.

A CRIPPLED YOUNGSTER (A. J., Willesden Green).—I'm afraid it is not possible to properly appreciate a case of this kind at its true value without seeing it, and frankly I incline to the opinion that you are more likely to kill the bird with kindness rather than the reverse.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Batty's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Romsden's "Colour-feeding" (3d.); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each): No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries."

ture of equal parts hemp, niger, teazle, millet and broken groats, and next a morsel of some green salad. One week add 20 drops of Chemical Food to the drinking water every second day, and in the next week give instead six drops of tincture of gentian and four drops of dilute sulphuric acid every second day, and repeat these two weeks' treatment in the same order for a month or six weeks.

BLOOD PERCENTAGE (J. A. W.).—The solution of your little problem is that the young from the hen with 50 per cent. green blood will contain 37 1/2 per cent. of green and 62 1/2 of cinnamon blood; and the young from the hen with 100 per cent. green blood will contain 62 1/2 per cent. of green blood and 37 1/2 per cent. of cinnamon.

CANNOT SING (Constant Reader).—Possibly the bird is only taking a little longer rest than usual, as is not unusual with birds that have passed the first glow of youth. Keep it in a fairly comfortable place, and do not keep the cabinet closed for long periods. Let it have plenty of light and brightness, which will induce it to resume singing more than anything else.

NORWICH GOING BLIND (Bert).—I am afraid nothing whatever will be of the least use in restoring the bird's sight, as it appears to be suffering from paralysis of the optic nerve. You might try the following for a time, but I am not very sanguine of the result. Get a chemist to mix you ten grains of sulphate of zinc in an ounce of distilled water, and add two drachms of rose water. Catch the bird and place one or two drops of this lotion on each eye morning and evening, holding the bird in such a position as will assist the fluid to work around and under the eyelid; do this with each eye.

ABOUT AN AVIARY (R. F. Griffiths).—As you have not yet built the aviary, I would advise you to add at least six inches more to the height of the back if that is possible in order to give a greater slope to the roof and assist in throwing off rain quickly. According to your sketch you have only a drop of six inches in a width of six feet, and by making the back six inches higher and getting a slope of twelve inches would make a great improvement.

each aperture, and arranged so that the perforations are not in juxtaposition. (2) 8ft. Gns. by 2ft. would be sufficient for the window. It would be a good plan to build this on a frame separately, and make it to slide in grooves into position, so that during the summer months the whole space of the window could be added to the ventilation system. If made fast one-half of it should be made to open with struts for use in summer. (3) Answered in No. 2.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BIRDS NOT MOULTING (Perplexed).—I am afraid there is something hardly right in your management, or your birds would have moulted before this. If you are quite certain the Canaries and Finch have not changed their plumage, the sooner you put them through it the better. I would advise you to put them all together into the largest light cage you have, and partly cover the front, gradually extending it each day until they are pretty well covered up. This will probably start a moult. Be careful of any change of temperature when they have commenced, and see that they are not in a draught.

BIRDS FOR AN AVIARY (H. Kay).—You cannot do better than keep British Finches in your outside aviary. They are easy to feed, and most of them are quite nice songsters. You could commence with a pair of each of the following: Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Linnet, Siskin, Greenfinch, Redpoll, and, if you like them, a pair of Yellow Buntings, also Canaries during the summer months.

A QUESTION OF PAIRING (Miss E. Smith).—A Roller hen would be all right to pair with a Siskin, but you would do better to get a smallish Norwich, because although the Norwich might not be much larger than the Roller, it would probably throw good sized Mules, whereas the Roller hen, having come from small stock would naturally produce young after its own kind. If you have the Roller hen and only wish to breed singing Mules, there is no objection to your using her.

THRUSH OUT OF CONDITION (J. B.).—I do not think there is very much the matter with your Thrush, a mild aperient occasionally and a little change of diet will soon put him right. Dissolve as much sulphate of soda as will cover a sixpence in two tablespoonfuls of water, and give for one day, repeating again in 3 days. As regards feeding, it is a mistake to keep a bird on the same food always, you should vary it by occasionally giving him a feed of good insectile mixture, made moist with scraped raw carrot or boiled potato, also keep him fairly well supplied with fruit. This is grand food for them and not used half enough by keepers of soft-billed birds.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

BREEDING BUDGERIGARS (Miss Myers).—Leave them where they are till the young begin to show their heads through the hole in the husk, then take the cage into one of your sitting-rooms and place it in a cool part of the room; but it must be in some light and airy, yet not draughty, position. It is too late now to remove the Lovebirds, as this would disturb the Budgerigars too much. There is always a greater risk of egg-binding at this season, but your birds appear to have passed the ordeal successfully. As regards diet, many pairs cleft to rear on seed alone; keep a few oats in the cage, and as soon as you hear young hissing, push a crust of stale household bread between cage wires, hang a slice of sweet apple in the cage, and supply a small tin of biscuit, broken up to the size of maize; if any, or all, of these are eaten, keep up the supply regularly.

GREENHOUSE AVIARY (W. G. B.).—Providing the atmosphere is not too moist, the birds you name should do well enough under the conditions stated. However, they will be better without a hot atmosphere, and you must secure thorough ventilation without draught. A minimum of 40 degs. and a maximum of 60 degs. F. would be ample, and during really mild periods, when heat is going, keep it down to 60 degs., by ample ventilation. It is no use putting any kind of living plants into a Lovebird or Parakeet aviary; such are cut to pieces at once. I do not like Virginian cork bark for such purposes—that is, for such birds as are likely to bite it to pieces. Get natural bark of any of our native trees for such a purpose. All nest receptacles for Parakeets should have a concave bottom; small barrels are excellent for the purpose. Some of the Lovebirds use bark, leaves, and fine twigs for lining the nest-box, log, or barrel, and for such as Black-checks, Madagascars, and Blue-wing Lovebirds, you must supply these things. It is very unsatisfactory mixing Parakeets and Finchlike birds, and in a Parakeet aviary you must be content with grass and herbage; no other plant life has any chance of existence.

FOREIGN BIRDS (Miss E. Smith).—(1a) If you mean by your query can you keep Lovebirds with Finches, etc., then such a course is inadvisable, as when such are confined with Finches, tragedies are almost certain to occur sooner or later. But I cannot be really definite as you give me no idea of the size of your aviary—a most important point. (1) Yes, always providing the birds are not overcrowded. (2) Black-checked, Red-headed, Madagascar, and Peach-faced Lovebirds have all been bred in captivity. If you read through the report of the L.C.B.A. show in our last issue you will see that not only were they shown, but they were among the prize-winners. Chances in smaller and local shows are largely governed by the wording of the schedule. (3) All should stand a reasonable chance of success providing you are in reach of shows providing classification for such species. Green-billed Toucan and White-throated Thrush should certainly be probable winners. (4) Again, it is a question of classification. Foreign bird hybrids, one parent of which must be a foreign bird, had a class to themselves at L.C.B.A., and quite a number of such have been reared in captivity.

AUSTRALIAN COCKATOO (White Powder).—This is quite natural, and need cause you no anxiety. Powder-bloom exists in the plumage of most healthy specimens of many species of Parrots and Cockatoos. Do not give the bird table scraps or any slops and messes, but confine its diet to seed mixture, fruit,

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

W. T. Goord and "A Reader."—See notice at foot of column 4, page 293, in last week's issue.

H. Kay.—(1) Even if the exhibitor lives where the atmosphere is very pure, he will be at a disadvantage eventually, should he show much during the season, unless he hand-washes his birds. They get soiled, inevitably, at the shows, and whilst travelling. Some exhibitors in the country who show but little get on all right solely with baths and sprays. (2) In the Canary and Hybrid sections, pairs are permissible only in pair classes. It is allowable to exhibit small insectivorous British birds and all Foreign birds (unless, of course, the schedule specifies to the contrary) in pairs—i.e., cock and hen. (3) The room would suit very hardy birds.

C. Pearson.—An answer has been sent to your secretary. We have no objection whatever; it is a pleasure under normal circumstances.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

ALWAYS USE "CAGE BIRDS" DEPOSIT SYSTEM.

We are not responsible for the statements made in advertisements, nor of the bona-fides of either buyers or sellers. In all transactions the adoption of our Deposit System should be insisted upon.

RULES.

1.—PROCEDURE.—The intending purchaser should send to this office the amount of the purchase (our deposit fee included), and at the same time he should communicate with the seller, stating what it is he requires sent on approval. We acknowledge receipt of the deposit to both parties. In all cases the depositor should give his name and address, and also that of the vendor, and must write same clearly and distinctly.

2.—END OF TRANSACTION.—The deposit is retained by us until we hear from both parties that the transaction has been completed. If a sale has been effected, we hand the amount deposited to the seller. If a sale has not been effected, we return the amount to the depositor. The transaction must be conducted by the parties themselves. We merely hold the deposit.

3.—AMOUNT OF COMMISSION.—The fee is 6d. for each £1, or fraction of £1, and it must be sent at same time as the deposit.

4.—IMPORTANT POINTS.—The depositor must decide within forty-eight hours of the receipt of the goods whether he will keep or return the same, unless, that is, some other period of approval (of which we must be advised) is agreed upon by both parties. The depositor must at the same time notify us of the fact that he has returned the goods. If the goods are not returned within the said forty-eight hours, we reserve the right to send the deposit to the seller after the expiration of that period. And should the seller fail within three days to notify us of the receipt of his goods back again, the transaction will be treated as ended, and the deposit will be returned to the depositor.

5.—A SATISFACTORY PURCHASE.—When a transaction has been completed to the satisfaction of both depositor and seller, both parties must at once return the deposit receipts as a guarantee of its completion. The depositor must at the same time instruct us to pay over the deposit to the seller.

6.—GOODS ALREADY SOLD.—If the goods are sold before our deposit note reaches the seller, or if for any other reason he declines to do business, he must at once return the deposit note to us. Failing his receipt, we reserve the right to return the deposit to the sender after the expiration of three days.

7.—FRESH TRANSACTION.—In case no sale be effected, a deposit is available for purposes of a fresh transaction, provided another deposit fee be paid.

8.—GOODS IN TRANSIT.—Goods in transit are at the seller's risk, and any damage or loss sustained on the journey must be borne by the seller. But goods not approved of must be properly packed and returned by the same means as were used in sending the same.

9.—PAYMENT OF CARRIAGE.—The payment of carriage must be a matter for arrangement between the vendor and depositor. We do not undertake to settle disputes affecting questions of carriage. But in the absence of other arrangements the purchaser is liable for the carriage of the goods, and if the goods are sent on approval and returned, each party pays the carriage one way.

10.—DISPUTES.—In case of a dispute, the decision of the Editor is final.

IMPORTANT.

SEND THE FULL COMMISSION.—If the full commission does not accompany the deposit, the vendor will not be notified of its receipt until the amount deficient plus the extra postage incurred has been paid to us.

HOW TO REMIT.—Under no circumstances will Cheques or Post-dated Money Orders be accepted as deposits. Uncrossed Postal Orders must be sent and the numbers taken for safety.

"Cage Birds" says: "A GRAND BOOK."

Confirmed by Mr. H. HEALD, Claypit Lane, Leeds, who wrote on Dec. 7, 1914, as follows:—

"Seeing your splendid advertisement in this week's 'Cage Birds,' I think it my duty to write you to show what the book has done for me. I got one when it first came out. If you look at the list of awards in this issue, you will see that I have been successful in gaining First and Special in Mr. Curtis's class, and Second and Special at the L.C.B.A. The great thing is that I bred the Bird that won First and Special, and I put it down to the fact that I gained my knowledge from your fine Book. I think every novice should have it. It is money well spent."

A Great Christmas Opportunity

BE IN TIME

The secret of Success in Canary Breeding, as in everything else, is KNOWLEDGE. It is easy enough to win IF YOU KNOW HOW. Mr. Heald's letter is conclusive proof that the secret of successful Breeding is a thing that can be learned, and that the WAVERLEY book, "CANARIES, HYBRIDS, AND BRITISH BIRDS," in Cage and Aviary (complete in one compact volume) is the book that can teach you as it has taught him.

THERE IS MONEY IN CAGE BIRDS.

There is plenty of money as well as scientific delight, and the satisfaction of following a most fascinating hobby, to be got out of Cage Bird Breeding if you study Canaries and Hybrids scientifically.

The Waverley Book on Canaries is THE STANDARD BOOK ON THIS SUBJECT; it is written by experts, by men who have mastered the secrets of successful breeding by years of patient study and experiment, and who here teach YOU, in simple direct style, HOW TO BREED BIRDS THAT WILL WIN. Its reliable Coloured Plates are universally acknowledged to be invaluable in showing the student what to breed to. The unique section on HYBRIDS presents information that has never before been tabulated. With this knowledge at hand any intelligent breeder may confidently set himself to produce one of the "crosses" that have not so far been achieved. This book teaches all about what has been done, how it was done, and what has never yet been accomplished.

CANARIES, HYBRIDS AND BRITISH BIRDS is up-to-date in every department. It gives the latest authoritative information on Shows, Exhibiting, Standard Points, Defects, Marks, Judging, etc., etc., of every known breed. This is the only book that will show you how to win. It has no silly talky—talky about the delight of Bird-keeping; it is crammed full of solid information.

We do not ask you to take our word as to its merits. We ask you to accept our grand Christmas Offer of FREE Approval and judge as to the usefulness of this sound book for yourself.

FOR CHRISTMAS

Enthusiastic Praise.

Mr. McLinden, Dublin:—

"It commends itself to the past master in bird keeping, and is invaluable to the amateur, for it is written in such simple language. The chapters on Rearing and Pairing are very explicit, and the coloured plates are, to my mind, simply superb."

Mrs. Bertram, Christchurch, Hants:—

"I have found it of the greatest use, while the illustrations are of value to the novice and the expert alike. The sections dealing with Hybrids is especially commendable, and should prove of service to fanciers."

Mr. Tett, Hillside, Brisport:—

"I made up my mind to retain it as soon as I examined it. It is full of useful hints most useful to bird-keepers."

Mr. W. G. Evans, Seaforth, Liverpool:—

"In my opinion there is not a finer book on Birds on the market. I have shown it to some of the leading fanciers in Liverpool, and they all speak very highly of it. No novice should be without it; in fact, all canary breeders would do well to secure a copy."

Mr. E. C. Penlington, Lloyd Park, Walthamstow:

"One of the finest books I have ever seen; one that would be most useful to any fancier whether an old hand or a beginner. I think the Plates are worthy of the highest praise."

Mr. Bryant, Acton, London:—

"Best work on this subject I have ever seen."

Mr. Ralph Harrison, Whitley Bay:—

"The book to make breeding a success—complete in every department."

Mr. H. Hancock, Burslem:—

"I think the book a great help and well worth the money."

Mr. Lenyon, Clydach, Rhondda Valley:—

"I have no hesitation in recommending it to young breeders as essential. Without doubt the most complete work of this kind."

It Will Cost You Nothing

Our Grand Christmas FREE Approval Offer enables you to have this Book and the wonderful Anatomical Sectional Model of a Canary, which we present to Buyers, in your home for a full week during the holiday season, to read and examine and use it, to study the fine Coloured Plates of every known breed, and the many hundreds of text illustrations of Cages, Houses, Breeding Nests, Appliances, &c. XMAS HOLIDAYS.

Invitation to all Fanciers.

I beg to offer an invitation to all fanciers to pay me a visit during the Christmas or New Year holidays. I shall be at home all the time, and it will be a pleasure to show anyone round my rooms, whether desiring to purchase or not.

I have a magnificent collection of Norwich, Yorkshires, Borders, Crests and Crestbreds, Scotch Fancies, British-bred Rollers, Mules, etc., all for sale at reasonable prices, and I defy anyone to give better value. The following are a few prices:—

Champion Norwich, the Bulldog strain, guaranteed direct from my noted winners. Single birds, Cocks or Hens, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Matched Pairs, 20/-, 25/-, 30/-, 40/-, 50/- per pair upwards.

I have also a number of good birds from other well-known strains as follows:—Smart thick-set Cocks, in full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- each. Cock Cobby Hens, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6 each. Matched breeding Pairs, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- per pair. Grand lengthly Yorkshire Cocks, in perfect condition, and on full song, 6/-, 7/6, 8/6, 10/- each. Erect racy Hens, 3/-, 4/-, 5/-, 6/-, 7/6. Matched breeding Pairs, 8/6, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- per pair. Exhibition Yorkshires, bred from my own winners, and ready for benching, 10/-, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-, 25/-, 30/- upwards.

British Rollers, in full rolling song, will please anyone, 8/6, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/- each. Hens, same pure strain, 3/-, 3/6, 4/-, 5/- each. Matched Pairs, 10/6, 12/6, 15/-, 20/-. If you require any variety of bird come and make your own selection. To those unable to come I am prepared to send one or more birds to any address in the United Kingdom, on 10 days' approval, at my sole risk. I guarantee absolute satisfaction to everyone, or cash returned in full. Send a P.C. for my Free Illustrated Catalogue. Travelling Cages 3d. extra in all cases. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers.

Brass-mounted Parrot Cage: Cross, Otterspool House, The Direct Importer, Liverpool. Established a century. THERE is no more lovely seed-eater than the popular Gouldian Finch, which, however, is very difficult to establish. This trouble can be overcome, and the variety kept successfully. But you must follow the hints given in "Nutsell No. 14," from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C., post free for 2d. From agents (see list frequently published) THOUGH they can often be purchased for the modest half-crown, Pekin Nightingales are very beautiful in plumage, have a fine song, and make ideal cage or aviary birds. Some very helpful information on this variety will be found in "Nutsell No. 19," the author of which is Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S. Get it at once. 2d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. 2d. from our agents (list published frequently). WAXBILLS (Golden-breasted, Orange-cheeked, Grey, and St. Helena). Than this interesting quartette, which can be purchased at from 2/6 to 7/6 a pair, there are few more charming foreigners. They can be successfully kept, too, with little difficulty if you will follow the hints given by Wesley T. Page, F.Z.S., in "Nutsell No. 20," 2d. post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet-st., London, E.C. Call at any of our agents and get it for 2d. (list frequently published).

WALLSEND (Mid-Tyne) C.B.A.

Tenth annual show, Co-operative Hall, Nov. 7. The hall is commodious, cosy, well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries totalled 400—a record for Wallsend. Members and quality were all that could be desired. Norwich were grand classes, also Yorks. and Bords. Liverpool, Manchester, and Bradford winners were on view. Three cups were competed for, and competition was never keener. Mr. Johnston won all three cups—most points with 141, three nominated young birds with three Borders, Greens, and best bird with a Gr. Border buff ck., one of the best seen on a show bench. A neutral judge had to be called upon to decide between Mr. Morrison's Norwich and Mr. Johnston's Border for best bird cup; also Mr. Morrison and Mr. Johnston three firsts each for nominated bird cups, and Mr. Johnston received the award. Mrs. Colonial Kinkney presented the cups in the afternoon. The management throughout was as usual, A1, as one would expect from such a Mr. Heslop (chairman), Mr. Greenwell (sec.) and the stewards, who are truly a very fine band of officials, and full of enthusiasm.

WALLASEY C.B.S.

Annual members' show, November 7, Fairhaven Institute, with a fine entry of about 180 birds. Many recent Liverpool and Manchester winners once again gave a good account of themselves. A fine lot of special prizes were offered, including grand challenge shield valued ten guineas, holder each year to receive a gold medal. This made competition exceptionally keen. Mr. Benson, hon. sec. and treas., had everything in apple-pie order and got through the duties admirably. Mr. Hilton judged. Messrs. Benson and Young's huff Yorkshire hen won sp. best bird.

Meeting Nov. 9, Mr. J. Hughes chair, before a very good attendance of members. Members' show, final arrangements were dealt with, 14 grand specials presented, besides many from outside friends. Mr. Bayliss appointed show manager, Messrs. Yardley, Hickling, Raby, Swindon, Barron and Pughes stewards; official catalogues will be printed, so members are requested to have entries in by Dec. 20th at latest, and all birds at room not later than 10.30; tickets are now on sale along with full list of specials. Members should bring a friend on show day as members are tracing a good many more fanciers in this district not in the society.—J. Sheppard.

SOUTHAMPTON C.B.S.

General meeting, Dec. 7. Mr. W. G. Fellows, chair, in the absence of the chairman, from whom sec. read a letter explaining that he would be obliged to resign the chairmanship, owing to his being away from home. Sec. gave a report of the recent show, announcing that a profit had been made, which everyone agreed was satisfactory. Mr. Gamble washed a number of birds, and explained with his usual ability the best methods to use for washing birds successfully. A number of questions were asked at the close, which Mr. Gamble answered to everyone's satisfaction. Vote of thanks to Mr. Gamble was carried amid applause. Vote of thanks was accorded to all those who took part in the Annual Show, and helped to make it a success.—W. L. Page, Hon. Sec.

LANCS. AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting, Volunteer Inn, George Street, Oldham, Dec. 6. A good number attending. Decided to have Club Show at Volunteer Inn, Oldham, Jan. 9 and 10; 7 classes Lanc., 8 Champion and 4 Nov. classes Lizards, and two classes for Lizards bred prior to 1914. Mr. Bradley is generously giving 20/- as a special in Lizard classes, and Mr. N. Stansfield 2/6 each best yellow Coppy, best yellow Plainhead, best cl. Gold Lizard and best cl. Silver Lizard. I shall be glad to receive any donations to special fund and credit same to donor. Final open show for our club patronage is Sunderland, Jan. 15 and 16. They are giving 3 cock and 2 hen Lizard classes. The Northern Club is giving 5 sps. for open competition, and there is also a 5/- spl. for most points, so it behoves all Lizard fanciers to give as good an entry as possible, and reward such generous treatment as it deserves. Next meeting, Newmarket Hotel, Shudehill, Manchester, Jan. 2, when entries for show will be received.—J. Rukin, Hon. Sec.

ATTERCLIFFE.

Meeting Nov. 12, Mr. Havenhand chair. The committee's minutes embracing the change of venue for the annual show to the Wesleyan Reform Schoolroom, Bodmin St., owing to the Vestry Hall being unobtainable, were passed unanimously. A vote of sympathy for Mr. Webster, who is suffering from scarlet fever, was unanimously passed. Table show result: Nov., NOR., CL.: 1, 2, J. Hartley; 3, Holling; 4, vhc, hc, W. Jones. VARIET.: 1, 3, 4, vhc, hc, W. Jones; 2, Holling. BRIT.: 1, 4, hc, T. Hammond; 2, 3, vhc, B. Duee. Mr. J. Perry judged.—E. Johnson.

Annual meeting, Dec. 10. Mr. Havenhand presiding. Election of officers resulted as follows:—Pres., Mr. L. Havenhand; vice-pres., Messrs. F. W. Hollingsworth and J. Hibberston; treas., Mrs. Justice; committee, Messrs. Webster, Rickinson, Thornhill, Blunt, Merrills, Darlow, Perry, Hammond, and Hartley; auditors, Messrs. Thornhill and Merrills; sec., E. Johnson. The president told the society that it was in a far better financial position than last year, and that the secretary hoped to have the balance-sheet ready for the January meeting, which is set apart for a discussion of the rules. Will members please let either sec. or Mr. Havenhand have any outstanding subs. or ticket-money at once, so as to facilitate the completion of the balance-sheet. We made two new members, and as we finished the season with more financial members than ever before the outlook is very promising. I wish to thank all members for the cordial and helpful support I have received during the past year, and trust it will be repeated in the coming year, when I shall have no doubt as to the successful future of the society.—E. Johnson.

In the Courts.

Essex Magistrates and the Cruel Catching of Linnets.

William Wallis, 66, and Albert Hodson, 44, bird-catchers, were summoned at Witham, Essex, for causing unnecessary suffering to Linnets at Great Totbam, on November 18. Captain Burlingham, 8th Worcester Regiment, stationed at Maldon, said he saw defendants in a field near Totbam Church. They were catching birds in a net, and had other birds tied. Some of the birds caught were killed; others had blood about them. Witness told the defendants to stop the practice and go, as the soldiers in his company were indignant at the cruelty they saw. The decoy birds were tied down to a peg in the ground. Witness produced a number of dead Linnets. The defendants stated that many of the Linnets caught were killed to protect the seed industry, and a few of the better ones were sold. The decoy birds were kept all the season from August to March. The Chairman: How do you account for these decoy birds being mere skeletons? Defendant Hodson: They have wasted away since they were killed.

Defendant Wallis said he had been a bird-catcher for thirty years, had been "inspected by the humane people," and had never had a charge of cruelty against him before. On the occasion in question the soldiers smashed up his nets with spades and let his birds loose from the cages, saying the captain had ordered them to "wreck him." The defendants stated they had permission from Mr. Ward to go on his farm to catch birds.

The Chairman said the Bench were unanimous in deciding to convict. Although the practice of catching birds had been going on for a number of years, and had become to some extent recognised, there were ways of catching birds without practising cruelty. Call-birds could be used to catch birds, although it was perhaps slow, but wild birds could not be allowed to be fastened down with braces and allowed to flutter up and down until they had exhausted their legs and wings. That treatment of wild birds was utterly cruel, and was disapproved by the Bench. The defendants would each be fined 10s. and 4s. costs. If they came up again the Bench would not stop at a few shillings' fine. The Justices thanked the soldiers of the Worcester Regiment who had brought the case forward.—"Essex County Chronicle."

JUST THE THING FOR XMAS PRESENTS.

No Better Books for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

- AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of aviaries and bird-rooms, and the making of cages.
- YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/11.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon pairing, breeding, moulting, and successful exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.
- NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.
- THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Hamilton, C. J. Ward, J. Bewick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post free 1/2.
- PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.
- SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.
- HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.
- BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.
- FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/11.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations, indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.
- BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts, Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.
- THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.
- BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.
- PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.
- CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.
- CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.
- COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3d.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moult the birds to get the richest possible colour.
- FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos., with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/-, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

A LARGE number of show reports having accumulated which could not be printed within the limits of the penny issues possible during this time of crisis, we have decided, at the request of a large number of readers, to publish them in a special double number rather than hold them over indefinitely. Even now, although we this week deal with no fewer than 84 shows, we have not been able to deal with the reports of a few members' fixtures.

There are a few specials not yet sent in to me, writes Mr. Robert Lambie, sec. Whitburn C.B.S. Will fanciers kindly send them in and allow me to have them sent to the winners?

In your report of the Y.C. and C.B.S. of Ireland (Dublin) show, nat. col. clear buff hens reads 2, Gillen won in col. fed class in Belfast. This is not so, as I was first in this class at Belfast and Mr. Gillen he.—A. E. Winkup (Belfast).

The City of Birmingham C.B.S. second open Roller Canary singing contest is held at the Crown Hotel, Hill Street, Birmingham, Saturday, Dec. 19th; open 3 p.m. to 9 p.m., admission 3d. Patronage of B.R.C.C. and P.R.C.C.—Advt.

I was delighted to see on your front page last week my well-known winning yellow hen, also my clear buff cock. The picture does your artist great credit, as I think they are both most life-like. I wish CAGE BIRDS continued success.—H. W. Turner (Manchester).

The Border City (Carlisle) O.S. show on New Year's Day will be a good opportunity for fanciers, writes Mr. J. C. Bell, the sec., as the train service locally is very good. The novice should have a grand time, as the champions will probably be at the big Scotch shows.

Certainly one of our well-known bird specialists, Mr. W. Rudd, of Norwich, is keeping business going in a surprising manner, as the following list of exports will show—all during this war period. Although born too long ago to be accepted for the front (he was, however, a Volunteer as long back as the time the muzzle-loading rifle was in use) he will be well represented there, as three of his sons have already joined for service abroad. Johannesburg (S. Africa), goods; British Columbia, live birds; Queens-town (S. Africa), goods; Wellington (New Zealand) live birds; Quetta (India) goods (two); Buenos Aires, live birds; Ontario (Canada), live birds; New York (U.S.A.), goods; Calcutta (India), goods; Mexico, live birds and goods; Genoa (Italy) live birds; Karachi (India), goods; Lagos (Nigeria) live birds; Kikuyu (British East Africa) live birds and goods; Bhujju (India) goods; Springfield (Ohio, U.S.A.) live birds; Shanghai, goods.

ONE-AND-A-HALF.

In order to save our advertisers trouble during the Christmas Holidays, we will insert advertisements in our next issue and the one following (Dec. 26 and Jan. 2) for the price of one insertion and a half.

This offer is open to all small prepaid advertisers, so that our readers who want to make money for Christmas should take advantage of it. Rates: 18 words for 6d., 2 words 1d. after, prepaid. Enclose the fee for the two insertions at the price of one and a half; also write on your order, "Two Weeks' Special Offer."

Offer closes Monday next, or first post Tuesday, Dec. 22, at latest.
Address: The Advertisement Manager, 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

Mr. Geo. Bennett, Luton, writes that he has removed from 163, High Town Road to 74, Boyle Street, Luton.

Windhill C.B.S. open show on Jan. 2 has the N.C.M.Y.C.C. patronage, writes Mr. J. Taylor, the sec., and the green-marked classes now read: Class 13, green-mkd. yellow cock; Class 13a, buff do.; Class 14, green-mkd. yellow hen; Class 14a, buff do. Will exhibitors please note these alterations when making entries?

In connection with the members' show of the Tong C.B.S. at the Hand and Shuttle Inn, on Dec. 26, three open price limit classes for Yorks. Canaries will be provided with seven cash prizes in each class, writes L. Hodgson, sec. (931, Wakefield Road, Dudley Hill). There will be a fat turkey for most points in the three classes, and a bottle of whisky for most points in the hen class. The proceeds of the show will be given to the Workpeople's Hospital Fund—see advt. under Yorkshires.

Prize-money Paid.

We hear that prize-money has been paid in respect of the following shows. Anyone overlooked should apply to the respective hon. secs.: Hackney, Stoke Newington F.A.; Southampton C.B.S., Whitburn, Abersychan, City of Birmingham C.B.S.

The Irish Way.

We note that a certain Irish journal, after announcing that Mr. M. Arnstein was the judge of the foreign birds at the recent Cork show, went on to say that the "cage birds were an attractive exhibit; foreign birds were absent this year."

IN EVERY COPY OF THIS ISSUE

A COLOURED PLATE

from our surplus stock.

High Wycombe's Cup.

I have duly received a cup for the cage bird section to be competed for amongst our members from a well-wisher at Ingestre, Stafford, writes Mr. S. C. Pearce, hon. sec. High Wycombe and Dist. F.S. My committee are pleased to accept this on terms mentioned, with many thanks. I have been asked to acknowledge through CAGE BIRDS, as no address or name was sent with same.

OBITUARY.

Mr. W. BLENKINSOP (Ushaw Moor).

I regret to inform you, writes Mr. J. Stanger, of the death of Mr. W. Blenkinsop (Messrs. Hanson and Blenkinsop), who died on Dec. 4th, at Ushaw Moor (Co. Durham). Mr. Blenkinsop, who was in his 69th year, was a keen Crest Fancier, and until a comparatively short time ago a regular attendant and exhibitor at all the important North Country Shows. In conjunction with his partner he won the first gold medal competed for by the members of the Northern Crest Club, and with the same bird, a yellow Green Crest-bred, was successful at the Crystal Palace Show. A controversy took place in your columns at the time with reference to this bird, one well-known judge maintaining it was a buff, a statement which he adhered to even after a few feathers were plucked from the bird and forwarded for his inspection; but the question was never in doubt as far as its owner and North Country breeders were concerned. Of a quiet, retiring disposition, Mr. Blenkinsop was well-known and highly respected amongst North Country fanciers. He is survived by a widow and grown-up family, to whom all will extend sympathy.

Corrections in Show Reports.

At Abersychan, the report of the unflighted buff Nor. class should read 2, Tedstone; 4, Mortimer, not 2 Mortimer, 4 Tedstone, as printed in catalogue. At Birmingham Messrs. Wells and Clempson won 2nd in yellow hen Yorks., not Burke; at the Northern Y.C.C. show G. Tweedie won 3rd in buff mkd., not Tindale; in unflighted hen Nor. at Birmingham Mr. Foxen won 4th, not Twine, and Mr. Wilson he, not Eckersley.

Cumnock's Continued Success.

The Cumnock and Dist. C.B.S. are proud to announce, writes Mr. Alex. Wyper, the secretary, that their show proved a success, having a record entry of 271. While we dropped £4 4s. on the year from outside subscriptions, the balance this year only showed a drop of £1 8s. 9d. from last year. After allocating £1 to Lord Eglington's branch of the War Fund, and £1 to the local Red Cross Fund, we carry forward a balance of practically £10 for 1915, which is gratifying under the circumstances.

A Personal Statement.

EVER since the outbreak of war between this country and Germany I have periodically experienced annoyance and been subjected to anonymous insults from a few narrow-minded people who cannot understand that a man may have a name foreign in character and yet be absolutely English by birth and blood. This form of persecution has already caused me visits by the Police Authorities at my private address and at my office, and has given me the unpleasant sensation of seeing myself falsely described as an "alien enemy" on a police dossier.

So far as any injury to my personal feelings is concerned, or for that matter so far as my pocket is affected, I can afford to shrug my shoulders at that particular form of misguided patriotism which is content to attack a man without evidence and to condemn him as a foreigner and a spy on bare suspicion. But the last instance in the direction of attacking me on account of my name is of so contemptible a character, and suggests to me so forcibly that silence on my part may be a danger to the cause for which I am working that I have decided to make a public statement concerning my nationality, which will have the effect I hope of once and for all stopping, or at any rate checking, these malicious rumours circulated through misapprehension or deliberate malice.

In connection with the National Egg Collection for the Wounded I have sent out on behalf of the Committee some thousands of circulars signed by myself as a member of the Committee. One of these circulars addressed to a member of the Poultry Club, apparently residing at Lewes, has been returned to the Secretary of the National Egg Collection with my name heavily underscored and the comment at the bottom of the letter: "Why not an Englishman?" The author of this is so un-English himself by disposition that he deliberately omits to stamp his letter, thereby causing the Collection to be unjustifiably and meanly mulcted in the sum of 2d. as a fine for his evidently wilful neglect.

I have a shrewd suspicion as to the identity of the author of this document, and I issue to him the following challenge:—I will forfeit the sum of £1,000 (one thousand pounds) to any war charity he likes to name if he can prove that there has been anything but English blood in my family on both sides for the last six generations. Further, I suggest to him that if he is as much a patriot as he evidently thinks he is, he will, in the case of being unable to traverse the truth of my declaration that I am of English parentage and descent, forfeit the sum of at least £10 on behalf of the Collection he has so pettishly taken advantage of.

I also think it necessary to give a warning to any other people who may imagine that because a man has a name of foreign origin he must necessarily be of foreign extraction or foreign birth, that I will institute legal proceedings without notice should they attempt to assail me further on such grounds, and give me sufficient evidence of their courage as to come out in the open on such a charge.

Though born in Australia, I have lived the greater part of my life in England. I am proud to consider myself as truly British as any of my assailants, and I am glad to think it is not a general characteristic of Englishmen to use underhand methods or to attack on mere suspicion by methods which prevent retaliation.

It affords me some satisfaction, too, to reflect that even the King to whom I own allegiance has a foreign name, and that there is just as little ground for attacking his loyalty to his country, as there is for attacking mine.

QUEEN'S PARK (London) C.B.A.

Members' tenth Annual Show, Nov. 7, Emmanuel Hall, Harrow Road. Entries were good and quality tip top, particularly the Norwich, some lovely specimens being staged by Messrs Battison, Butterfield, Withers, Smith, Burt, Wise, etc. In Championships Mr. Battison won spl. for best Norwich with a grand yell. of wonderful substance, the unflinching spl. being secured by Mr. W. N. Smith with a yell. of capital quality and col. Overfatness was a fault with many of the exhibits, and more than one had to stand down in consequence. Yorkshires were a nice lot. Spl. for best unflinched was secured by Mr. Sanders with a good yell. Mr. Glanville winning for best Yorks. in Championships. The Hybrid spl. fell to Messrs. Cyster and Hill's yell. Goldie-Canary, a fine bird of good col. Mr. B. R. Lowe, the Sec., had everything in perfect order. The exhibition was well attended. Mr. H. Norman judged.

BERWICK.

Berwick C.C. annual show, King's Arms Assembly Rooms, Oct. 31. Entries were down from last year, no doubt owing to the war. The society gave the entire gate and sales proceeds to the Belgian and War Relief Funds. Mr. W. Hay won cup for best young Canary or Mule bred by exhibitor with a grand cl. yell. Nor. cock; A. Hay took cup for most points in Brit. and For.; G. Brown B.F.C.C. medal with a clinking buff hen, which only lost the cup on the spin of the coin; and J. A. Purvis the Mayor's cash sp. for most points. Messrs. Robert Lambie (Whitburn) and Wm. Finnie (Edinburgh) judged and gave every satisfaction.

GLASGOW (West End).

5th annual show, Nov. 21, Co-operative Hall, St. George's Cross. A very suitable one for the purpose, plenty of light, and free from draught. Birds were neatly staged all round. British came up well, and some outstanding exhibits were among them. Borders were a nice typical lot. The entry totalled about 250, and was considered very satisfactory. Cup and specials were on view, and made an imposing display. Gold medal best bird and Norwich cup were won by J. Tawse; Border cup and B.F.C.C. medal, D. Lunn; Mulo cup, G. G. Henderson. Sec. W. Proudfoot had all arrangements in good order, and was ably assisted by the Pres., A. Hendry, Vice-Pres. P. Allan and A. Symington, and the committee, Messrs. McGown, Lunn, C. Campbell, J. Campbell, Gillespie, Law, and Newgreen. The judges were Mr. J. F. Dewar (Edinburgh) Canaries, Mr. P. McQuiston, Ayr, the remainder, and their awards pleased all.

NEWSHAM.

Annual show, Oct. 24, in the large clubroom above the Willow Tree Inn, a capital place for the purpose, plenty of size, nice light, and freedom from draught. The 15 classes provided brought forth the nice total of nearly 180 birds, constituting for quality about the finest confined show we have yet seen. Norwich were really splendid, the majority being beautifully true to type and teeming with quality and colour. This section provided the cup winner for best bird in show, Mr. J. Armstrong winning the honour with a grand buff cock. Yorks. and Borders also made a fine display, while the other sections also contained some nice exhibits. The society is well officered, Mr. J. Thompson being president, while the chairman is the well-known Norwich exhibitor, Mr. G. Dobinson. Other officials are Mr. J. Rutherford, vice-chair, Mr. W. Gibb, assist. sec., and a grand committee composed of Messrs. R. Rowell, J. Armstrong, T. Griffiths, R. Turnbull, J. Hudspeth, J. Yallowley, J. Short, J. Elliott, A. Taylor, and T. Dixon. The genial and courteous secretary, Mr. C. Snowdon, understands his work from end to end, and his arrangements were carried out without the slightest hitch. Special prize winners: Best Nor. and best bird in show, Armstrong; best Yorks., Gibb; Bord., Elliott; Crest or C.B., Rowell; Cinn., Richardson. The show was well patronised, and should be a financial success. Mr. W. Reid (Sunderland) judged.

NOR. YELL. 1914 (12): 1, Armstrong, tkd. wing, lovely shape, nice size, beautifully rounded chest, hot col. and qual., lovely wings and tail; 2, Dobinson, cl. bit longer, yet a grand bird, good head and neck, nice chest, good col. and qual., not quite so hot in tone; 3, Richardson, nice shape and size, neat head and chest; vhc. he, Griffiths; c. Hodgett. BUFF (17): Grand class; 1, sp. Armstrong, head tkd., medium size, magnificent shape, short and thick set, well rounded chest, grand head and neck, lovely wings and tail, teeming with qual. and col.; 2, vhc. Griffiths, grand shape, not the subs. of leader, neat head and neck, nice col. and qual., neat wing and tail carr., well cleaned out; 3, Yallowley, varieg., fine shape and carr.; he, c. Dobinson. HEN (21): A hot lot; 1, Griffiths, wing tkd. buff, medium size, short, thick set, grand col., and teeming with qual., neat head, grand chest and back, beautiful wings and tail; 2, Dobinson, grizzle head, lovely shaped yell., rare deep chest, good head and neck; 3, Yallowley, cl., nice size, good shape, neat head and neck, nice body, well carried wings and tail; vhc. Elliott; he, Hodgett; c. Richardson. CINN. 1914 (6): 1, vhc. Richardson, nice buff, medium size, good shape, nice col. and qual., neat wing carr.; 2, he, Rowell, big yell., plenty of subs., nice head, gets wing across; 3, Griffiths, yell., nice shape, good col. and qual., level in tone, beaten in size; c. How to Avoid Sweating Hens.

First Prize Essay by H. J. Goodman.

WHEN I first commenced the breeding of Canaries I was at the commencement troubled by three of my hens "sweating" the young. In consequence I lost several broods of what at first appeared to be healthy youngsters. I asked a fancier friend how to remedy this awful sacrifice of possible Palace winners (!) and he cheerfully replied, "There is no remedy."

At the end of the season I gave two of these "perspirers" to a friend to add to his stud. I retained the third, as she was a very good bird. I thought I would try her again the next season and put the eggs, when laid, under another hen.

When next season came round I duly paired her, and she laid the usual four eggs. Not having another hen available for incubating purposes, I let her sit, and in due course four chicks appeared. All went well with them until the fourth day, when, on looking into the nest, I observed that instead of presenting a downy appearance they looked as if they had just come out of a bath!

I had left the cock bird in with the hen up to this time, but as I had thoughts of pairing him with another hen I removed the old gentleman on that day. The hen immediately came off the nest and commenced calling to him and fighting at the bars to get out of the cage. As she would not return to her young I met her half way by placing the cock in a Yorkshire show cage and hanging him on the bars of the breeder. She soon afterwards returned to the young.

A Pleasing Discovery.

The next morning the chicks appeared to be dryer, so I prepared a fresh nest, and, first warming it at the fire, placed the youngsters in it and put the lot back into the cage. On examining them in the evening I was pleased to see that they had recovered their dry, downy appearance.

I adopted this course of action in another case where signs of sweating appeared, and with the same good result. I do not say this plan will work in every case, but in most instances I think it will. On the removal of the cock the hen has to shift for herself, and perhaps makes a wiser selection of food. On her visits to the seed and egg food the chicks get some welcome ventilation and the temperature in the nest does not become too great. Further, the cock bird being in such close proximity causes her to make a longer absence, as, in response to his calls, she will go to the bars to "talk matters over."

I do not think that the hen actually sweats and transfers the moisture from herself to the young. "Sweating," so called, is brought about by the chicks suffering from diarrhoea, caused by improper feeding. The excrement, therefore, being liquid, cannot be dealt with by the hen. The heat from her when sitting causes moisture to rise, and the young, together with the breast-feathers of the hen, present an appearance like "sweating."

Summing Up the Situation.

To sum up the situation: Remove the cock bird, and the hen will carry out her maternal duties in a natural manner. Do not give green food until the young are a week old, and then be sure that such green food is quite fresh and free from wet. Put a pinch of maw seed or a very small portion of crushed hemp with the egg-food, so as to attract the hen to this portion of the menu. If the youngsters are fed by the hen with a large amount of seed in their early days it upsets their digestion and causes diarrhoea, which in turn causes "sweating."

This last season I have carried out the plan outlined here and I have not lost one youngster by sweating. I had 52 hatched, and out of these lost only three, and they died from causes other than sweating.

Previously, sweating claimed a large percentage of my chicks, so I think that there is something in my plan worth considering, and trust that if my friends and good fanciers of the City and Suburban Society will try this system, they will have no cause for regret.

Bad Feeding Hens and their Cure.

Second Prize Essay by G. Thurley.

THE subject of my essay, I presume, has troubled all bird fanciers in a greater or less degree, and although I do not profess to have discovered a remedy that will cure all and every bad feeding hen, I must say that during the past breeding season I have lost only one nest of youngsters through "non feeding," and this was with a hen that laid another clutch of eggs when her youngsters were 8 days old.

There is no doubt I shall bring down on myself a storm of indignation and disapproval when I say that for non-feeding hens fanciers have largely only themselves to blame. If a breeder has a bird approaching the exhibition standard he keeps it for breeding purposes regardless of practically everything else. Here I maintain we make a huge mistake! Of what use is it to hatch out nests of promising youngsters and then see them through lack of nourishment making their way rapidly to the dustbin? What is more exasperating, and at the same time depressing, than this common experience in the breeding room?

Good in Two Respects.

For the past three seasons I have been working on the lines of trying to produce an exhibition, and at the same time a good feeding strain. It is a very slow process, as elimination must be very severe, but I am satisfied I have made material progress in this direction. To mention one example, I may say that the unflighted buff cock that won the diploma at our last show is from the third generation of good feeders, and if I can find a suitable hen (combining the essential qualities that I require) for him, I hope next season, with the approval of Dame Fortune, to be another step nearer my goal.

But with all our care in the process of selection we are bound to meet with cases of "throwing back," and for these we must have special treatment. As soon as a hen is observed to be slack in feeding, give her two or three doses of Glauber Salts—a crystal the size of a split pea in the drinking water—and if to this is also added six drops of syrup of rhubarb, a stimulating effect is usually produced.

After the plain diet given during incubation, the egg supplied during the first week after hatching is very apt to affect the bird's liver, and it is to stir up this organ that the salts and rhubarb are given. If we could only realise how lethargic and lazy we ourselves are when our livers are out of order, we might perhaps be more in sympathy with our feathered pets!

Green stuff, especially watercress, I have found to be exceedingly useful to slack feeders. Do not give much at a time, only about one spray, but use at least twice a day if the hen takes to it.

Another of my favourite tit-bits is boiled hemp. If some good sound hemp-seed is allowed to simmer in a saucepan of boiling water for about 45 minutes it will be found that each kernel has a white "shoot" some eighth of an inch long coming out of it. When in this condition strain off the water and allow seed to drain and cool. When cool and fairly dry, give a tea-spoonful to each hen. This, with me, rarely fails to have a good effect; but it should not be given too frequently.

Germinated Seed Useful.

Another useful change, and one that was commended by a fancier of 25 years' experience, is to mix some hemp, canary and rape together and pour on some moderately warm water. Allow to stand until seed is thoroughly soaked; then pour off the liquid, cover up the vessel and place in a warm, dark place. After a time, which will be almost entirely controlled by the temperature, these seeds will germinate. If at this stage the mixture is dried somewhat and then given to the hens, they will usually eat it with avidity and proceed to share it with their progeny. This liking is, no doubt, due to the fact that during the process of germination much of the starchy matter in the seed is converted into sugar, hence its attraction.

For another change I use varying amounts of sugar with the biscuit and egg, as I find that some birds have a sweeter "tooth" than others. On this point I may say that in some cases we give our egg food too dry. When this is so an extra effort is required on the part of the hen to regurgitate the food, and this in itself is exhausting. Couple this extra effort with poor tone in health and we have a very common cause of non-feeding.

Finally, I would say that I am a firm believer in the process of eliminating the non-feeder, even at the expense of sacrificing exhibition points, and that the real remedy lies here. But even when this has apparently been accomplished, by the laws of nature there will bound to be cases of "throwing back," and these can only be met by a careful study of each bird's peculiarities and likes and dislikes and, further, by the principle of giving "little and often" when feeding.

THE VALUE OF "PUSH."

A few words on the art of easily and profitably disposing of good-class surplus stock.

By
E. W. ALLSOPP
(Cardiff).

MANY beginners are worried over the important matter of surplus stock, and to such an extent that I have known a few ultimately "retire"—to put it nicely—from the Fancy, on account of it. We all envy the fancier whose position in life precludes him from worrying whether his hobby is remunerative or otherwise. Against the few fanciers of this description, there are thousands of others who, like myself, entered the Fancy with the main idea of whiling away time in a charming and interesting manner, and as a relief from the monotony sometimes experienced in the daily task for bread. So long as no financial loss was experienced, the result was viewed as eminently satisfactory, although I do not deny that a balance on the rosy side made matters ever so much better.

If the recreative side of the Fancy is always maintained first and foremost, and mere profit not allowed to dominate you as a breeder and exhibitor, all very well; but if you are progressing with the breed and not finishing up each year on the right side financially, then I venture to say there is a screw loose somewhere. In spite of a good deal of pessimistic drivel knocking about concerning the Fancy, and all who are in it going to the dogs, I can assure you that I have never known a more brisk enquiry for stock and show birds, though both have steadily advanced in value. I am optimistic enough to say that this is the experience of very many breeders during the past few seasons, even though some will not admit it to be so. Why there should be any "dog in the manger" feeling I never could understand, for, after all, no breeder, no matter how extensive his operations, can be soft enough to hope that he alone can fix up all possible buyers.

Now the novice of only one or two years' standing, and with some real good stock, is in a bit of a fix when it comes to endeavouring to realise his surplus at market value.

Apart from the local fanciers, he is practically unheard of. These local men generally secure, at very low prices, the pick of the room, and for the remainder he has to find other outlets far from satisfactory, from a cash point of view, which the novice ultimately realises, for sooner or later someone who has been requiring a change of blood shows him a pair secured in another direction at about £3 the pair, which he, even with his inexperience, realises are no better (at least in face value) than many pairs he has bred and with difficulty disposed of at about 10s. per pair.

In the case of some few fanciers I have met with, of two, three and four years' experience, this trouble concerning the disposal of their surplus birds is, I must candidly say, in a very large measure quite their own fault. I appreciate the fact that it is all very well to review one's experience after a number of years, and assume a wise attitude, but even if I really did very little better in my novice days than many are doing, that is no reason why I should not give others my views, in the hope of their doing much better.

His Only Grumble.

It is no good saying you don't recognise the type of novice who is troubled with just this one fly in his box of ointment—i.e., disposal of surplus stock—for there is not a cage-bird society of twenty members or more in existence which does not number him amongst them. Generally, he is what I call of the lovable type; as harmless as they make 'em. Beyond his little grumble about the surplus stock he has not a bad word to say about anyone or anything. When the annual show comes round he is elected as the one and only suitable member to canvass for a few specials and advertisements, and as a little overweight he is persuaded to sit up each night of the show, in case a stray cat should look in and want to sample some of the blue-blooded winners!

Now all that is the matter with our lovable pal is that he is too shortsighted to inwardly mark, learn and digest the good advice screwed on the office door which he opens regularly each morning—"Push!" For that is all that is needed when it comes to disposing of your surplus stock. Don't confuse this little work with "cheek" or "telling fairy tales," or tarradiddles, as the young ladies would say; but if I am in the position to declare (as I am) that good buyers are itching to spend good money for Plainheads, and good breeders have just the stock to suit, and the one cannot hear tell of t'other, then something wants seeing to.

Let us get down to bedrock! I detest talking about myself, but seeing that I don't handle anyone else's banking account, and don't get their enquiries for stock, I must of necessity push my own affairs forward a little bit. Since January 1st last [This article, it should be stated, was written some months ago.—Editor, "C.B."] I have declined enquiries for Plainhead stock to at least the value of £30. Prices at £1 for single birds, up to £5 or £6 per pair, have been indicated, and the enquirers in a number of instances have concluded their letters by asking the name of a reliable breeder who would be likely to be in a position to supply them should I not be able to do so.

What annoys me is not the fact of having to refuse good money, but the realisation that there are sellers of good stock in abundance, whom my enquirers have great difficulty in locating. Whose fault is it? Why, that of the lovable chap, who pushes the door and not himself!

Open your CAGE BIRDS as I do nearly every Friday evening, and look with me through the "Plainhead" advertisements. Here we are: "Mr. — now offers his surplus stock, cheap to clear: 24, Blind Alley, Shortsighted Avenue, Timbuctoo." I expect you will say as I do: "Dear me! Who would have thought it! Fancy spending sixpence to tell us that!"

On we go. Here's another: "Mr. — has had a capital season, surplus birds number —, cheap to clear; all approval." This is more interesting, is it not? Yes; and if you bear in mind, as I do, and hundreds of other readers, that the number of surplus birds has been the same for the past eight weeks, you will say, "Well, if this breeder is not selling his surplus any quicker than that . . ." and so on. (To be Continued.)

MY BIRD PETS.

By Mrs. E. M. SARGEANT (Worcester).

An intensely interesting medley of happenings in the bird-rooms of a most enthusiastic lady bird-lover.

I THOUGHT it might interest your readers to hear a little more about some of my birds. I have lost my two old Cuckoos, one a twelvemonth old, and one a little over two years old. The latter was as much like the Cuckoo that I had for five years as could be, throwing his "kisses" to me and sitting on my finger, where, by the way, he died just as quietly as did the old one. He was not through the moult, but was somewhat better in plumage, though not so plump as the old one. He was often admired.

I did not mean to have any more of these birds; one misses them so when the inevitable happens; but a country lad brought me two beautiful specimens last June, and somehow I could not say no. I asked him what nests he took them from, and he said one looked like a Hedge Sparrow's nest, built in a gooseberry tree, and that a Flycatcher was feeding one, but he could never see what fed the other bird. Certainly most of my Cuckoos have been brought from Hedge Sparrows' nests, but one was from a Wag-tails, if not two.

Eight Years Old and Still Laying.

My hen Skylark has been to nest four times, paired to one of the two brought me last year, and which she finished rearing. She had two fertile eggs, but failed to rear the young. She has had one lot of three eggs, and three of two. The last lot were clear, so I let her sit till she was tired. She is now eight years old.

I have been making some inquiries of the young man who brought me the little Skylarks last year, and others who work in the farm fields, and I find that five eggs is the usual number for a Skylark, sometimes six; but often only three or four young out of them.

Of course, I have been trying for one of your prizes with Chaffinch and Canary, Goldfinch Mule and Greenfinch Mule, etc.; plenty of nests and plenty of eggs, but no young.

Then my cock Thrush, "Baby" (eight years old) has had a chance with my hen Missel Thrush. But she ate up her eggs, the same as she did last year; and also some of the silly little hen Canaries who would go into the same room to build! "Baby" was that angry with her when she would not sit on the nest she made with yards of lace and tape and wadding, that I thought he would kill her. She is so tame that she will eat from my hand, and let me stroke her; he also will eat from my hand or mouth, but will not be stroked.

I have a good few young Canaries, but the Bullfinches' eggs have all been clear. They paired with Greenfinches. A hen Twite that was brought me in the winter built and laid four eggs, and sat, but they were clear. The prettiest little nest of all was built by a Redpoll in the tree. Master Redpoll is rather exacting, and scolds and fusses if she only gets off to stretch her wings a moment.

You will remember I told you I had a cock Blackbird, three years old, who had sent a hen to nest. The hen died, and the cock got away; in fact, a little girl pushed the door open and let him out of the outside shelter. He has been about with a hen which used to come down the garden to him when he was in captivity. I and my neighbours have put them out food and water. The hen built in the hedge at the bottom of a garden three doors away and had five young. These were taken. I was soon told, also, that they were in a cage, and the hen and cock both feeding them. It was too bad to take them all.

Insulting the Enemy.

The cock Blackbird comes most days jabbering to his old enemy, that is, my other Blackbird, who sings so beautifully in his cage out of doors. He is, like the Skylark and Thrush, eight years old. The little Hedge Sparrow that escaped over four years ago, and has always come to call when I feed the chickens, either broke his leg against the telegraph wires or was hurt by a stone, as a neighbour found it and brought it to me dead. We all knew it, and looked for it day by day. I had had it twelve months in a cage. It may have been a year or two old then. So it would be seven or eight years when it died. The "little mother" (my hen Chaffinch) I have had for eight years, and I don't know how old she was when I had her, but she reared up a Thrush that same year (that is how she got bird; it helps to give that polish (or sheen) which is always admired on the plumage. I would give it as my humble opinion that if linseed oil was given with discrimination to all birds, there would not be so many deaths in our bird-rooms.

Leaving the 'Gale, I will go on to my next love—the Blackcap. Many's the beauty I have had, and many's the Sunday I have taken my pipe and gone to my birdroom in my garden and absolutely lost myself, as it were, among my Blackcaps, and my Blackbirds. I was often taken back to my boyhood days in the country. This is where true enjoyment is derived, for if you are country born the birds will take you miles in imagination.

A Hardy Little Chap.

The Blackcap is a very hardy little chap. Give the same stock food as you do your 'Gale, with a plentiful supply of ripe fruit, such as bananas and grapes, also some household currants thoroughly soaked in sugar or treacle water, not forgetting a good Turkish fig broken open (a fine thing, by the way, for any bird at any time) likewise the linseed oil, as advised for the 'Gale. The stock cage above mentioned is a nice roomy one for the Blackcaps. In this I endeavour to fix as perches, cuttings from an elderberry bush, as the bird likes to dodge between the twigs as a playful pastime.

In a show Blackcap I like to see the black cap running well down the nape of the neck, as in the typical show Bullfinch. The body colour should be a clear greyish-drab, and the bird should be sound in every feather. Confidence between the bird and oneself is easily established, and steadiness will add greatly to one's chances on the show bench, and with careful handling a Blackcap can be trained to stand at attention, as it were, while undergoing the most critical inspection.

I use for the cage bottoms of my softbills (in lieu of sand) the finely broken-up peat litter now in general use. I hang a tin of sand inside the cage frequently. Regular spraying repays any softbill fancier, and gives him a fair chance against advanced competitors on the show bench, providing, of course, that he has a bird somewhere within the range of an ideal specimen. I would impress upon the mind of the beginner with softbills the great need of cleanliness.

This photo shows a few of the young Yorkshire Canaries I bred this year. I had very good luck; bred 57 young ones from 3 cocks and 7 hens, and up to now have not lost a single chick. I gave them mixed seed and egg and biscuit, and as much groundsel as they would eat up to the time they were on hard seed, then I gave a little bread and milk twice weekly for a few weeks.—James Jefferies (St. George's, Bristol).

her name). She struts about with a Brown Linnet year after year, but never goes to nest.

What is the Explanation?

Whether any birds have consciences, or reasoning powers, I really don't know; but this year I have noticed a very curious thing again and again. Some of my Canaries go to nest in a downstairs room, and some in an upstairs room (very few in cages). I let out one cock bird when his hen had got her clutch of eggs, and he flew to the upstairs room and soon commenced to drive to nest another hen there. This he has repeated during the season. He never went near the downstairs hen while sitting, but as sure as the fourteenth day was up, he was down with food for her. If I had forgotten the date, he had not. And I am quite sure they have a code of honour amongst themselves; no one who saw them as I did could doubt it. If another cock bird tried to interfere with the hen which was going to nest, she called out to the cock bird she was paired to, and he came up from downstairs, or down from upstairs, as the case might be, and they both hunted out the offending bird, however he might mix up with the others, and punished him!

I think I must end by telling you I have got an Owl! Willie Paller, at the Nurseries, caught, kept it a month or two, and then begged me to have it! I have it in a little aviary out of doors. "Master Jimmy" has got very tame, and comes on my head or shoulder. But sometimes in the night two or three other Owls come into the garden. I was called up the first time and told that "Jimmy" had got loose. There in the tree close to the aviary was another "Jimmy"! They don't half make a noise! Poor "Jimmy" is threatened with all sorts of dire penalties; I can see now why he wasn't wanted at the Nurseries!

The Stock Birds to Breed Winning Yorkshires.

By
T. L. CASTREE
(Mountain Ash).

Hints on their selection from a well-known Welsh fancier and judge.

TO get to business, I will attempt to describe what I consider a pair of birds capable of producing youngsters which with careful handling and proper staging should hold their own in present-day competition. I would select as the cock a bird ticked or lightly marked (not necessarily evenly-marked), and a yellow, not less than 7in. in length. If 7½ins. so much the better, providing he is of the right shape and position, that is, what is usually termed straight (level) from the crown of the head to the tip of the tail.

The head should be somewhat small and with a slightly flat appearance at the crown, the neck should be long, shoulders moderately broad, but in no wise prominent, and back well filled and level throughout. The wings should be long and well braced, meeting at the tips but not overlapping. The waist should be long and slender and the body tapering to the tail, which should be long and compact in form. The legs should be long and inclining to be straight, but not so straight as to give the bird a stilty appearance. The thighs should be well shown, and be well packed with close short feather—in fact, the feather under the throat, down the breast, between and around the thighs, right to the tail, should be as short and close as possible.

The Difficulty in Chief.

Considering the size of the proposed cock bird, probably this latter point is where the most difficulty would be experienced in its selection. But in the selection of a hen, this fault of loose, or too long, feather, which so often crops up in the cock bird may fairly easily be remedied.

Having obtained a cock bird rather over the acknowledged standard length (with the object of keeping up the size of the progeny) I would now select a clear buff hen of medium size, as brimful of quality of feather as possible. As a rule I find that providing you get size, shape and contour from the cock bird, quality, and that graceful appearance which puts the finishing touch on an exhibition Yorkshire, are to be looked for in the progeny as coming from the hen.

For length in the hen I would get as near as possible to (but not under) 6½in., with head proportionately small and as round as possible. The hen should have the appearance of being chiselled out of marble—tight and close in plumage. Her neck should be long, straight, and thin (though well filled in and free from any sign of being pinched), shoulders narrow and well rounded, back inclined to be a little flat, but level throughout, wings long and exceptionally well braced, without the least sign of overlapping. The body should be thin, especially the hind part, which should be well drawn out, and balanced on a good pair of long legs. The thighs should be long and conspicuous, without the least sign of loose feather.

Special attention should be paid to the quality of feather in the hen; it should be short, close, and of a silky appearance, without the least trace of frill, or scantiness of feather. The attitude of both cock and hen should be upright and commanding, yet easy and graceful.

Items to be Avoided.

A few points to be avoided are large beak, flat head, overhanging eye-brows, square, broad, or projecting shoulders, pinched neck, hollow back, short sides, broad or short waist, short thighs and body. Birds with any tendency to stoop, or hug the perch, should be avoided, as well as long, coarse, or open feathered ones. But above all the selection must be guided to a very great extent by the owner's knowledge of the pedigree of the stock from which the selected birds have come. Like can only be expected to produce like (or, rather, a happy medium between the two selected stock birds) proportionately with the care bestowed on the breeding of the strain from which the selected stock birds have sprung.

From the pair of birds I have attempted to describe and mate, yellow marked cock and clear buff hen, I should expect to produce a fair percentage of clears, both yellows and buffs, as well as a few ticked and unevenly-marked birds, with, as an off-chance, a possible even-mark, and with a few birds amongst them which would allow me to exhibit with a reasonable amount of success at shows within a moderate distance of my home.

TWO SWEET SONGSTERS: THE NIGHTINGALE AND BLACKCAP.

SOME REMARKS ON THEIR SELECTION AND MANAGEMENT.

By H. J. HAWES.

I HAVE kept a varied "nest" in my time: Woodpeckers, Nuthatches, Woodlarks, Wheatears, Redstarts, and my great favourites—Nightingales and Blackcaps. In fact, I really think most soft and hard-bills have found a place in my bird-room from time to time, and also a place in my heart.

Among the softbills I give place of honour to the 'Gale. He has a fine stately appearance, carrying himself on his dignity, as it were. He will not cringe, but looks you straight in the face with a pair of bold, black eyes, set in a noble head.

I fed my 'Gale upon a mixture of crushed biscuits, dried flies, silkworm cocoons, and ants' eggs, with wasp grub occasionally, also now and again putting an apple through my grinding mill and mixing some amongst the stock food. He had gentles and mealworms, too. Of the latter he got most during the winter months, when I could not take my tin box out with me cycling, and cut snips of hazel and other things to which greenflies and other flies cling in abundance.

Mind His Tail.

The cage I use for stock is one measuring 24 inches by 13 inches by 11 inches. He never reaches this cage though, until he has been in my meating-off cage, and is absolutely steady, for once his tail is broken the beauty of our 'Gale is completely spoiled from a show point of view.

It is beneficial to any bird to mix some common brown (crystal) sugar with the drinking water once a week; also to give a few drops of clarified linseed oil in the food of softbills once a week. The latter is one of the "secrets" given me by a very clever aviculturist; my promise not to reveal them ended with that cute fancier's regretted death. The oil is not only relaxing to the

Two Popular Seed-eaters: The Chaffinch and the Greenfinch.

By
E. A. BISH
(Worthing).

THE gay Chaffinch is fairly common throughout the British Isles. He is a resident, and may be seen almost anywhere in the hedgerows. It is an easy matter to recognise the bird, as the sharp call-note, "Pink-pink," gives him away directly.

The cock Chaffinch is very brightly plumaged, with a good variety of colours. The hen has none of the bright colours of her mate. In a wild state they feed upon various wild seeds, with insects in the spring and summer months. The "nuts" (mast) of the beech tree are greatly relished by them, and flocks will be found feeding daily under the beech trees.

The nest is one of the most beautiful of our British birds' homes, and is usually placed close up against the trunk of a tree. The eggs number from four to six, and are of a pale bluish-green colour, streaked with purplish-brown markings.

Young Chaffinches can be easily hand-reared, but it is doubtful if it is worth the trouble, as after the autumn moult is over a good bird may be got off the catcher for a trifling sum. The cock Chaffinch has a very pretty little song, but it is apt to become monotonous in a cage indoors.

Chaffinches should be moulted outdoors, but as the spring advances you must separate them from others of their sex and species, as they are very pugnacious in the breeding season, and the cock especially will at once attack another of his own kind.

A Long-Lived Bird.

The species is not a very difficult one to cater for, and will live quite a long time in a cage. The following is a good stock mixture: Canary seed 2 parts, teazle 1 part, rape 1 part, linseed 1 part, hemp 1/2 part. Give about a teaspoonful of cracked sunflower seeds three or four times a week, and in addition to this a few mealworms, with a little green food now and then. Provide a bath daily, and, of course, clean water for drinking purposes.

The cage should be about 16 to 18 inches in length, 12 to 14 inches high, and 10 inches from back to front. This will give your bird a fair amount of exercise.

A Chaffinch for show purposes should be large; a small bird would not stand a chance; and it should have a good, prominent chest. The chief colours of a show Chaffinch should be as follows: Blue cap, rich and deep pink breast, white shoulder and wing bars, chocolate coloured back, nice green rump, and a tail with white edging to the outside feathers. The bird should be in a tight, sleek condition of plumage, and this will give him a great chance on the show bench. A Chaffinch should not be shown unless perfectly steady; this is a most important point.

The inside of a Chaffinch show cage should be enamelled a dark holly-green (this colour, in my opinion, shows the bird up splendidly) and the outside should be black.

The Chaffinch has not, so far, made great advance in the hobby of Hybrid breeding, the only recognised crosses being those between the Chaffinch and Bramblefinch and the Greenfinch and Chaffinch. But in time the Chaffinch will become, I think, as popular a bird as any in the breeding of British Hybrids.

The Greenfinch, or, as he is so often called, the Green Linnet, is about the commonest of our British Finches. This species roams the country in flocks of various sizes during the autumn, feeding on the wild seeds; very gregarious, they are very fond of each other's company. They are destructive in the autumn to the wheat, and in the spring do a lot of damage to newly-sown seeds.

The Home and Its Site.

The nest of the Greenfinch is composed of twigs, moss, dried grass, fine roots, and sometimes hair and feathers. They are prolific birds, and will sometimes rear three or four broods a season. The site chosen is generally the hedgerow, or a whitethorn tree. The hen is a good sitter, and will not stir unless compelled to do so.

The eggs, usually four or five in number, are a pale greenish-white with a few reddish-brown markings—similar, in fact, to those of the Linnet.

Young Greenfinches can be easily hand-reared. They should be taken when about ten days' old, and can be brought up successfully on the following: Hard boiled egg and biscuit crumbled together, adding a little soaked rape seed and a little bread. Mix well together, and feed every two hours.

Greenfinches will breed successfully in an aviary, and they are often used for Hybrid breeding. Quite a number of pretty Hybrids have been produced with a Greenfinch parent; Greenf.-Canary, Greenf.-Chaffinch, Greenf.-Ballfinch, Greenf.-Redpoll, Greenf.-Goldfinch, Greenf.-Siskin, etc.

In feeding, the following seeds will do well for a stock mixture: 3 parts Canary, 1 part German (summer) rape, 1 part English rape, and a little teazle. As tit-bits, hemp, sunflower, safflower, thistle, dandelion, plain-tain, groundsel, chickweed, hips and haws and charlock; one or the other several times a week.

The yellow, or jonque Greenie, is the one to choose for exhibition purposes, and must be large, of a vivid green colour all through, showing plenty of yellow in wings and tail, while the rump and under-body should be a rich yellowish-green. The head should be broad, neck thick, and the body shaped after the Norwich Canary style. The Buff Greenies are much sought after by Mule and Hybrid breeders, as they are generally the largest. Some hen Greenies are also very valuable for breeding purposes, as they will hatch and rear their own broods, which is a great advantage, one not found in most British hens of other species.

A Non-Believer in Colour Food.

Some fanciers colour-feed their Greenfinches, but personally I do not care about colour-feeding British birds for exhibition at all; it very often is the means of spoiling a good bird.

The Greenfinch has not much music, but in the spring has a pretty little song of his own, and in a cage I consider his notes are sweet.

When moulting a Greenfinch, see that he has plenty of fresh air, water for bathing, and wild seeds. Give him linseed and sunflower seeds freely, as they are very helpful to put on the nice gloss which every bird-lover likes to see.

Plain, but Useful.

The sexes are not difficult to distinguish, as the hen lacks the bright green colour of her mate. But hens are now almost as valuable as cocks, chiefly for Mule or Hybrid breeding, though at some of the larger shows, where classes are provided for hens, a good big tight-plumaged hen Greenie stands a great chance.

The show cage can be enamelled either cream or a light greyish-blue, or a faint pink tint, as all these colours show a Greenfinch up nicely. In conclusion, let me say that if any fancier is in doubt about which Finch to start bird-keeping with, I can thoroughly recommend the Greenie; for a beginner, of all our British Finches none will afford him more pleasure than the little common Greenfinch.

The Standard Colour of Norwich Show Cages.

SIR,—I shall feel obliged if any reader of CAGE BIRDS will inform me, through its columns, which are the particular shades of colours, and the exact proportions, that should be mixed to obtain the standard tint of colour used for the inside of the Norwich show cage? NOVICE.

A Suggested Economy for Exhibitors.

SIR,—Regarding cutting the expenses down at such a period as we are now passing through, how would it be to suggest through CAGE BIRDS that exhibitors should use sawdust in show cage bottoms in preference to sand, especially as the latter is going up in price? It would certainly be as clean to the birds' feet. Would be glad to hear of further suggestions on this matter. F. STOTHARD.

A Cage Bird Society Started at Blaenavon.

SIR,—A meeting of cage bird fanciers was held at Blaenavon on Dec. 10 to consider the advisability of forming a society. Mr. G. Broome, late sec. of Abertillery C.B.S., was in the chair. It was carried that we have a society at Blaenavon, there being about 20 fanciers wishing to become members, though all could not attend this meeting. Officers elected: Chairman, Mr. M. Butt; vice, Mr. C. Broome; treasurer, D. Morris; secretary, G. T. Jones, 13, Broad Street, Blaenavon. All desiring to become members should kindly attend the next meeting at 13, Broad Street on Dec. 19, at 8.30 sharp, and drop a line to me. G. T. JONES (Sec.).

Pushing Along His Favourite Canary.

SIR,—Surely no society could hope to possess a more genial and kindly dispositioned gentleman and fancier than does the Shettleston and Dist. C.B.S. in its Honorary President, Baillie Wm. Robertson, of Troon. He is all energy for assisting in the revival of his favourite Scotch Fancy Canary, and I believe and hope he will succeed in his efforts. He has given big prices for the right material, and has now promised (what pure sportsmanship and large heartedness) to give a few pairs of his stock amongst members of the above club for the sake of seeing his Fancy progress. My earnest wish is, that he may be spared to see the rich fruits of his efforts abundantly harvested. R. H. L.

The Blackbird that Knew Better.

SIR,—Mr. J. Goodall, of Watford, tells me that a lady came into his shop and purchased a healthy-looking hen Blackbird, which she thought ought not to be caged. She took her cage and purchase home, and placed the cage with open door in her grounds so as to set free the unfortunate (?) prisoner. Much to her consternation the occupant refused to quit, and after being "hustled" out, walked about and examined the immediate neighbourhood, finally discontinuing its digging operations to return to the cage. This went on for several days, the bird refusing to desert the food supply to which it had become accustomed. Finally, in disgust, its new owner brought Mrs. Blackbird back to Johnny Goodall's Emporium, in which she still remains! ALLEN SILVER.

Are Scots Fancy Exhibitors Overstepping the Mark?

A Well-known Fancier Alleges Widespread Faking and Speaks of Exhibitors Banding Together to Bring the Culprits to Book.

SIR,—At Paisley Show a very important incident took place, fraught with much interest to Scots Fancy exhibitors, viz., the disqualification of some of the exhibits that were faked, while a number of the birds that were well forward in the prize-list ought to have kept them company. However, the judges have now made a start in the right direction, which I hope they continue in. It will stand to their credit and be for the benefit of our hobby. This faking has been going on for a considerable time, and like a canker which has not been checked, is increasing in virulence because the Scots Fanciers are far too easy-going to trouble themselves and make a stand against it. The question I would like to ask is: Are those who have the purity and welfare of the Fancy at heart to be hoodwinked and tricked by a few unscrupulous exhibitors whose moral senses are so dulled that they glory in their handiwork? From the conversation of many fanciers at Paisley show, I will be very much surprised if this faking is allowed to continue without its just reward, and I warn the fakers here and now that a number of prominent and well-known fanciers are banded together to see to it that their day of deceit is past. Most show schedules have a rule to the effect that the judges will be instructed to disqualify all birds that in their opinion have been tampered with; am afraid this rule has been a dead letter for a long time. It lies with managers and committees of societies to see that this rule is enforced, and pointed out to judges before they begin their duties on the morning of the show. I think the judges too apathetic. And who are to blame? The exhibitors themselves who stand idly by in groups and talk about it; and it all ends in "talk."

Let fraud and wrong and baseness shiver,
For still betwixt them and the sky
The Falcon truth hangs poised forever,
And marks them with a vengeful eye.
So Fakers, beware! W. McCLURE.

The Catcher Caught.

SIR,—Let me warn catchers not to leave their net and call birds, as I have nearly lost a fine Goldfinch by a Hawk pouncing on the call-cage. But I happened to be at the end of the pull line, and instead of the Hawk catching the Goldie, I caught the Hawk, which is a fine specimen. The weasel and stoat are also enemies of the catcher. I have been a reader of CAGE BIRDS five years now.

Is Face Value Better Than Pedigree?

SIR,—I read with interest the remarks in last week's CAGE BIRDS about the Yorkshires exhibited by Miss Q. Bowyer at the recent Horticultural Hall show, and by a curious coincidence I happened to be looking through some back numbers of Fancy papers this evening, and came across a short article by Mr. R. L. Crisp giving his views at that time (March, 1905) on the Yorkshire Canary. He there says:—

"I think that really good hens make the royal road to success in Canary breeding. . . Small to medium sized hens I like the best, and the nearer perfection the better, but in any case good in position with tight and good quality of feather—the small ones to pair with large cocks and the larger ones to pair with cocks about the size of show specimens."

Comparing these remarks with those on Miss Bowyer's birds, may it not be due to the hen as much as to the cock with the high pedigree that this lady was able to breed such good youngsters?

H. C. BROOKS.

What Birds Are These?

SIR,—I have seen in Mr. Norman's "Gen Portrait Gallery of British Birds" a Reed Bunting, and I have had many of the same. You said last week you thought these were the birds I wrote of. Well, sir, the birds are a good deal different to the Reed Bunting in Mr. Norman's picture. They are not quite as large as the common House Sparrow, but the cock and hen represent the cock Sparrow in build and colour, bar the head, which is of a bright velvet bronze. I have two alive at the time of writing. I got them the day after I wrote the last letter, and they are living grand. I have let several fanciers in the district see them, and not one of them knows what they are. They have all seen the Reed Bunting, but they cannot agree that these are Buntings, and in my opinion they are foreign birds. I will let any one see them who likes to call at 125, Back High St., Gosforth, Northumberland.

E. BROWN.

[The Reed Bunting in Mr. Norman's Coloured Plate represents the cock bird when in breeding (summer) plumage; in winter plumage it looks very different. From the above letter, however, we have no hesitation in saying that our correspondent's birds are Tree Sparrows (Passer montanus). They are much less common than the House Sparrow (though by no means rare) and often puzzle people to identify.—Editor.]

Bread and Milk in the Rearing of Canaries.

SIR,—As one who has kept birds (both Canaries and British) from a boy, you may imagine that I have had my ups and downs. When in my teens I started with Canaries, only songster Canaries, of no particular breed. The seed I gave them (the secret was given me by a "knowing one") to feed on was black and white seed, i.e. canary and rape (the latter winter rape). I can assure you they did well on it. The hen built a nest in a small wooden box, and hatched four out of five eggs. The question was, how could I raise the young? Would "black and white" be sufficient? The problem was solved by a lady who saw the birds, and suggested that the best way to feed the babies, as she called them, was on scalded milk and bread with a little sugar added. I did so, and I am able to say that the four were raised and became strong, healthy birds. That simple idea left a great impression on me, and I have often followed the "tip." Many a nest have I raised by the bread and milk diet, which I now make as follows:—Crumble a little stale bread with some new milk and then boil with a pinch of salt. Squeeze out with a fork, or spoon, most of the moisture, and add a little coarse sugar. Then sprinkle over the lot a little maw seed. The birds will eat this and will thrive well on it. But in the hot weather this food should be made night and morning, so it is quite fresh. The vessels should also be well washed out after each meal. With this food, and the young tender leaves of the dandelion, young Canaries can be successfully raised, strong and healthy, without the addition of egg. Great care, of course, should be exercised to see that the red mite is not in the nest. This pest is one of the chief drawbacks to beginners. The nest should be well sprinkled with insect powder as soon as the hen sits, and again just before she hatches; and when the young are about ten days old remove them into a clean nest. With this simple treatment good results will follow.

OLD BREEDER.

A National Show to be Held in Wales.

SIR,—I much appreciate your very kind offer to help on the first Welsh National show, and I assure you that all Welsh fanciers look to good old CAGE BIRDS to give them a helping hand. The show will be held on the Palace show dates, Feb. 5, 6, and 8, in the magnificent Banqueting Hall at the Carlton Hotel, Cardiff. The hall is 125ft. by 35ft. by 45ft., and I question when a bird show has ever been held in more beautiful surroundings. The handsome oak carving on the familiar walls, the great coloured-glass windows on three sides of the room, the whole surmounted by a big glass dome, makes it an ideal hall for a National show. Mr. Will Sampson, the old "war horse," will manage the show, and I think we shall be able to get the Lord Mayor at the opening ceremony. As soon as we have fixed up the schedule our secretary will forward you full particulars. I would like to mention that the Welsh National have no thought whatever of appropriating the Palace Show dates at any future shows, and have only decided upon these dates for this show out of pure sentiment.

[We feel sure that when the time comes round fanciers will give their heartiest support to this plucky and desirable venture of the Welshmen.—Editor.]

A Soldier Fancier at the Front.

SIR,—I enclose a letter received from Trooper Walters, of the 12th Lancers, who is serving with the British Expeditionary Forces. Previous to rejoining the Colours, Trooper Walters, who was a reservist, was in business as a fanciers' provider at 131, High Street, Longton, Staffs, and in his absence his wife is "keeping the flag flying," on behalf of herself and child, until his return. The letter will no doubt be read with interest by readers of CAGE BIRDS.

J. PITCHFORD.

Nov. 26th, 1914.

Dear Sir,—I now take the pleasure of writing a few lines to you, hoping it will find you and family enjoying very good health, as I am quite well myself. I trust everything is going on satisfactorily. I have heard some very fine songsters in Belgium, and I have found always the same complaint at almost every home I have gone into—the father absent, and the poor pets ill fed and watered, and I have attended to them in every case when I had time. I found in one house over 100 Canaries. It appeared a German had lived there and fled before we came. I heard these birds singing. I was on patrol, and so I had a chance to look after them. Well I emptied all the seed I could see out, and put plenty of water, and then I thought how I would have liked them in my shop, they were a nice lot, and it was a real treat to hear them after being away from home some time. I hope I can only help some more of the pets of our Fancy before I come home.

TROOPER WALTERS.

When is a Novice Not a Novice?

SIR,—I am very pleased to see this subject brought forward in your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, because I feel that it is one which needs an "airing," for there must be many fanciers whose experience is similar to mine. In February of last year, falling in love with the Fancy, I wrote to a well-known breeder of Crests and Crest-breeds for information, etc., stating the length of my purse, and received the candid advice that being a beginner it would give more satisfaction to commence with a more easily managed and less expensive variety. Acting on that advice I started as a Border fancier, and with a little care and attention, blessed with good fortune, I have in two seasons obtained the required three firsts in members' classes, and now find myself a "full-blown Border champion." Now, I have a great regard for Crests and Crest-breeds, and should very much like to make a venture with my first love; but what chance do you think, sir, I should stand, with no experience of the variety, against the crack champion Crest fanciers? I think that this is one of the answers to the question so often asked as to why more fanciers do not take up the select and difficult varieties. If the rules of the various specialist clubs allowed fanciers to pass through the novice stages in each variety, many who, like myself, have advanced too quickly would no doubt try to gain the experience which would enable them to compete with the various leaders with some slight chance of success.

NOVICE CHAMPION.

Novice Exhibitors and the L. and P.O.S. and Clapham Shows.

SIR,—Competition at these shows was limited, and not open in the legal sense of the word. It was announced in your columns that wins at the L. and P.O.S. Show would not affect the status of a novice, and at future L. and P.O.S. and Palace Shows wins by novices at the above shows will be ignored.

Special Prizes at Falkirk Good Intent Show.

SIR,—I crave a small space to air a grievance which I heard discussed at the show of the Falkirk Good Intent C.B.A. last Saturday. There were twelve classes for Norwich, and these had eleven specials allocated to them, while the British birds with ten classes had but two, and these for fourth birds. May I ask those in authority if this was doing justice to the British bird exhibitor? especially as there was a cup for most points with four nominated birds, specials to count.

INTERESTED.

The Scots Fancy Canary to be Revived.

SIR,—Many people were inclined to think the Scots Fancy Canary was dead or, at least, dying; but new life has suddenly sprung up amongst the fanciers of the cult. A glimpse at the advt. columns of CAGE BIRDS will suffice to show that this is not mere talk, but reality. I may say, too (on good authority) that a smarter piece of business than the getting up of the Glasgow and Dist. Scots. Fancy Association would be difficult to imagine. Just imagine a society formed, office bearers fixed, judges and hall settled, and everything set in thorough working order for a show on Saturday, Jan. 2, in the space of little more than an hour's time. Good biz., eh? No one will doubt the truth of such a statement when one considers those who are at the head of the business: Mr. J. Brown (East Kilbride), President; Baillie W. Robertson, Vice-President; Mr. A. McLauchlan (Govan) Secretary. I understand the show is guaranteed against loss, so that we may expect a great revival of the Scots Fancy Canary.

Early Yorkshire Canaries at the Palace Show.

SIR,—In your reply to Mr. J. Holroyd's letter, which was published last week, I omitted to refer to Mr. Moses Holroyd's exhibits, as mentioned by his near kinsman. I was more than pleased to be informed that my now old friend Moses was still with us, and was apparently interested in Mr. Bird's reference to the early Palace exhibits, etc. As mentioned in my previous letter, it was not until 1873 that even a single class was provided for the Yorkshires, as so named. The two following shows (1874 and 1875) were again given only one Yorkshire class, when Mr. Luke Belk, of Dewsbury, whom Mr. Moses Holroyd will well remember, took all the money prizes at both shows. The two following years were noted for the birds of Mr. J. H. Thackrey, who practically cleared the decks with his several exhibits, taking all the first prizes, excepting the one in 1877 gained by Messrs. Wilkinson and Holroyd. In 1878 the principal prizes were won by Messrs.

Holroyd, Wilkinson, Rawnsley and J. Clemison. Other interesting particulars could be given, which were collected by me some years ago. However, this addition will perhaps be sufficient for the purpose of answering Mr. J. Holroyd. In conclusion, I may add that so far as I have been able to gather, the three brothers Holroyd (Isaac, William, and Moses) appear to my mind, though perhaps not first in the field of Yorkshire Palace exhibitors, to have done most valuable spade-work in building up the Yorkshires as we see them to-day.

The Yorkshire Canary Club's Patronage at Edinburgh.

SIR,—The Palace show being cancelled, the patronage of the Y.C.C. has been accepted by the Scottish National show, where all specials will be in competition. The classification is good, and prize-money very liberal. I trust members will show their appreciation by making a good entry. And why not a visit to Edinburgh for a change? There will be no Palace show for you this time, so think it over, my friends.

JOHN GREAVES.

Another Open Show for Glasgow.

SIR,—Another open show will be held in Glasgow on January 22 and 23, under the auspices of the Scottish Plainhead Club, and possibly the Yorkshire Canary Club of Scotland. Owing to the fact that the Plainhead Club was unable to get confined classes at the Scottish National show this year for their young bird club show, the committee of the S.P.C. venture to run this show. They intend giving a very full classification for Norwich, both old and young, and should the Yorkshire club join them in running the show, a very full classification for Yorkshires will also be given. Since it has been decided to abandon the Palace show for this season, it is to be hoped that breeders of the varieties to be catered for will generously support the undertaking. Later on full details of the scheme will be advertised in the columns of this journal.

The Value of Lady Secretaries of Societies.Splendid Work at Hastings.

SIR,—Re the Hastings and St. Leonard's C.B.S., I hope you will find room in your valuable paper CAGE BIRDS, to which I look forward every Friday, to congratulate our society on the able way our hon. secretary, Miss Kirk-Bullock, and her mother carried through our late annual show. Although only a members' show Mr. Robson, the judge, told me personally that we had a splendid show and better competition than he had seen at a lot of open shows, and that we ought to be proud of having such a secretary. I told him that if any society was on the down grade the members had better try a lady secretary. But he said ours was one in a hundred (I should, however, still advise them to give it a trial). Through Miss Kirk-Bullock's efforts we are enabled to hand over to the Belgian Relief Fund £15, being the profits of our show, besides 18s. 6d. collected in boxes in the hall.

THE SHOWS.

DUBLIN (S. County C.B.A.).

Third annual show Town Hall, Kingstown, Dec. 9 and 10, proceeds in aid of the National Relief Fund. The hall is one of the best for the purpose in Ireland, and both judges stated they never stood in a better one. The officers and committee, Messrs. Foster (hon. treas.), O'Reilly, O'Brien, Dwyer, Ward, Price, Waters, Beegan, Carroll, Sholedice, and Clery (vice-president) are a very hard-working lot, and everyone did his duty in a first-rate style. Mr. Smythe, the sec., worked very hard, and seemed always to be where he was wanted. On the day preceding the show the committee were thrown into despair by Mr. Wilcock telegraphing that owing to illness he could not attend, and Mr. Smyth wired Mr. Metcalf, who, in spite of such short notice, answered the call to the relief of all. The officers and committee desire to thank, through the medium of our paper, CAGE BIRDS, Mr. Metcalf for this act, which will never be forgotten in Kingstown. Entries far exceeded those of last year. Yorks. were well to the front, O'Reilly winning sp. best bird in the show with clear buff cock; this bird is the biggest winner in Yorkshires ever staged in Ireland, having captured about 20 firsts since it was first shown in 1910. It also won CAGE BIRDS special of 10s. at Bangor, and CAGE BIRDS diploma for best bird in show at Kingstown last year. Non-colour-feds were a grand lot, some very fine yellows being staged; some of them could have won in the open, especially Sholedice's buff hen, which stood a long fight for best bird in the show, and also Gillen's yellow cock. Sholedice captured all specials in this section. Novices were well up to the standard, Byrne capturing most points for specials. Crests and Norwich were good, but we would like to see more of them. Mules and Hybrids were a nice lot, British as usual came to the front. Confined classes were well filled, and some of the winners will be heard of next year in open sections. In the juvenile section, the boys, aged 16 and under, showed a keen anxiety for showing their British birds, and Mr. Ward, to whom all praise should be given, as their instructor, deserves great credit for the way the bids were staged. Mr. Metcalf, Liverpool, judged Canaries, and Mr. Wilson, Cumberland, Brit. and Mules; their awards were received with satisfaction.

REDCAR C.B.S.

Members' show of young stock and British birds, Crown and Anchor, Oct. 31. Mr. A. Wake judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction. Members gave splendid support, and we had a total entry of 83, of which there were 52 in the six Yorks. classes, amongst them being some real good birds. Norwich classes filled badly, members having done badly with these this season. Mr. G. Barker won sp. most points in champ. section, and Mr. A. Harvey 2nd; Mr. J. Clark sp. most points novice, and Mr. W. Curnell 2nd. These specials were kindly given by Mr. Skinner (Kirkcatham). CHAMP. YORKS. YELL. (12): 1, hc, Barker; 2, Harvey; 3, 4, Marsey; vhc, c, Bray. LEEDS C.B.S. Show, Nov. 7, St. George's Schoolrooms. Entries came up very well, 256 birds being staged, and quality was all that could be desired. Mr. J. Livingstone won special for best bird with his unfledged yellow Norwich, which should have a good future. This was no mean achievement, as there were birds in every section that have taken premier honours at leading open shows. Mr. Sam Wilcock judged, and his awards gave general satisfaction.

WEST BROMWICH.

Inter-club show, Nov. 21. City of Birmingham, Walsall, and Wolverhampton were invited to join at Dartmouth Hotel. The entry did not come up to expectations, but what was lacking in quantity was easily made up with quality, every class containing birds of merit, and some with Crystal Palace laurels were there. The most noticeable failure was the novice section, usually one of the strongest. The show was excellently managed, and much praise is due to Mr. S. N. Taylor, chairman, and Messrs. W. Hepwood, H. T. Collier, and J. A. Tonks. Judging was over in good time, prize cards up as soon as class was judged, and prize money paid out on night of show. Mr. J. A. Tonks again took members' challenge cup, making his second win; J. Hearnshaw, most points with rung birds 1914; Mr. J. H. Roe, Birmingham, judged.—W. G. Andrews, Hon. Sec. SWANSEA.

Annual show of the Swansea P.C., Dec. 10. Entries were a record, close on 400, and quality was quite on a par with the quantity. Owing to lack of room we heard about 50 entries had to be returned. Norwich, Borders, Mules, and British were a grand lot, the Britishers reminding us of the Welsh shows of a few years ago. The venue was the market, part of which was partitioned off for the purpose. The exhibits were nicely staged and well looked after by old and experienced fanciers. Visitors were numerous, and everything seemed to indicate that the Red Cross Society would reap a benefit, as the society had generously decided to give them the proceeds. Mr. E. Dendle makes a most capable and efficient secretary, having everything well in hand, and was most courteous to all. Mr. J. H. Payne judged.

Questions and Answers.

DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS

- (1)—All questions must be clearly written in ink (or typewritten) on one side of paper, and conclude with either the correct name or a pseudonym.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

GROWTH ON WING (Miss Dorothy Rose).—The growth you describe is an abnormal feather, formed by an accretion of feather-forming material when the quill was forming during the moult.

NORWICH COCK WHEEZING (H. Daw).—See that the bird is quite free from direct cold draughts, or sudden and extreme fluctuations of temperature.

ROLLER NOT SINGING (A.T.G.).—You do not say whether the bird has sang at all since you received it. If not, then you should have returned it within the time allowed for approval.

Singing Contests.

Announcements of forthcoming contests in the nature of advertisements must be paid for at advertisement rates, three words a penny.

CASTLEFORD.

Linnet contest, George and Dragon, Bridge St., Dec. 12, time singing, 1, 2, S. Morley; 3, Ratcliff.

KIPPAX.

Open sing, Dec. 5, 12 entered. 1, Livingside; 2, 3, Potter. Dec. 12, open sing at headquarters, Commercial Hotel.

PONTEFRAC.

Linnet contest, Woodman Inn, Dec. 12. Twenty-one entered. Three minutes time singing: 1, Beard, 95; 2, 3, Jones, 81, 80.

LEEDS.

Quality singing, Old Bird House, Skippers Arms, Basingthorpe, Dec. 5.

Leeds Linnet and Canary Club quality singing match, Plasterers' Arms, Skinner-lane, Dec. 13; 24 birds faced the judges.

A special Linnet match will be held Christmas Day; also same night a championship Roller Canary match.

Leeds Linnet and C.F.A., Albion Hotel, Saville Green, York-rd., open contest for quality Linnet singing, Dec. 12; 16 birds sang.

Leeds Linnet and C.F.A., Albion Hotel, Saville Green, York-rd., open contest for quality Linnet singing, Dec. 12; 16 birds sang.

summer rape. In addition give separately every second day for a fortnight half a teaspoonful of and two of cod liver oil emulsion mixed in it and crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry.

DIFFICULTY IN EVACUATING (E. J. H.).—I am inclined to think that the bird is in an overfed condition, and that its trouble is mainly due to accumulations of fat.

QUESTIONS OF MATING (A. L. T.).—(1) No, the Goldfinch is not too old to mate up with the Roller hen provided he is in good health and active.

NO USE IN LEGS (G. H. P.).—Without much more definite information as to the probable origin or cause of the bird's trouble I could not even hazard a guess as to what is wrong.

BREATHES WITH DIFFICULTY (H. A. P.).—I'm afraid the bird is in a much too advanced stage of bronchitis to admit of any cure.

CANARY QUERISTS

should consult St. John's "Canary Breeding for Beginners" (7d.); House's "Canary Manual" (1/2); Batty's "Yorkshire Canaries" (1/1); House's "Norwich Canaries" (1/1); Weston's "Stock Book" (7d.); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); Norman's "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); Ramsden's "Colour-feeding" (3/4); "Seeds and Foods for Cage Birds" (1/2); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 5 "The Pet Canary," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 10 "The Roller," No. 23 "The Border Fancy," No. 24 "Green Canaries."

not necessarily overheated, and do not hang it in or near a window, near burning lights in the evenings, nor high up near the ceiling.

DIET FOR OUTDOOR AVIARY YORKSHIRES (G. R.).—As a staple diet give a mixture of three parts, by measure, of canary to one part summer rape in unlimited quantities.

SAMPLE OF SEED (Cymro).—The sample consists wholly of charlock, with just a few stray grains of other weeds, docks, etc.

MAKES SQUEAKY NOISE (B. K.).—You have done right in moving the bird to a more comfortable temperature for the time being, but do not overheat it, and do not hang it near or over burning lights in the evenings, high up near the ceiling, nor too near the fireplace, where the temperature is apt to fluctuate a good deal.

YOUNG YORKSHIRE BLIND (L. Watson).—Sorry, but the bird is suffering from cataract, for which there is absolutely no cure.

AN IRRITABLE SUBJECT (Bertram).—Thoroughly examine the cage, probing any cracks or open joints with a pin on to a sheet of white paper, to see if any red mites are discoverable.

to bathe as freely as it likes. In addition to its staple diet give every third day for a month a piece of bread and milk slightly dusted with flowers of sulphur and then sprinkled with soft sugar.

WORTH MANY DEAD ONES (Villager).—Thanks for report. Glad to know that the advice given you has been so successful.

A WHEEZY YORKSHIRE (A. E. Lloyd).—Keep the bird in a comfortable temperature, but do not overheat it, and see that it is not exposed to cold direct draughts, and do not hang it near or over burning lights in the evenings, or high up near the ceiling.

HOW TO FEED (W. H.).—An elaborate seed mixture is not to be commended for a regular staple diet for any caged birds. It not only precludes the birds having any real change, but they are very apt to pick out just those seeds, not always the most wholesome, which they like best, and waste the rest.

FEAR OF CONTAGION (X. Y. Z.).—No, asthma is not contagious, though the predisposition to it may certainly be inherited, so, although you may set your fears at rest on the first score, it is not advisable to breed with birds so affected.

ABOUT AN AVIARY (A. W. K.).—Beyond the question as to the number of birds you could keep in the proposed aviary, there is no other definite question, and I cannot see what it is you wish to know particularly.

MAKES RATTLING SOUND (Norwich Canary).—The probability is that the exciting causes of the condition have not been removed; hence the failure of your own treatment.

TO TIGHTEN PLUMAGE (Uncle Jim).—(1) Give the Yorkshire cock half a teaspoonful of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it and sprinkled with maw seed every second day for a fortnight or so.

A SEXTETTE (Hopful).—(1) Please note that you should not write queries concerning Mules on the same sheet of paper as Canary questions, as they have to go to different persons.

(4) Yes, it is quite possible to breed Mules from a hen that has not previously been used for breeding. (5) Any of the Finch tribe that you fancy is suitable—Goldfinch, Linnet, or Greenfinch are the most commonly used. It is not essential for them to be home-mated, but in the case of the Greenfinch it is advisable. (6) Assuming that you intend using Canary hens the ordinary Canary breeding cages are all that you require.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.—Continued.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

BIRDS FOR AN AVIARY (H. Daw).—I am glad to hear you did so well with your Greenfinch; he should be a useful bird for breeding from either with a Canary or another British bird. Your aviary is not large enough to keep any number of birds in with any success, as there is nothing so detrimental to them as overcrowding. If you had a cock Goldfinch, Bullfinch, Siskin and Linnets that would be quite sufficient. Have all cock birds, for if you put in only a single hen you will be sure to have trouble. You should obtain your stock as soon as possible now, and feed them for a week or so on a fair allowance of soaked seeds such as teazle, rape, and a little canary; at the same time supply them with ordinary mixed seeds, a little cracked sunflower, and wild seeds which you can procure in packet form from most good corn dealers.

EXHIBITING A WAXING (D. Robinson).—A Waxing is not so large as a Song Thrush and could not be exhibited in a class provided for Thrush and larger birds. If you have another class for any species small British, that will be the one for him. At large shows there are generally classes for different species of Finches, then for Warblers and Thrushes, and the Waxings come in with the Any Other Species Insectivorous Birds. The Waxing makes a very nice exhibition bird; he should be shown in a good cage and be in perfect feather, or he will not stand much chance of coming out on top.

STORING RAIN WATER (British Bird).—I gather from your letter that you are using rain water for drinking purposes; if this is the case it should be perfectly fresh, and filtered for the purpose. It contains a certain quantity of impurities, some of which decompose in time. I would therefore advise you to use boiled water for drinking purposes, and rain water for bathing. If filtered and bottled it can be kept for a couple of weeks, after that period it would be better to boil it. The difficulty is that birds will frequently drink a little before bathing. It is a good plan to give them fresh drinking water before giving the bath, as when this is done birds invariably have a drink at once. This is a proof that birds like their drink fresh, and most fanciers give it twice daily, particularly during the summer.

BRITISH BIRD & HYBRID QUERISTS should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Aviaries, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2, "Linnets," No. 3 "Skylark," No. 4, "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Birdrooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

PAIRING FOR HYBRID BREEDING (P. H. C.).—The best way to mate with your four birds is as follows: Cock Goldfinch and hen Canary; cock Canary and hen Bullfinch. This way you are almost certain of obtaining some Goldfinch-Canary Mules, and it is just possible you may be fortunate enough to get a Canary-Bullie. It is rather unfortunate that your Canaries are of the Yorkshire type, as these do not breed quite such shapely young ones as the Norwich, but as songsters they are equally good. You had better pair them off and let them fly together during the winter, but you must be careful in introducing the Canary to the Bullfinch hen. It will be safer to hang them side by side for a week or so, so that the hen Bullie gets quite used to seeing him. She may then take to him when they are put together, otherwise if she takes a dislike to him you will be unable to do anything with them.

SEED SAMPLE (Dodd).—The sample of seed sent is not at all a bad one, and could be used for any of the Finches, giving a spoonful two or three times a week. You had better carefully watch the effects of it as there is evidently a little seed among it that is not properly ripened or gathered. I have examined it carefully but cannot detect which it is, the majority is quite good although the test of smelling tells me it is not quite perfect. (2) The Chough is not a very difficult bird to keep in captivity. He should have a good big cage or aviary to exercise in. His food should consist of poultry meal with a spoonful of meat meal mixed in it, and the whole soaked in hot water, vary this with "Melox" treated in the same way, occasionally give a feed of insectile food as used for more delicate birds. He should also have scraps from the table and a little minced meat, either cooked or raw, but not much of the latter, and what he has should be perfectly sweet. Insects should be offered, such as snails, worms, caterpillars, beetles, etc., and occasionally a little of the smaller shell fish. These are part of the natural food which he would gather along the sea shore.

LINNET IN MOULT (Billy).—If your Linnets had a proper moult in the autumn and has now started again he is evidently in a soft moult, due to your keeping him in either a draughty position or where there is a fire and gas going. I wish you had told me how you are feeding him, what you call your ordinary Linnets seed may be anything. Make up the following and give him as a staple food: Canary 3 parts, teazle 2 parts, rape and linseed 1 part each. Give a little cracked hemp twice a week, and a spoonful of wild seed mixture 3 times a week. This you should be able to purchase from some good corn merchant, put up in packets by well known firms. It should contain several kinds, including gold of pleasure, dandelion, thistle, etc. He should also have a daily spray of watercress, shepherd's purse or chickweed, but not in frosty weather. If you are unable to procure these try him with a small piece of sweet apple. Our booklet on the Linnets would be useful to you, price 2d. post free. (2) The feathers round the thighs of your Bullfinch are a fault that you cannot alter; they generally show it most when excited or disturbed. In some cases after a house-moult a bird will lose it, or partly so. Let him bathe himself if he will, and give a large cage.

BIRDS IN AVIARY (E. H. S.).—The trouble with your birds is that the seed you are giving them is not suitable to all. I would advise you to catch some of them up and treat them separately. Give the Canary and Mule bread soaked in hot milk, with a little soft sugar sprinkled on it every other day for a week, giving very little seed excepting maw. Follow this up with a small teaspoonful of chemical food in the drinking water, using boiled water. Feed on plain sound canary and a little rape, and mixed seeds twice a week. Treat the Goldfinch as follows: Mix canary and teazle 3 parts of each, hemp 2 parts, linseed 1 part, summer rape half part; this will be the stock mixture. Give sunflower daily, say half doz. mixed seeds. Make another mixture of niger and maw and give a small teaspoonful twice a week; on other days a little good wild seed, which is especially put up for Finches. Give the chemical food as advised for the canary. The Siskin should be fed on canary, rape and teazle, and a little hemp and maw occasionally, and plenty of green food, but be sure it is free from frost. For the Chaffinch mix canary and teazle 4 parts, summer rape and linseed 1 part each. Give sunflower seed daily, a little hemp occasionally, and any insects you can procure, also a spray of chickweed, groundsel, shepherd's purse, etc. You should also give a little germinated seed to the Chaffinch and Siskin. With this treatment your birds should improve, but I would advise you to send for our Nutshell booklets on the different Finches; they contain much more information than I can give you in these short answers.

PAIRING REDPOLL AND BULLFINCH (Robin).—The fact of your being unsuccessful last year in your breeding operation is not an unusual occurrence. There is a good deal of the element called luck in hybrid production, and you may next season strike a happy vein. Now, the question is: Are you sure that your Redpoll is large enough? You do not say if he is a Lesser or a Mealy; if the former, he must be exceptionally large to be able to successfully fertilise eggs with a Siberian hen Bullie. If you have any doubt about this, you had better give her a fresh partner next season. Why not try the Canary you mention? If you do, you should run them together at once, taking the Redpoll away altogether. I would remove him to another room, let her be by herself for a week, and then hang the Canary close to her. You could then run him in and try; you may have a difficulty, as some hens are very spiteful, and unless they take to their partner give him a bad time. I do not think you will be wise in waiting for Siberian Goldies.

FINCH QUESTIONS (Bunting).—I think the following mixture would suit your birds better than the one you are using. Canary and teazle three parts each, summer rape and linseed one part each, with a little hemp and sunflower on alternate days. The Finch mixture you mention should be given separately about three times a week. Privet berries can be kept quite fresh for a long time. Collect them with a good length of stalk, and put the ends in the ground as though you were planting them, pressing the ground firmly round them. They should be protected by having a piece of wire-netting stretched over and round them, or you can keep them indoors in water or damp sand, but not in a dry atmosphere or they shrivel up. (2) A cock Greenfinch would be the most likely partner to mate with your hen Goldie, although the hybrid produced from the Linnets or Siskin would be more valuable. Whichever you decide upon I would advise you to get as early as possible, and let them fly together during the winter months.

SHOW CAGE FOR REDWING (E. J. Southwood).—Your show cage for a Redwing need not be very large, as the bird is not in it many days at any time, and a cumbersome cage is always a difficulty at a show, besides being somewhat troublesome to get there. A good size would be 18 inches long, 14 inches high, and 10 inches from back to front. Have a 3/4-inch front rail, as it prevents the floor covering from being scattered. Place the perches about six inches apart; this will make an easy jump and allow plenty of room from the sides, so that he will not be likely to damage his plumage. There is more diversity of opinion respecting the best colour for the backs of cages which are intended to show off the Greenfinch and the Bunting than any other birds. The Yellow Bunting contains so much yellow in its plumage that I think its complementary primary colour, which is blue, should predominate. Therefore paint it this colour, inclining to a light shade, and if your blue is too raw in tone, soften it by mixing a small quantity of red with it. Mix a little on a piece of glass first before adding it to the bulk. When you have given the cage one coat try the bird in it before finishing; you may decide that it requires a little alteration. When painting out the interior of a cage never use a colour that is startling, it attracts more attention than the bird, whereas the bird should be first, and the colour at the back simply put there to show it off to the best advantage.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S. AILING AMAZON (R.P.).—Cease giving the milk-sop. Soak one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia into the boiled maize every other day, so long as the voidings are not watery-loose, when the latter occurs only give the magnesia once a week. Put half a teaspoonful of syrup of hypophosphates in the drinking water every other day for the next month at least. Put a little honey and borax in the bird's mouth daily for a similar period. This can easily be done from the end of a stick, but the latter should be well cleansed, or a fresh one used for each occasion. As regards the dietary—seed mixture, boiled maize and ripe fruit, which with such extras as nuts, dry biscuit, crust of stale household bread and plain cake, should maintain an amply varied menu. Cuttlebone and grit (not sand) must be continuously supplied. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever.

IN BAD PLUMAGE (T.).—In dealing with such a case I should ignore, for the time being, what is usually considered the orthodox diet. Give them a generous one, including gentles and meal worms, also milk-sop as well as the usual menu. Prepare the sop so: put several pieces (about size of walnuts) of sponge cake into a small dish, drop on to each a little cod liver oil emulsion and then pour over the whole as much boiling milk as the sponge cake will absorb. You can, of course, use Nestlé's milk and boiling water in lieu of the fresh milk; in fact, the latter is preferable. With advantage the moistened sponge cake may be lightly dusted with flour of sulphur, but you must consult the birds' taste, and if they refuse the sop so treated you must supply it without the sulphur. I should also give half a teaspoonful of syrup of hypophosphates in the drinking water every other day. The bowels should be kept moving quite freely by an occasional laxative (I prefer Dinneford's magnesia to any other) as required.

BENGALESE, ETC. (F. Giles).—The Bengalese are not prolific breeders, many eggs are spoiled by both birds sitting at once and sitting very irregularly, but are you sure you have a pair; have you examined any of the eggs to ascertain if they are fertile? Two hens will nest and lay and incubate and repeat the operation ad infinitum. If you have a true pair you will ultimately get some young, but in any case you will get many more eggs than young. Give them a little green food, lettuce leaf now, groundsel, seedling grass, etc., in the summer. As regards the Budgerigars, these breed more freely in the aviary when several pairs are kept together, but they should certainly breed with you in the cage, though they may take longer to settle down to reproducing their kind in the cage than they do in the aviary. Budgerigars do not use any nesting material, so their nest-box must have a concave bottom to prevent the eggs rolling about on the bare wood and spoiling. A small barrel or coco-nut husk is the best receptacle for this species. Get our Nutshell "Budgerigars," 2d. post free, from our Manager; it will help you. Queries must be sent through CAGE BIRDS and not to me direct. See rules.

BENGAL PARRAKEETS (R.L.).—As you have "Foreign Birds for Beginners," if you read what is written about Parakeets (pages 55 to 60) and apply this generally to your birds they will thrive and do well. However, to be quite clear here is a good seed mixture: One quart each canary, white millet and oats; one pint each paddy rice (often called chicken rice), hemp and sunflower seeds, and half a pint of shelled monkey nuts—well mix the whole and let your birds have a continuous supply. Grit, cuttlebone and water must also be continually in the cage. Do not give tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps, or any kind of animal food whatever. Supply a little ripe fruit daily, any kind it will take, and you can supply plain biscuit, dry crust of household bread, piece plain cake and any kind of nut it fancies, but do not give more than one Brazil nut per diem. In the summer it can have garden weeds to pick over as green food. It will tend to the bird's welfare if you keep a good sized piece of a natural branch fastened to one side of the cage for it to cut up and amuse itself with. Bengals are robust birds, and the temperature of any living room will suffice, any part of it, but they must not be subjected to draught.

GREY PARROT (H. E. Fuller).—You might easily make this bird's diet a little more varied. Your best course will be to send 2d. to our Manager for the "Grey Parrot" Nutshell, which will make all clear to you. Feather pulling is more or less a bad habit and very difficult to eradicate. Spray the bird once a week with a tepid quassia solution, but keep strictly out of cool winds and draught till it is dry. Also paint the bare patch with Spratt's Pennacura two or three times weekly for a time, but do not use sufficient to grease the surrounding plumage. Give it one teaspoonful of Dinneford's magnesia in the drinking water every fourth day, and on the intervening days put half a teaspoonful of syrup of hypophosphates in the water. Do not give any tea, coffee or milk sops, table scraps (dry potato will do no harm), or any kind of animal food whatever. Keep it interested and occupied as much as possible; also fasten a good sized piece of a tree branch against one side of its cage for it to cut up and amuse itself with. Report progress in about 2 months' time.

DIAMOND-NECKED DOVES (Distressed).—I had not previously come across this name. It is most commonly sold as the Necklaced Dove, and its scientific name is Turtur tigrinus. It ranges over Burma, Malay Peninsula and Sunda Islands, and is a winter visitor as far south as Timor and the Moluccas. There is a near species, the Spotted Dove (T. suratensis) which is very similar and is sometimes sold as the former by English dealers. The value of the Necklaced Dove is 12/6 to 15/- per pair. They breed pretty freely in captivity and are hardy, i.e., may be wintered in an outdoor aviary. As regards diet: canary and millet and almost any kind of small corn, e.g., dari, wheat, small maize, and also hemp. Flint-grit must be provided, and it is good policy to keep a piece of rock salt in the Dovesy. A little crushed biscuit and monkey (pea) nuts should also be provided.

AMAZON PARROT (X.Y.Z.).—Pleased to hear of such a happy result, but it would be well to continue the treatment a little longer. For the more recent trouble keep the bowels moving quite freely by occasional doses (one teaspoonful in the drinking water) of Dinneford's magnesia, but you must not keep up a state of chronic diarrhoea. Dissolve three grains of bromide of potassium in a little syrup, stir this into two tablespoonfuls of water, this to form the only drinking water for the day, at any rate till it has all been consumed; supply this on three successive days. If there is any indication in the bird's demeanour of an attack coming on give a dose of the bromide at once and another on the following day. By watching and tending the bird in this manner the attacks should soon cease, and if there are occasional relapses keep a few powders of the bromide by you and give as required—the trouble will ultimately cease. Never permit the bowels to become at all constipated.

FEATHER PULLING (M. D. Feather Picker).—I much fear the feather pulling has become a vice with your bird, and that cure is next to impossible. You must still keep on with the treatment advised, as it is quite evident the bird's condition is anything but sound. As regards diet, a thorough change will be beneficial, send 2d. to our manager for Nutshell, "The Grey Parrot," and diet your bird exactly as given therein—the other contents also will help you. Get a bottle of Spratt's "Pennacura," and lightly anoint the bare parts therewith, but do not use sufficient to run among and grease the plumage. Bathe the foot with Friar's Balsam and thoroughly cleanse it, then paint with Friar's Balsam to check bleeding. Of course, when a bird's system is upset, it is a work of time correcting and a changed diet, etc., will not give immediate results. You may mitigate the evil of feather pulling, but I fear you will not permanently cure it.

WHAT PARRAKEET? (Constant Reader).—Your bird is the Yellow-naped Parakeet, which is also known as the Yellow-collared, and in Australia, among the colonists, as the "Twenty-eight," its call note being so construed. At least half the bulk of its seed mixture should consist of canary and white millet, the other half to consist of the other seeds you name. You must also supply fruit, and if it cares for it, it can have pieces of biscuit or a stale crust, but it will be better without the sopped bread. Grit and cuttlebone must be regularly supplied, also

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

A. Smith.—We do not know of a book dealing with the subject you mention.

C. M.—Make your "remonstrance" direct to the secretary and committee of your society; it is not of public interest. We should have thought you would have been only too pleased to support your officials in their effort to "keep things alive" on the exhibition side of the Fancy.

Rev. G. H. Raynor.—Accept our thanks for the cutting sent.

H. W. Cook.—It was thought to be quite possible that the fixture could be held at another venue.

POST MORTEMS.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. G.D. analysis, 21s. Subjects for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

L. King.—Patty disease of the liver was responsible for the bird's death, and the symptoms displayed during life. The disease was too far advanced for treatment to have been of any use. Next time, in the early stage of the disease try acidulated water, hydrochloric acid, five drops to two ounces of water daily. This is a very useful remedy, and easily administered.

A. Strickland.—The bird suffered from bronchitis in a sub-acute form. In other respects it was quite healthy, all its organs being otherwise quite sound, and its general condition good.

XMAS HOLIDAYS.

Invitation to all Fanciers.

I beg to offer an invitation to all fanciers to pay me a visit during the Christmas or New Year holidays. I shall be at home all the time, and it will be a pleasure to show anyone round my rooms, whether desiring to purchase or not.

I have a magnificent collection of Norwich, Yorkshires, Borders, Crests and Crestbreds, Scotch Fancies, British-bred Rollers, Mules, etc., all for sale at reasonable prices, and I defy anyone to give better value. If you cannot pay me a visit, send a P.C. for my Free Illustrated Catalogue, and remember I am prepared to send birds to any address in the Kingdom on 10 days' approval at my sole risk. Easy payments arranged with genuine fanciers.

JOE THOMAS Breeder, Exhibitor and Exporter, Ambler Thorn, Halifax, Yorks.

BOOKS FOR XMAS AND NEW YEAR PRESENTS.

No Better Gifts for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper Building, Fitting, and Management of Aviaries and Bird-rooms, and the making of Cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder and exhibitor of the Norwich Plainhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Beswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/6, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts. Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Un-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3/6.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moulting the birds to get the richest possible colour.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 250 5/6, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

Twitterings.

Mr. H. H. Towers has removed from Colne Road, Glusburn, to 5, Ash Street, Crosshills, near Keighley.

All prize-money has been paid at Sittingbourne show, writes Mr. T. Munday, the hon. sec.

Mr. T. J. Williams, Swansea, writes pointing out a mistake in the catalogue of Swansea show. In Yorks. hens the awards were 1, Williams; 2, Owen.

I was pleased to see on the front page of your Double Number my winning Twite. It does your artist great credit. I wish CAGE BIRDS every success.—F. Heal (Swansea).

We hear that prize-money won at Warrington show has been paid. Anyone who has been accidentally overlooked should apply to the sec., Mr. G. M. Nelson, 466, Knutsford Road.

Mr. J. C. Barnes (Sheffield) has, we hear, been engaged as Judge for the Driffield Open Show, Jan. 8. This being the first venture of this society, we hope exhibitors will not overlook the date.

I was surprised to find the sketch of my Yorkshire hen that won at Glasgow show. It does the artist great credit, and I must thank you for putting it in your Double Number.—Thos. Macready (Stranraer).

We have fixed out joint show with Bolton C.B.S. at Leigh for Jan. 23, with Mr. J. Beswick, of Stockport, as judge, when we are hoping to have a good show, writes Mr. R. Charleson, sec. Leigh C.B.S.

I have had a number of post-cards, writes Mr. W. Rackley, Hon. Sec., Watford C.B.S., to know if our show is a radius show. The show, Jan. 13-14, is open to United Kingdom, and schedules will be posted immediately before Christmas.

My compliments to your artist for the sketch of my Crossbill, "Charlie," at the Horticultural Hall Show; he looks so natural and life-like. It was a pleasant surprise to find his portrait in CAGE BIRDS.—Madame Feist-Madewell (Dulwich).

Mr. J. C. Bell asks us to point out that the forthcoming show of the Border City O.S. is only for Cumberland and Westmorland, and a forty-mile radius of Carlisle. Mr. Bell has had applications from all over the country for schedules, and such applicants have not been answered for above reason.

We want help at Aberdeen show on Jan. 7, writes Mr. J. M. S. James, the sec. There are 12 classes (open), including Class 57a for Goldfinch, also 58a for Linnets. We are only 12 miles from Pontypridd, so fanciers can work the two shows nicely. The judge is well known to all, Mr. J. H. Jones, of Merthyr. All profit goes to the Belgian Refugees Fund.

The following specials were received too late for allocation in the prize-list, writes Mr. J. R. Meikle, sec. Scottish National show:—Open, Mr. A. Gardiner, sp. for winner of Aitken Cup (Norwich section); Member, Mr. A. Craig, sp. for best C bird in classes 74 and 75; Member, Mr. Bowie, 2s. 6d. for best first in classes 18 and 18a; Open, Mr. I. Nelson, 2s. 6d. for best third in classes 67 to 69; Member, Mr. W. Thomson, sp. for best first in classes 110 and 111.

The schedule for the Liverpool and Dis. Amalgamated Show on Jan. 1 and 2, at Bootle, contains 14 open classes for Green Canaries (under G.C.A. patronage), 8 for champions, and 6 for novices, writes Mr. A. E. Huyton. Any fancier wishing to compete, or any member of the following societies:—Liverpool B.B.A., Birkenhead C.F.A., Garston B.B.A., Wallasey C.B.S., and Bootle C.B.S., not having received schedule, should write to me at 2, Byron Road, Blundellsands, Liverpool. Everything points to a successful show.

Swansea's Special Meeting.

With the object of bringing the members of the Swansea and Dist. C.B.A. together, and of inviting any fanciers who would like to join us, a special meeting will be held at the Market Tavern at 7.30 p.m. on Dec. 31, writes Mr. John Hocking. A hearty invitation is given to all fanciers in Swansea and district.

The Early Bird.

A Thrush's nest with two eggs has been found in a hedge at East Hyde, Bedfordshire.—"Daily Mail" (Dec. 21).

Aberdeen Address Wanted.

Mr. E. N. Smith (42, Other Rd., Redditch) writes that he will be glad if the fancier at Aberdeen with whom he some time ago made an exchange, will write him; Mr. Smith has unfortunately lost his address.

Huntingdon Invaded.

Huntingdon was invaded on the night of Dec. 9, but by a no more serious enemy than an immense crowd of starlings. They must have lost their way in the fog, for soon after dark they settled all over a wide area round Trinity Church. There must have been thousands of them, and they all talked at once, keeping up a continuous chatter till daylight next morning.—"Hunts, County News."

The Ruling Passion.

I received a letter from my brother, F. W. Burton (Sec. of the Southern Border Fancy Club) this week, and he still thinks of the Fancy, even in the trenches. I know he is always anxious for CAGE BIRDS, which I send him every week. He is with the Queen's Westminsters, and joined on the outbreak of the war. He says: "Please remember me to all the fanciers you meet, and keep me well informed as to shows, etc. I do not forget 'business,' even in the trenches. I have already obtained orders for several birds, and also one new club member."

Wounded Soldiers Enjoy Show.

At the Dublin South Co. C.B.A. show the committee gave an invitation to the wounded soldiers from Temple Hill, Blackrock, and, writes our reporter, some thirty were able to come the first day, accompanied by two nurses (for one could plainly see the effects of the German shells about the legs and the feet). They were escorted round by Mr. Smyth, the sec., and were delighted with their visit. As some of them were fanciers in England they took a deep interest in the show, and especially the Yorkshires and Britishers. One of them said he did not think he would see such a fine lot of birds in Ireland.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL SHOW.

A Record Entry Wanted, and is Well Deserved.

Scotland's great show will be held this year, notwithstanding the difficulties incidental to war time. The old familiar venue, the Corn Exchange, was taken over by the postal authorities, but an equally good hall has been found by the energetic show management, and this year's exhibition will be held in the Grindley Street Hall, a very central position. The perseverance of the officials in the face of great difficulties deserves the appreciation of all exhibitors, and should be rewarded by a record success even for this great annual event.

Special arrangements have been made with the railway companies, and exhibitors need have no fear in sending their birds. As for the care of the birds during the exhibition, little need be said; the birds in each section will be specially attended by experts. The care of the insectivorous British birds will be in the experienced hands of Mr. Hoyle, a member of the committee, while the best guarantee of the well-being of the foreign birds is that they will once again be under the personal supervision of Miss Peddie Waddell, whose kindness in this direction has been so much appreciated for some years past by the committee, and exhibitors alike.

125 classes are provided in the schedule, and the extraordinary number of 194 specials will be in competition, among them being many handsome shields, cups, and medals. The show is under the patronage of practically every specialist club in the Kingdom, and the various challenge cups, etc., of these societies are numbered among the specials. The appointment of the awards will be in the hands of no fewer than thirteen judges.

Norwich, judged by Messrs. A. Maxwell and W. N. Turner, have 12 open classes, 2 novice, and 3 limit; Crests and C.B. judge, Mr. J. Brotherton, have 8 open, 1 novice, and 2 limit classes; Scots Fancy, judges, Messrs. J. Hannay, A. Leslie, A. Livingston, and J. Watson, 12 open, 2 novice, and 4 selling; Borders, judges, Messrs. J. Johnstone and J. Patterson, 18 open, 2 novice, 3 limit; Belgians, 2 classes, Yorkshires 10 classes (1 nov.), Lizards 1 class, and A.O.V. 1, are in the hands of Mr. J. F. Dewar; Mules, judge, Mr. P. M. McQuiston, have 10 classes (8 open, 1 nov., 1 limit); British, Messrs. Livingstone and McQuiston, 18 open, 2 novice, 1 sell; and For., judge, Mr. C. Sykes, have 7 classes, 1 stock class, 1 gift, and 2 Hyde's classes complete a grand schedule. The prizes are 12s., 8s., 5s., 3s., 2s., for a fee of 2s., and entries close this week (Saturday's post, Dec. 26, at latest), to Mr. J. R. Meikle, 22, Brougham Street, Edinburgh.

Nests of Birds, Poultry, etc., should be regularly sprinkled with KEATING'S POWDER, especially when hens are sitting. Don't forget to do this just previous to the eggs hatching, to destroy the Red Mite. Kills all insects. Harmless to everything else.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column, a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager. Please note that we only insert those that guarantee, so our list is a bona-fide one.

CANARIES FOR THE HOSPITALS.

WE have pleasure in acknowledging several further sums from readers for the purpose of purchasing cages in which to send singing Canaries to hospitals and convalescent homes—housing wounded soldiers and sailors, viz.: Miss B. Willey (Malvern) 4/6, Mr. Geo. Crabb (London) 2/6, Mr. J. Forsyth (Cowie) 3/6 and Mr. B. Humphries (on behalf of the Devonshire Park Orchestra, Eastbourne) 15/-.

We are particularly gratified to receive the latter sum (made up by a sixpenny "whip round") as all the members of this fine Orchestra are not, of course, fanciers, and their action therefore, is all the more complimentary to the scheme our readers are helping us to carry through. They recognise the value and cheering influence of music, whether issuing from birdy throats or conjured up by human skill.

We append a short selection from letters that have reached us:—

2nd Western General Hospital,
Manchester.

Sir,—Mr. F. Schofield has sent us such a dear little Canary. He is quite happy, and singing lustily. Thank you very much for arranging it.

M. E. SPARSHOTT.

1st Scottish General Hospital,
Aberdeen.

Sir,—I beg to thank you very sincerely for the pretty Canary which arrived safely last night. It has already given great pleasure to our patients, and I am sure it will continue to do so. I also thank you for the canary seed.

M. SINCLAIR (Matron).

London Hospital,
Whitechapel, E.

Sir,—I have to acknowledge the safe arrival of a Norwich Canary, which you have kindly sent. I will have this placed in one of the wards where the wounded soldiers are, and I am sure it will be a source of delight to the men. Please accept my hearty thanks on their behalf.

E. W. MORRIS (Sec.).

Sir,—As my brother-in-law came to see me on Saturday from the Military Hospital, Kingston-on-Thames, I sent back with him a Canary and cage. My brother-in-law is in the R.A.M.C. and was delighted to take it back; he was telling us how fond our soldiers were of animals.

A. J. CLARKE.

East Dulwich.

Sir,—I have great pleasure in sending you 15s., collected from the members of the Devonshire Park Orchestra, Eastbourne, in aid of your very deserving Hospital Canary Scheme. I have called at the Military Hospital here, and the colonel and the matron would be delighted to receive a Canary and cage. I note that you are asking for more cages, so I will leave it to your discretion to use the money as you think best, taking it for granted that you will forward a Canary and cage to the "Military Hospital," Seaside, Eastbourne.

Owing to the necessity for going to press one day earlier this week, all matter and advertisements received after Tuesday mid-day have had to be held over until our next issue.—Editor.

By
E. W. ALLSOPP

A few words on the art of easily and profitably disposing of good-class surplus stock.

ANOTHER finishes up "from my Palace winners." And if you happen to possess the Palace catalogues for the past few years, you may find that the advertiser did win something at the Palace five or six years ago. Of course, I don't say the advertisement is not strictly true, but what intelligent buyer is influenced by the fact that the mothers of some of the surplus stock being offered happened to be chased by a five-year-old Palace winning cock?

The irony of it is that the first little six-penny advert. referred to is as likely as any other to prove trumps for the buyer. 'Tis just the feeble, meek and mild attempt of our lovable novice. His surplus birds are birds bred from some of the most reliable stock, and represent three or four years of careful thought, time and work. Nice large birds, too, in capital health and feather, some of them really worth £2, £2 10s., or £3 per pair, which prices my enquirers would gladly give.

Only Yourself to Blame.

Of course, when you advertise in such a way you have only yourself to blame. If you expect on your return from work to find a long queue of buyers at your door, kept in order by the local police and fire brigade, you get disappointed. Even the postman seems to grin up his sleeve as he passes your door; or perhaps he does manage to pop in two letters in the course of the following week. One you find is an intimation that your mother-in-law is arriving to spend a few weeks with you; the other is from your loving sister to say that all her family are down with the measles. And, of course, as neither helps to clear that surplus stock, you nearly upset the "missus" as well by omitting to mention how pleased you feel to learn that her mother is soon to be with you!

Now, some people will tell you that advertising is more expensive than a little wife and a large family. If they have found it so, then they did not know how to advertise. In some matters I know I can look as innocent as most people and say "now't," but it doesn't work when it comes to advertising, which is chiefly, as far as our particular subject is concerned, telling people that you have some stock for sale. If you think it worth while to tell people you are a seller, is it not worth while mentioning something about what you are selling? Do not expect interested parties to sit down and write to ask you all about your stock? If so, speaking for myself I can say that after wading through and replying to as much correspondence as I do in my daily work, I don't want any more of it when I get home; and no doubt there are many more like myself.

When we get Interested.

Supposing the advertisement tells us that the stock has been carefully bred for two, three, or four years, contains many birds of good size, type and colour, all healthy, and on approval with pleasure, we at once get interested. A long list of successes on the show-bench is not necessary to sell off surplus birds. Buyers as a rule want carefully bred, healthy, and large stock. If you have not won even one first prize in open competition, don't worry. Advertise the facts. If you have some real good surplus stock to sell, then shout about it, and don't mince matters.

Only a favoured few, with a long and honourable career in the Fancy, can afford to invest in a mere 6d. advt., and then proceed to count up the pieces. Buyers should be given some idea of what you are offering, and a 6d. advertisement conveys one half of what they wish to know, and maybe will not trouble to write and ask you about. There is no need to be extravagant when advertising; a lot of irrelevant matter interests no one (except, perhaps, the Editor). It is interesting, well-written, forceful advertising that pays.

But don't try to follow what I myself do in this respect, for I am sure you will only make a hash of it. My wife often says there is no other man in the world like me! And, of course, if the observation is not made too near pay-day, I quite believe her. Just strike out for yourself in your own natural way; paddle your own canoe. If people laugh—well let them, for you will have cleared your surplus in double quick time, and at good prices, too. "He laughs best who laughs last."

Don't let your good work stop at the ads. When you receive enquiries, attend to them promptly; answer all points specifically and honestly, courteously, and without "swank." When the time has arrived to despatch any birds, do so in a nice, clean, safe and useful ling box, wrapped neatly and tied securely in decent brown paper. Don't forget to use one of CAGE BIRDS live bird labels, with the address boldly and legibly written; also, don't include any rubbishy seed with the birds, for if your birds are to inspire confidence, poor miserable seed won't help. A good breeder not only keeps good stock, but he has good cages, good seed, and gives everything good attention. Don't be foolish and think other people won't notice these little details, for they do.

I am always a wee bit suspicious, however, of birds sent out newly-washed, especially if stock birds pure and simple, for well-managed stock need no hand-washing. This, therefore, always sets me wondering if the sender was ashamed to despatch them straight from the cages. If the birds commence wagging their tails and wheezing like a lot of tin whistles out of tune, you can bet 'tis a case of neglected stock.

Lastly, don't forget to insure the birds for their full value when handing them to the railway people. Some breeders treat £3 pairs of stock birds as if the breeding of them was as easy as winking; it does not inspire confidence to treat the whole transaction as though it were the despatching of a box of blotters.

There is no need for me to make your mouths water (!) by telling you how well my surplus stock pays me, but you shall never say I have not endeavoured to help you to participate in the annual profit-sharing scheme. I have told you what is needed—at least, what I find is needed—to make the disposing of surplus stock a pleasant and profitable undertaking. Lack of pushfulness and initiative I attribute to many who bemoan their sad position in not promptly and profitably clearing their surplus stock. Don't wait for the millennium; work for it.

TROUBLES OF BIRD-BREEDERS:

HOW TO OVERCOME THEM.

Third Prize Essay by W. Salter.

TO be brief, I consider bird-breeding a problem from beginning to end!

At the beginning of February, when feeding up for breeding, I make up the following mixture: 4 parts German rape, 1 part maw, 1 part gola of pleasure, 1 part teazle, and equal hemp and niger to make up another part. This I have found to be a good conditioner. During the month of February I give all cock birds 1 teaspoonful of the mixture twice a week; hens, 1 teaspoonful and half-teaspoonful of niger. The first two weeks in March I give the cocks the mixture three times a week; hens as before. Third week in March, 1 teaspoonful of egg-food in addition, always using canary seed as a staple food.

I give the bath two or three times a week according to the weather; also a piece of apple or watercress twice a week. During the fourth week in March I pair the birds up, giving the egg-food and the seed mixture on alternate days. By this method I have very few unfertile eggs in the first round. The reason for giving the hens additional niger is to prevent egg-binding, myself not having had a case since using it. Should, however, you have a hen egg-bound, I have found the following very effective: Handle bird carefully and give two or three drops of olive oil direct into the beak, and put a little oil round the vent with a camel-hair brush, or a tail feather.

How the Hen Gets Lazy.

Non-feeding and sweating hens I attribute in the majority of cases to leaving the cock with the hen during incubation. Instead of getting off at regular intervals for food, she is fed by her mate and thus gets lazy. The same thing, of course, occurs after the young are hatched. I remove the cock bird after the third egg is laid. Should, however, the hen prove to be a bad feeder and sweat her young, I try a change of diet. Instead of egg-food, give bread and milk or soaked rape, also scatter hemp or rape seed on the cage bottom, which usually entices her off the nest, and it gives the young ones a chance of getting air while she is gathering up the seed.

Feather-plucking is usually due to the hen wishing to nest again too soon, which occurs through leaving the cock with her. I do not return him until the young are just leaving the nest; then by the time she commences to build the young can be safely transferred to the nursery cage.

When they leave their parents I give egg-food for three days, then egg-food and bread and milk on alternate days, with a little crushed hemp and canary seed. I always give water, as they are used to it when with their parents, and will also in most cases take to the bath whilst with them. Gradually wean them off the egg-food, but continue with the bread and milk, twice a week, as I believe this wards off many stomach troubles.

As regards colour-feeding when eggs are at famine prices, I have proved this season that birds will eat colour-food mixed with bread-crumbs, with one teaspoonful of castor sugar added to each teaspoonful.

type, yet if there is any choice between them, the latter should take the preference, for it has a wider range of tours and rolls, and as previously intimated, enterprising makers are now including the Glucke-like and Koller-like tours. There is need now for organ-makers to turn their attention to the tone, for in all the organs that I have heard, including those playing the above two tours, there is a dissemblance in their tone to that of the Roller Canary. This is so marked in some organs that unless one is acquainted with the succession of the tours, it is difficult to name some of them. Because of this, a numbered and named list of the tours is usually passed on with the sale of an organ, and this may often be found in the fancier's room, fixed in close proximity to the organ. I have found this to be so even with a modern organ that had the latest range of tours.

I have related with an unbiassed mind my own experience with the organ, and I leave the subject by saying that too much importance should not be attached to the fact that birds are said to have had the assistance of an organ in their tuition.

The Master Singer of the Canary Tribe

By J. TOMLINSON.

How to keep the Roller Canary in health, to breed for pleasure and profit, and train for exhibition.

ANOTHER reason may be that the purchase of a more modern organ is contemplated, one with a different variety of tours, as great changes have taken place in this respect of late; the Glucke-like and Koller-like tours have been added.

The majority of old Roller fanciers have at some time or other possessed an organ, and are of one mind in this respect, that it is a valuable acquisition when the tutor is in the moult and out of song. Whether it has the usefulness of imparting any of the tours into the repertoire of the young birds is a matter of individual opinion. A fancier residing on the other side of the globe, who had imported two organs, writes: "I have not found them necessary in training my young birds."

Undoubtedly an organ is useful also in keeping the youngsters to their studies, but there are other methods, equally effective and more economic, that may be employed for this purpose; for example, the sound of running water from a tap, the scraping of a knife on the edge of a plate, the human imitation of the hollow roll, water roll, schockel, or flutes, or the call note of another bird, or the rubbing together the sandpaper edges of two match-boxes. These, and many other little devices can be employed to induce the youngsters to start singing.

The Living Tutor Preferred.

My own opinion is that the organ is not intended to train other varieties of Canaries, and even where the Roller is concerned its competency cannot be really estimated in view of the great difference in the imitative powers of different birds. In any case, where the youngsters can hear the tours of the living tutor, little attention is given to anything produced mechanically; this has proved to be so in my own rooms.

To relate my own experiences with the organs may be instructive. My first organ was of the water-tank and air-cylinder type, its deep-toned song passages were: Hollow roll, bass, schockel, and flutes. The first year of using it I had in training about thirty youngsters, some of which were the production of birds mated with a view to fixing depth of tone. In addition to the organ, I used their sire as a tutor. The results were that while some of the young cocks could equal the tutor in depth and mellowness of tone, there was only one that excelled in the deep bass and water-glucke. This youngster retained perfection in these two tours, so marked that I was often asked where I had got them from.

For two years I mated this cock to hens bred from other deep-toned strains, yet failed to produce this excellence in the bass and water-glucke, although both sire and organ were used. I then parted with the organ, and resorted to inbreeding, pairing the cock to his nest sister, and produced by this close inbreeding only two young cocks, which I trained under their sire and without an organ. One brought bad flutes and was sold at a very low figure as a stock bird, the other sang deep schockel, flutes, bass, and water-glucke, among other tours, and its merits placed it amongst the winners for a new owner at the first time of asking, although it had not been credited with the water glucke.

The Automatic Organ.

This experience of an organ might have proved sufficient had not a newer type of organ, the automatic, been placed on the market, and in common with all fanciers, I was ready and willing to try anything that might better the song of the birds. If my memory serves me correctly, the automatic organ I got played five tours, hollow roll, in a straight key, also falling and rising; schockel ditto, hollow bell, bass, and flutes. In addition, I used a tutor that sang the falling and rising hollow roll and the straight-toned schockel, some of the pupils being the offspring of that tutor. The combined efforts of tutor and organ, extending over two training seasons, failed to produce one youngster that sang the schockel in a variformed way, and this was the only tour on the organ that was not inbred, or sang by the birds. After two years' trials, I and the organ parted company, I being the loser to the tune of nearly £3. I waved it and all its kind a long au revoir.

*This type of organ is easier to manipulate than the water-tank and air cylinder

A Suggested Economy for Exhibitors.

Sir,—Regarding my suggestion of last week as to the use of sawdust in show-cage bottoms to curtail expenses, there is a printer's error in the letter. It should read use sawdust in preference to seed (not sand).

Fine Show Promoted by Glasgow and District S.F.A.

Sir,—As you are aware, the City of Glasgow Show was not held this year, and as the Paisley people cannot get a hall large enough, they also have cancelled their fixture. On the face of this, at the Paisley and Dist. Scotch Fancy show, held Nov. 27, a few of the fanciers had a discussion on the advisability of having an open show at the New Year time. As everyone was strongly in favour of same, a meeting was held at close of show and a society formed and named the "Glasgow and District Scotch Fancy Association." Its show is to be held on 2nd January, 1915, in the Union Halls, 102, West Nile Street, Glasgow. I enclose schedule, and I think you will agree it is the finest ever sent out for a one-day show of Scots Fancies.

Special Prizes at Falkirk Good Intent Show.

Sir,—In reply to "Interested's" letter in your valuable paper, I would like to ask if he is a member or not? If the former, it is open for him to come to the general meeting on Saturday, and I am sure he will get his grievance answered; or if the latter, his interest ceases. I have taken the trouble to look up the schedule, and I find that "Interested" is making a mistake as regards the specials in the British section. I may also let "Interested" know that the Good Intent has always been run on fair and square lines, and as a Club Show the British as well as the Norwich members have equally the same voice at the meetings. I think if the individual who signs himself "Interested," and is a member, had come forward a month before the show and advised the officials how to get specials, the show I am sure would have been a great success.

Exhibitors Who Are "On the Make."

Sir,—I observe in your issue of last week that Mr. McClure attacked some of the exhibitors who attempted to "fake" at the Paisley show. I have for the past few years attended many shows, both in Scotland and England, and have been forcibly impressed with the fact that a large proportion of our exhibitors are simply "on the make." It is true that among our largest exhibitors to-day are many who have a love of birds for the birds' sake, but unfortunately there are fanciers who have no soul above the miserable cash value of the prize. At the shows you can spot the latter; usually ignorant, grasping, "looking for a bargain" sort of persons who would exhibit Crows as readily if prizes could be obtained. I suppose nothing can be done, Mr. Editor, to weed out this type of fancier. Would the abolition of cash, or prizes of cash value, not have some effect? Suppose that prizes of handsome printed cards, with name of owner, etc., were given instead of cash, it would have the effect of getting rid of those undesirable cash grabbers. I should like to have the opinion of your readers on this subject.

An Appeal for the Scottish National Show.

Sir,—We have sent out close on 1,800 prize-lists. So many shows being off this season, exhibitors' names have been more difficult to get, and consequently a large number of fanciers may not have received a copy, but if they will kindly make application it will be forwarded per return of post; or send their entries on, to save time, the committee will classify them correctly. Special prizes are, as usual, exceedingly numerous, and we make no charge for prize-cards. Prize-money paid at hall Jan. 1 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Judges are popular experts; and the fanciers who form our committee are a guarantee for the utmost attention to all exhibits. The sales department was a record last year, and we advise exhibitors with surplus stock for disposal not to miss this opportunity. Show closes 4 p.m. New Year's Day, and all birds (unless instructions are received to the contrary) will be dispatched so as to reach their destinations that evening, if possible. This will enable exhibitors to show at one or other of the shows the following day. V.C.C. members note: "Birds for Bradford and Dis. Leav." Edinburgh 6 p.m., arriving home 11.56

p.m. same evening." The Grindlay Street Hall is central, close to main car routes, and within few minutes of stations. We are not running this show for the purpose of building up our own finances; all profits go to the Prince of Wales' National Relief Fund. We confidently appeal to you, fellow-fanciers, to rally round the Scottish National, and give us a record entry, so we may be able to hand over a goodly sum. (See adverts.)

Ireland's Best Yorkshire Canary.

Sir,—In the report of Dublin show, it says Mr. O'Reilly's buff cock is the best ever staged in Ireland, and that he has not been beaten since 1910, since his owner commenced showing him. I'll take 1911, when this bird was at his best. Mr. O'Reilly showed a buff cock at every show in Ireland that year, and all he got was 2nd, vhc, and he with buff cocks. Messrs. Dunwoody, Birse, and myself were the chief winners that year. If proof is wanted, I'll look up other reports as well. "Balaclava" was considered by every fancier of any note in Ireland, the best Yorkshire staged in this country.

JAS. DEVINS.

Crests at the Scottish National Show.

Sir,—Crest fanciers, both North and South, should note the most liberal classification at the Scottish National show, seeing this is about the last chance of such classification this season (Palace being unfortunately abandoned). I sincerely trust fanciers will reward the Edinburgh Executive by sending a bumper entry, as I am in a position to know that, owing to force of circumstances, it was the intention of the Association to very considerably reduce the classification in the Crest section, but after considerable pressure and argument, they very generously agreed not to do so; hence my appeal.

Who is Using Small Show Cages?

Sir,—I would like to hear through CAGE BIRDS from some of those who show birds, such as Norwich and British, in such small cages. I have been to three shows lately and noticed those birds, how they had to turn all shapes when moving about. My opinion is that they would show themselves a lot better in the Yorkshire show cage, which I think is a good cage to show a bird off, as anyone looking at a bird in a Yorkshire cage can see all over it at a glance. I am very much interested in birds and their comfort, so would like to know why they use such small cages for showing. I think some of them are only about 8 or 9 inches by 4 inches.

Darlington. H. ROBINSON.

[The standard size Norwich show cage is 12 inches long by 11½ high and 4½ wide; and that for a British bird the size of a Bullfinch is practically the same. These measurements give even a larger floor space than is found in the Yorkshire show cage. We doubt very much whether it would add to the "comfort" of British birds to be shown in the Yorkshire type of cage; the all-open cage would only intensify their greater natural nervousness, and result in broken plumage and possibly worse damage. We have even heard fanciers argue that the Yorkshire Canary would be all the better for a change in the style of its cage; they held that the open wires exposed the birds unnecessarily to every cold draught of air that might blow through the hall, or penetrate the travelling cage. So Mr. Robinson will see that there is the proverbial "other side" even to this question.—Editor, "C.B."]

Pendlebury and Swinton C.B.S. Determined to Go Ahead.

Sir,—We have been much handicapped for a place to hold a contest show in. Myself and the sec. of Leigh Society went to inspect a room at the Workingmen's Club at Pendlebury; we both came to the conclusion that it is one of the nicest rooms in the district. It has been reconstructed; everything is up-to-date. I was pleased to see some of the old Lark fanciers in the rooms when I went. They want to revive the Lark contests again. We have about 36 members' names on the book, and money in the bank, yet members will not come to meetings. Some do not like the public-house, others do not like the temperance places, so I have come to the conclusion that this is the place for us—a club for workingmen bird fanciers. I intend to join this club, and others have promised to do so; and if we get a good few members no doubt the Committee will let us have a room now and again for a show or contest. I propose we have a big meeting on Jan. 2 at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Perhaps Leigh, Wigan, Darwen, Blackburn, etc., fanciers will bring a Linnet or two, and we will give the other members a sample of a contest for time and quality. We in this district do not understand quality. I would like some fanciers to give us the notes of a good quality bird, as I have been informed that a good quality bird in Yorkshire (where they have the best) would not win down South. The sec. of the club told me he would do his best with the Committee to secure a room for us. If we have to rent it, I will pay the rent myself, on Saturday, Jan. 2. I think I have been trying about ten years to get the fanciers of this district together; almost every one you speak to has a bird, but they will not flock together. Let us have a good meeting now and see if we can't do something. Contests, shows, etc., will be notified in CAGE BIRDS, if arranged. Fanciers are invited from all over Lancashire and Yorkshire. Will other secretaries of Linnet clubs send me bills of shows and contests, etc.?

Members please remember that proposed alterations to the rules must be sent in to me by Jan. 1. I shall also be glad to receive any outstanding ticket money, also subs.—Geo. Burton, Hon. Sec.

NEW CROSS C.B.S.

General meeting, Dec. 3, a good number present. Mr. J. Fuller chair, owing to the indisposition of the chairman, Mr. H. C. Humphries. Cups and specials won at the annual show were distributed. Officers nominated for 1915:—Chair, Mr. H. C. Humphries; vice, Mr. J. S. Fairman; auditors, Messrs. J. Fuller and W. G. Martin; hon. treas., Mr. G. Burton; committee, Mrs. W. G. Martin, Miss E. Sims, Messrs. W. A. Hall, W. H. Gardner, A. W. Culham, F. Childers, T. Kay, and P. Cooper; sec., Burton Bros., 126, Lee Road, Lee Green, S.E. Members please note that any proposed alteration to the rules must be sent to us by Jan. 1. Owing to the People's Hall being turned into recreation rooms for soldiers stationed in the district, we have had to seek new quarters, and have as yet been unsuccessful in finding a suitable place, therefore our meeting, Jan. 7, will be held at 126, Lee Road, and as the programme for the year will then be drawn up, we hope members will turn up in force.—Burton Bros., Hon. FOREIGN BIRD EXHIBITORS' LEAGUE.

The winners of the chief special prizes at Club Show (under auspices of Amalgamated Show), Nov. 26, 27 and 28, at the Horticultural Hall, are as follows:—Best Gouldians Miss Bousfield, best Cordoro F. Howe, best Budgerigars J. Frostick, rarest Hyb. Miss A. B. Smyth (Red-vented Red-capped Bulbul). Competing for the specials for most points and 2nd most points over various classes fifteen members won between them 47 1/2, which amounts were paid out on Dec. 18th. The following diplomas were awarded for birds appearing for the first time on the show bench. There will be sent as soon as signed, unless in the meanwhile proof is forthcoming that such birds have been shown before:—Hahn's Macaw Miss A. B. Smyth, Short-tailed Parrot Mrs. B. J. Moore, Cornuta ocularis A. Silver, Azlee Conuro J. Frostick, Speckled Conuro C. J. Maxwell, Crimson-ringed Wlydah R. E. rumped Red Sunbird C. T. Maxwell (although previously shown in 1913, this is first appearance at League show), Bullock's Hangnest, Wedge-tailed Glossy Starling A. Silver; Chinese Cambodian Starlings Mrs. L. M. Thynne and W. J. C. Frost (previously shown 1913, but not at League Show), White-browed Blue and White Flycatcher A. Ezra, Black-gorgeted Thrushes Dr. Lovell-Keays, Hybrids, Greenfinch Himalayan Siskin and Spice-Finch Bib-Finch W. Shore Baily, Magpie Mannikin-Bengaleo L. M. Wade, Red-vented Red-capped Bulbul Miss A. B. Smyth. At the last meeting the executive decided to award Mr. E. Hathaway a diploma, recognising the excellence of workmanship and design displayed in the two cages made by him in which Mr. Ezra's Humming Birds were shown. Patronage has been given to Cardiff Show (Feb.), diploma for any new bird shown, ditto best Seed-eater or pair, ditto best Insectivorous or pair, shown by League Member. To Watford who are giving nine or ten well divided classes (Jan. 13) a similar set of diplomas. As both societies contain members of the League and as their applications came in when it was convenient to call a meeting, they were considered worthy of attention, if not financial help. As balance-sheet will have to be made out early in February all unpaid members would oblige by forwarding their subscriptions.—Allen Silver, hon. sec.

Yearly Financial Meeting, Cairn's Memorial Hall, Gorgie-rd., Dec. 15, a large turnout of members present. Sec. read balance-sheet, which showed a balance to the good of £3 8s. 3d. Balance carried forward to next year. Vote of thanks to all retiring office bearers was accorded members. Office bearers elected for 1915: Pres., Mr. G. Staines; Vice-Pres., Mr. W. B. Adam; Sec. and Treas., Mr. J. C. Charlton; Committee, Messrs. J. Stormont, G. Brown, W. Ferguson, T. Russel, J. Hardie, A. Morrison, A. Hunter, M. Muir; Auditors, Messrs. John Rodger and And. Spittal. Mr. G. Staines was then called to the chair and thanked the members for the honour they had done him in electing him as President. A motion that we charge an entry fee at Annual Show was defeated by 11 votes to six. Mr. May moved that we keep all members who are on active service on the books as hon. mem. during the time of the war, which was heartily agreed to. Owing to present crisis it was deemed advisable to postpone smoking concert until some future date. It was left in Sec.'s hands to make arrangements with regards the hall for annual show, Nov. 27, 1915. Local Secs. please note.—John C. Charlton, Sec.

Meeting, headquarters, Crown Hotel, Dec. 16. Mr. A. Broadhurst chair. Sec. reported that all prize money had been paid and no complaints made. Decided to hold Members' first Saturday in Feb. The following were nominated as officers for 1915: Pres., Mr. J. A. Eckersley; Vice-Pres., Mr. F. Dipple, in addition to those serving for 1914; Chair, Mr. A. Broadhurst; Vice-chair, Mr. J. H. de Maillet; Treas., Messrs. J. H. Allen and H. T. Collier; Committee, Messrs. Cowley, Southon, Shirley, Austin and Worton; Sec., Mr. J. H. Jones; Assist. Sec., Mr. A. C. Shirley; Auditors, Messrs. J. Clay and T. Cowley. Vote of thanks was given to retiring officers, also to Messrs. J. H. de Maillet, J. Forsey, H. T. Collier and A. C. Shirley for their kindness in working all night to prepare for the Open Show, also to Mr. Jones, our worthy Sec., and Mr. Wells, Show Manager. Three members were proposed, Messrs. Ankers, Clarke and Austin. We give a hearty invitation to fanciers in Birmingham and district and surrounding towns who do not belong to any Society, and shall be pleased to receive their names so that they can be proposed for the new year. Will members make a special effort to be present next meeting, Jan. 6, when the election of the above officers will take place.—A. C. Shirley.

GATESHEAD SHOW A GREAT SUCCESS.

In spite of great difficulties, the 15th annual "Palace of the North" show, Dec. 19, proved in every way a huge success. It was only after the most careful consideration that the decision to hold an open show this year was arrived at, but seeing that there had been no open event on Tyneside this season, it was eventually decided to run a one-day open show to allow fanciers to get their champions tried out. The Burt Terrace Drill Hall, the scene of so many great Tyneside shows, was not available, and other halls suitable for a big show were also engaged. The Rochester Street Sunday Schools, in which the show was held, although hardly so commodious as the old hall, or so well lighted, proved a splendid substitute, as it is very comfortable, and provided with everything that would conduce to the comfort of both exhibitors and exhibitors. A splendid schedule was issued, and a grand entry of 850 odd birds rewarded the efforts of the committee.

The whole of the staging arrangements were in the hands of the genial chairman, Mr. A.H. Holden, who undertook the duties of show manager, and it goes without saying that his duties were well and thoroughly done. The secretarial work, in the hands of Mr. W. Curry, is carried out in a manner which is simply "par excellence." Everything was pre-arranged to a nicety, and the whole of his work was carried out with the most methodical precision. The society is also favoured with a grand committee, Messrs. C. G. Petterson (vice-chair), F. F. Hawkins, J. Mackenzie, J. Maddison, H. Wollsbury, J. Davidson, J. W. Lawson, R. Tindale, F. W. Laidlow, J. Liddle, W. Mather, J. Peirson, E. B. Hooper, J. Moor, J. McGuire, J. W. Reed, R. Smith, and J. Rowan, all of them doing their best towards making the show a success.

Crests made a truly wonderful display, one of the finest ever seen in the North, which is saying a great deal. The two young classes were hot propositions for the judge, both in numbers and quality, and we congratulate Mr. Dobson on the care and patience with which he selected his winners. The Ford Maling Challenge cup and gold medal for best old Crest was won by Mr. C. Dobson, who we were sorry to hear was very ill. Mr. A. J. Smith won N.C.C. challenge cup and gold medal for best current year Crest, and the cup now becomes his own. N.C.C. challenge cup and gold medal best current year C.B. went to Mr. R. T. Bewick, with a very promising young bird that should have a good future. Norwich made a magnificent display, averaging over 20 per class in eight classes, while quality throughout was superb. Long-sided birds were conspicuous by their absence, and Mr. Dobson saw to it that only birds of correct type went into the money. Yorks. were also a grand lot, and most of the cracks being present, competition was of the keenest possible description. Borders averaged nearly 16 per class, and here again quality was superb, many of the birds being so nearly equal in merit that it was a difficult task to place one before another. Green Border classes were splendid, both for numbers and quality, some of the best birds in the country competing. Mules and Hybrids were well supported, all the big exhibitors sending teams, and we were glad to see the old "Perfection" looking so well. A good deal of interest was taken in Mr. Parlett's now well-known Can. Bullie, "White Rose," which, although down in the tickets, came in for a good deal of inspection. British were one of the features of the show, all the classes being well filled, and the quality right up to the high reputation that Gateshead holds as a British bird show. Mr. J. Bertram made his debut as a judge, and proved his ability in selecting the winners. Foreign birds were not a large collection, but what was lacking in numbers was amply made up for by the quality of the exhibits, the majority of the birds being of rare feather and in the highest possible condition. A grand attendance gratified the hearts of the officials, the show during the afternoon and evening being simply packed. Judges were: Mr. G. Dobson, Nor.; Mr. G. Dobson, Crests and C.B.; Mr. T. B. Tomlinson, Yorks.; Mr. J. Johnston, Bord. and Scotch; and Mr. J. Bertram, Mules, Brit. and For.

WHITEHAVEN.

A nice little show, organised and carried through under the able superintendence of the energetic Yorkshire Canary enthusiasts, Mr. Jas. Stewart, who acted as hon. sec., assisted by Messrs. Brown, Buchanan, Smith, Rothery, and Barrie, Dec. 19, Babour Hall, quite a cosy and well adapted room. The Canary section, consisting of 9 open and 3 nov. classes, was confined to Yorkshires, and though not strong numerically, contained many birds of outstanding merit, both of the N.Y.C.C. cup winners, and the runner up being present. Linnet classes, confined to the county, included most of the winners at previous local shows. Judges: Canaries, Mr. R. Tindale, Newcastle; Linnets, J. B. Moore, Whitehaven, appeared to give every satisfaction.

SITTINGBOURNE C.B.S.

Fourth annual show, Fanciers' Hall, adjoining George Hotel, Dec. 16 and 17. The entry was a good one considering the society only decided a little over a fortnight previous to holding it to have a show this year. The exhibits were nicely staged, and the hall is a good one, well lighted, free from draught, and admirably suited for a show. The birds were well looked after by a body of old and experienced fanciers, including Messrs. J. Roberts (chairman), W. Broadbridge (vice-chair), C. Town (show manager), and Messrs. Churchill, Stevens, Rolis, and Edwards (stewards). Mr. T. Monday, the sec., worked like a Trojan, and everything went off smoothly and well. Mr. Councilor J. Hadaway opened the show. Pres. Mr. W. R. Elgar, J.P., was unable to attend the opening. Winners of special prizes: Mr. J. Roberts, society's £3 3s. challenge cup, and Filmer challenge bowl; Mr. A. Copping, Cornelius silver cup and Hyde's sp.; Mr. T. Monday was runner-up for the Filmer bowl; other winners of specials: Messrs Aylett, Grant, Stevens, Jacob, Lockett, and Pilcher. Mr. Jeffery Jeffers (Southall) judged.

DONCASTER.

Fifth annual Doncaster show, Dec. 19, under the patronage of the Y.C.C., O.N.P.C., and the C.M.Y.C. The schedule provided solely for Yorks. and Norwich. The entry was 264, unfortunately a big drop from last year's total, but what was lacking in numbers was made up in quality, the "cream" being present, battling for the various trophies offered by the Specialist Clubs. Yorks. were great, gems of the very first waters being put down, both in champions and novices. Norwich were captivating. A glorious unlighted yellow cock is that owned by Mr. W. Crawshaw, the best we have seen as yet this season. In Mr. W. Blanchon the society possesses a most excellent show manager, who knows how to do it, and does it. Mr. G. Hunt, the worthy sec., is the right man in the right place, and controls capably. Stewards who acted promptly and efficiently were Messrs. Trueman, Cook, Evans, A. Smith, J. Simpson, W. Bescoy, Flint, Tonkinson, and Lumby. The large assembly room, attached to the Black Bull Hotel, Market Place, is very comfortable and of nice light and space; staging was very neat. Every bird could be seen at a glance. The open show of British and Mules is to be held on Jan. 9. The classification is grand, and British men should see what they can do to support such enterprise. Cup for most points in Norwich was won by A. Thomas; Nov. Nor., A. Howarth; Yorks., Ogdin Bros.; Nov. Yorks., Fisher and Dyson. Mr. H. W. Jantye judged.

YELL. YORKS. (7): 1, 4, Dykes, beautics, leader well known, mkd. wings and eyes, looking better than ever, a masterpiece, 4 cl., smooth as glass, straight as a rush, best of back and wings carr., pipe tail, hardly so lengthy; 2, Ogdin Bros., very finely drawn cl., capital feather and col., long sided, clever legs; 3, Dyson, cl., lengthy, well-up on leg, good back, flights, and tail, capital col., not so closely feathered; hc, Lingard; hc, Broadley. BUFF (9): 1, Dyson, cl., rich col., lengthy and erect, nicely filled in back, neat wing carr., full of style; 2, Dykes, cl., shapely, Al qual., neat expression, nice neck, tapering body, good wing carr., beaten a little in length and col.; 3, Thomas, cl., capitally fed, silky in texture, straight, nice length, somewhat low on leg, yet good 3rd; 4, hc, Ogdin Bros., cl., good length and pos.; vhc, King; c, Beaumont. YELL. CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS THE STANDARD WORK ON THE SUBJECT. By Chas. Houlton. Price 7s. 6d. "CAGE BIRDS," 154, FLEET ST., LONDON, E.C.

CANARY QUERIES Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

SHELLING SEED (A. E. A.).—Try the following treatment for, say, a month, and if not quite successful write again and say whether the bird is kept in a warm room. Give plain Canary only as staple diet. In addition give separately half a teaspoonful of dry summer rape and a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with two drops of cod liver oil emulsion and four of sherry well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed every second day, and on the alternate days give a small teaspoonful of scalded rape and a morsel of bread and milk sprinkled with soft sugar. Give a small spray of watercress daily, and a pinch of the mixed seed twice a week. You may also stick a small cube of hard common table salt in the wires for the bird to peck at when it likes. In the drinking water add 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day for a week, and in the next week give instead 20 drops of whisky, six of tincture of gentian, and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the dosage of the first two weeks in the same order.

STILL MOPING (Mrs. Hamilton).—I'm afraid the fact that the bird is still losing some feathers is indicative of some adverse influences being at work. Make yourself quite sure that it is not exposed to occasional cold draughts, sudden extremes of temperature, or exhalations of burning lights in the evenings. Keep in a fairly equable temperature, which need not be very warm. Give a staple of plain canary seed only. Give separately every second day half a teaspoonful of scalded summer rape and a morsel of banana, and on the alternatedays give a similar quantity of crushed sponge cake with four drops of sherry and two of cod liver oil emulsion well mixed in it, and sprinkled with maw seed, and a spray of some green salad if you can get such in a fit condition to use. If green food is not available, give as a substitute a pinch of the seed mixture previously advised on these days. If green food is given then give a small teaspoonful of the mixed seed twice a week only. In the drinking water add 20 drops of Chemical Food every second day for a week, and in the next week give instead 20 drops of whisky, ten of lemon juice, and six of glycerine every second day. In the third and fourth weeks repeat the doses of the two first weeks in the same order.

SEED SAMPLES (W. Kay).—The samples reached me in what appeared to be a very mixed up condition, though the packages were quite intact, so I take it they were sent off in that state. Each contains a variety of seeds, yet neither is a proper or judicious mixture. No. 1 consists chiefly of canary, of fair size and moderate quality. There is a small proportion of summer rape, but not sufficient to estimate its quality; a slight sprinkling of teazle, and a distinct proportion of linseed, much too large for any staple diet. No. 2 consists of canary of very good quality, and good size and flavour. It contains summer rape and linseed, to which the remarks in No. 1 apply equally here. No. 3 consists chiefly of summer rape, well matured and mild, and of good all-round quality. There is a fair sprinkling of canary seed and linseed—too much of the latter, and a few stray grains of a variety of weeds. There is nothing at all in these seeds that indicates any danger to the health of the birds fed upon them, if used in proper proportions. I would suggest that you eliminate the linseed entirely; give only plain canary for staple diet, and give all other seeds as extras, and separately, as you may frequently see advised in this column, and if your losses continue, then get a post-mortem on one of the bodies to ascertain the real cause of death.

ENLARGED STOMACHS (F. D.).—The bird's trouble is undoubtedly congestion of the liver, which is probably the result of errors of feeding. Give a staple diet of plain canary seed only, with a fairly liberal supply of green salad daily—watercress, for example, but see that it is quite free from frosted or decayed portions. Twice a week give half a teaspoonful of scalded rape, and once a week a pinch of a mixture of equal parts niger, teazle and millet. Limit the diet strictly to this for a month or so. During the first week add to the drinking water six drops of syrup of rhubarb and as much Epsom salts as will cover a sixpence every second day. After this give instead a crystal of sulphate of soda the size of a small pea, ditto of sulphate of iron half as big, and six drops of dilute sulphuric acid dissolved in each two tablespoonfuls of drinking water every second day for a fortnight, then miss a week and give it again for another fortnight.

OVER-EATING (A. J., Cricklewood).—(1) If your birds are so ravenous as to engorge themselves habitually whilst flying together in a large cage, I'm afraid there is nothing else you can do to prevent it, but limiting the seed supply. There is not much risk of them eating husks—that act is more apparent than real. Anyway, as it is somewhat unusual to find such universal greed in these circumstances, I suspect there must be something else wrong somewhere. Try the following method for a week or two, and see if that alters matters. Give an unlimited supply of plain canary seed in the seed-box. Every second day give separately half a teaspoonful of dry summer rape per bird, not more, and a good sized spray of watercress. On the alternate days give a small supply of sweet apple or banana, allowing a piece about the size of a large hazel nut to each bird, and cut it into several portions and place in various parts of the cage to prevent quarrelling. Add six drops of dilute sulphuric acid to each ounce of drinking water daily for three or four days, but afterwards discontinue the use of all drugs in the water. Report result of this treatment in the course of a month or so. (2) It is not possible to tell what is wrong with the leg without close examination. If a valuable bird, you might get a veterinary surgeon to look at it and advise you. It is just possible that it may have been broken, and a "false joint" formed, in which case amputation is probably the only remedy. But as it appears to be all right in other respects, my advice is to leave well alone.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

BREEDING CAGES (Amateur).—A series running into three or four issues was published in CAGE BIRDS earlier in the year from my pen, and you would do well to send to the office for the parts containing the article. I think the Nos. of the issues are 651, 652, 653, 654, 655 and 656. Space will not permit of full details here. You must note that foreign Finches do not breed as freely as Canaries. The latter are domesticated species, while breeding foreign Finches is about parallel with attempting to breed British Finches under the same conditions. Both are wild species, and herein lies the reason for the difficulty. Those you are most likely to have success with are: Zebra, Rihnon, and Bib Finches, Silverbills, White Java, Sparrows, Bengalese, Grey Singing Finches, and Budgerigars. With these you should obtain ultimately some success. Other probable breeders are: Bichenov's Finches, Diamond Sparrows, Long-tailed Greenfinches, Crimson Finches, Avadavats, Orange-checked Waxbills, Alario Finches, and St. Helena Waxbills. I have only named those with which success has been attained in cages, in some cases success has been but once attained. I think you had better choose your birds from the first group for a beginning, and your prospects would be better if you could give cages double the length, which would enable you to screen nest receptacle at one end in a bunch of heather, or some other form of small twiggy branch. The above are seedeaters, but soft food and also green food ad lib must be supplied when they are feeding young. If above is not sufficient, ask specific questions on your doubtful points.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

SHOW CAGE FOR BLACKCAP (Sam).—A Blackcap of good size and feather is a very useful bird to exhibit, and frequently gets in the money. A cage fourteen inches long, twelve high, and seven deep would be quite suitable to exhibit him in. The food and water vessels should be placed inside, on swing doors in the front rail of the cage. A good colour for the interior and front bars would be a middle tone of green, rather inclined to brightness, a fresh laurel leaf is as near the required tone as possible. Your old bird will not commence to sing until he is quite through the moult. (2) Give your Mule a mild aperient such as a teaspoonful of effervescent citrate of magnesia in three tablespoonfuls of water; an occasional dose will be sufficient. Bathe the foot in fairly warm water and massage with the finger and thumb, first dipping them in Elliman's embrocation, weakened by the addition of half the quantity of salad oil. Keep the cage floor and perches thoroughly clean and dry.

TREATMENT OF BLACKCAP (Blackcap).—As a staple food you will find a good brand of insectile food much more satisfactory than soaked biscuits. Although not particularly tender, the Blackcap must be considered to be one of our delicate warblers. A thoroughly healthy specimen is always a pleasurable pet, and I feel sure in the long run it would pay you to treat him well. (2) In making any mixture, tea biscuits would be preferable to puppy biscuits, providing they were not too sweet. "Osbornes" are about the best for general use. Plenty of ripe fruit is good for the Blackcap, but while you can procure ripe pears and wild berries you should use these, saving the bananas until later. I have never found any harm come to the Blackcap from the use of the latter fruit. I hang one in the cage and peel back an inch or so daily. (3) Gentles should be placed in bran or dry sand to clean before they are given to the birds. To prevent them developing, keep as cool as possible. (4) I have never heard of the Nightingale and Blackcap breeding together; my experience is that those ardent aviculturists who have tried to breed either species in captivity have found it quite difficult enough without attempting to cross them, but still there is no reason why you should not have a try, if you feel inclined. The feeding is the great trouble, you would want to keep as near to nature as possible.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

R. Wilson.—Where is the method of Linnet catching that you describe put into practice?

B. Benton.—We do not think birds (unfortunately, however, you do not say what species they are) would come to any harm through copper-coated steel wire.

John Thorne.—We cannot answer your question until you tell us what kind of birds you keep, and how you are feeding them.

POST MORTEM.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 21s. Subjects for post-mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter-post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.

THE VERY THING FOR NEW YEAR PRESENTS.

No Better Gifts for Fancier Friends.

The authors, all well-known experts, have given the methods to be employed in reaching success in that particular branch of the cage-bird hobby dealt with. There is all the experience of years of careful study at the disposal of our readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt).—By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of aviaries and bird-rooms, and the making of cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1.—By H. W. Battye (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon Pairing, Breeding, Moulting, and successful Exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Phenix. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid Breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Heswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kinch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/6, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts, Part 1: "Hardhills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register," a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

BIRDS OF THE COUNTRYSIDE, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. A handbook to the wild life of all our familiar British birds; their appearance and habits accurately described. With 12 beautiful coloured plates, and 118 photographic illustrations. A charming gift book.

PETS, AND HOW TO KEEP THEM, 5/4.—By Frank Finn, B.A., F.Z.S. Gives the correct method of housing, feeding, and managing every kind of pet; all sorts of animals are dealt with—monkeys, dogs, cats, lizards, tortoises, also gold and other fancy fish, while there is a large section devoted to birds. Contains many coloured plates and photographs. Another charming gift book.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge; (associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

COLOUR FEEDING OF CANARIES AND OTHER BIRDS, 3/6.—By J. W. Ramsden. Tells you how to mix the colour-food, and how to moulte the birds to get the richest possible colour.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 2/6 5/4, 5/00 7/6, carriage paid.

Doncaster Show Schedule.

An error has occurred in our schedule, writes Mr. G. Hunt, hon. sec. Doncaster C.B.S.; class 1 should read: Clear, tkd., uneven, even, or lightly marked Canary mule. Appreciated in the United States.

CAGE BIRDS is being read quite a great deal over here, and is very interesting, writes Mr. R. Geo. Smart, chairman of the show committee of the Empire C.B.A., New York.

Egg with Three Yolks.
At Messrs. Wilkinson's large egg stores in Knightsbridge, London, two very curious eggs were seen last week. All the eggs before being sent out are examined by means of a strong light, by which it is easy to distinguish the yolk of the egg. In one of the eggs mentioned there was no yolk at all, while the other contained three distinct yolks. Eggs containing two yolks are common, but an egg with three yolks is very uncommon indeed.

Out of the Cold World.

A weekly paper tells this story of a Robin. The scene is a house where birds of all descriptions are always fed and welcomed and encouraged to be tame. During the cold snap, which was all we had last year that could be dignified by the name of winter, a Robin came every night for a week and roosted in a basket on an upper shelf in the scullery. As soon as the door was opened in the morning it flew out, but until the weather became more genial it returned regularly every night.

Good Out of Evil.

In a letter to the "Spectator," G. V. C. says: "One man's misfortune is frequently another man's opportunity, but it is, I think, somewhat unusual for a bird to profit by the calamity of a cat. This took place in an out-of-the-way village in Dorset, and was told to me the other day. Two Tom cats met in a garden. They could not agree upon some nice point of honour, and having decided to fight it out selected a polyanthus primrose bed as their battlefield. The following morning the primroses were dishevelled, and snowy locks belonging to one of the combatants were strewn in handfuls on the ground. A Sparrow with a nest to build here saw her opportunity, collected a quantity of fur, and furnished her one-roomed house with the hair of her family's hereditary foe."

The British Canary Breeder's Opportunity.

This contribution reaches us from Mr. Frank W. Burton, Hon. Sec. of the Southern Border Fancy C.C., who is now at the Front with the British Expeditionary Force.

I HAVE been on the point of writing you upon the above topic many times, but just at present I am, as you know, very much occupied in a more serious matter than bird-keeping. Reading Mr. Ousman's lecture in CAGE BIRDS of Dec. 5th has, however, brought the matter to a head, and I should be glad if you could find room for a few lines from me.

I have many a time wondered why English fanciers have not made some effort to capture from Germany a portion of the large export trade in Canaries which she has so long held. It may be argued that Germany has held her own by specialising in trained songsters; but apart from the many good and reliable strains of English-bred Rollers, I contend that our own varieties could, if given a fair trial, and bred in sufficient quantities to meet the demands of the exporters, more than hold their own with the chief varieties of Rollers.

Why Should It Not Pay?

I know that a good many fanciers will say that it would never pay us to breed and sell birds at the price paid for the Germans, but if it pays German breeders, why not ourselves? I am acquainted with a good few fanciers who, because they are still at the bottom of the exhibition ladder, have practically to give away their surplus stock, and I am firmly convinced that if some co-operative scheme could be put into working order these fanciers would command a better price for their birds.

It is a well-known fact that however good a strain of birds one may possess, there must be among the offspring a fair percentage that are useless for exhibition, and although these may be quite valuable as breeding stock, yet a godly portion must be disposed of as songsters.

Mr. Ousman's suggestion is undoubtedly a good one, but I think if the whole question was to be thoroughly discussed in CAGE BIRDS, many valuable points would be raised, and the scheme probably put upon a sound footing.

Feigning Death.

Recently, while out fishing on one of the many mountain lochs in Glen Urquhart, our attention was attracted by two small birds which were swimming about among the grasses and water-lilies at the sides of the loch. We rowed the boat in the direction of the birds, and the gamekeeper who was with us told us they were young Seagulls. We came very close upon them, so that we were able to lift one into the boat, while the other made its escape. The captured bird lay on its side, to all appearance unable to move, and in an apparently lifeless condition. We somewhat regretted having come into such close quarters with it, fearing it had received some hurt by contact with the boat. Our boatman, however, looked amused, said nothing, but rowed out of the rushes into the clear, and placed the Seagull in the water. In a moment it had recovered from its trick of feigning death, gave a joyful cry of freedom, and swam away, soon disappearing out of sight.—A. M. in "The Scotsman."

Regarding the supply for the home market, there should be no difficulty, as I am sure our large dealers would be patriotic enough to buy home-bred song-birds, were they procurable, in preference to the German birds.

Regarding the export trade, we might experience some little difficulty in getting into touch with the foreign markets. I am sure, however, there must be some of our big men with sufficient experience of the exporting of birds, who could take up this matter and advise us as to the probability of securing the foreign markets, and as to the steps necessary to take to do so.

I am afraid I cannot write more now, although there is a great deal I should like to say, but in asking fanciers to take up this matter I do not think I am requesting too much. Some of us fanciers are out here doing our best to prevent Germany from devastating our dear old country, as she has done gallant little Belgium; surely it is not too much to ask those who for some reason or other cannot take an active part in the fight to see that our home affairs are not neglected.

In conclusion, I should like to say how much I appreciate your kindly remarks to my brother and myself in your issue of Dec. 4th, also the reproduction of our yellow Border hen. I look forward each week to receiving good old "C.B.," and I am certain that no paper in the trenches is more thoroughly perused.

Although too late to wish you a merry Christmas, I wish you and all other bird-lovers a happy and prosperous New Year. I shall eagerly watch your columns for some further opinions on this subject, and be glad to write you again, circumstances permitting.

'CAGE BIRD HYBRIDS'

THE STANDARD WORK ON THE SUBJECT.
By Chas. Houlton. Price 7s. 6d.
"CAGE BIRDS," 151, FLEET ST., LONDON, E.C.

THE CARE OF PET BIRDS. By A. C. TYNDALL.

We have reproduced this article from "Our Dumb Friends" (a monthly magazine published in Boston, U.S.A., by an organisation similar to our own R.S.P.C.A.), as affording pleasing evidence of a "sweet reasonableness of spirit," which, unfortunately, is seldom existent amongst the officials and supporters of such societies in England.

Of some of us it seems a rather selfish sentiment which places birds, and especially wild birds, behind cage bars for the sake of such diversion as their accomplishments or ornamental appearance may afford their owners or captors. A life with the limitations of an enforced confinement can never be all it was intended to be; that much is quite certain. But at the same time, it is possible that there are a few things which may afford some compensation for the loss of their freedom, and in some degree reconcile these little feathered people to the change in their manner of life.

Nature is supposed to do all things well, and doubtless does, from her own standpoint—but her arrangements of conditions of life for her children, in individual cases at least, seem to us quite frequently to leave something to be desired. A lingering and painful death by cold or starvation is a not improbable calamity in the lives of most wild birds when the conditions of life to which they have been accustomed fail them; and even under the most favourable circumstances they have at all times to be on guard against the dangers which threaten them from their numerous enemies. It is said by those who have observed the conditions of bird life closely, that a wild bird seldom dies as a result of old age—other causes of death being so numerous, that a natural death has seldom an opportunity to take place.

Usually Short; and not Always Merry.

But whether it is preferable to have a long term of mere existence with most of the natural joys of life lacking, or a short life and a merry one, with everything as Nature intended it to be, is another question, and one which does not come within the scope of this article.

Most wild things will show which side of the question they favour by a speedy return to their natural haunts if an opportunity of doing so is afforded, but it is not always so. The writer has known several instances of wild birds who became so accustomed to their surroundings and conditions as cage-birds, as to refuse their liberty when offered it.

It is not to be denied that bird-lovers are often greatly tempted to bring some of these charming feathered folk into the closer relations afforded by having them in the home. There is always something interesting in a bird's ways and utterances, and there is much to be learned of bird nature and a bird's natural habits, which would not be possible otherwise than in a domesticated state.

The personality of a bird is ever charming to the appreciative, even within the narrow limits of a cage; and when the acquaintance is made of a particularly intelligent little feathered person, it is an experience not soon to be forgotten.

Sins No Bird-lover Would Commit.

But to come down to practical considerations in the care of cage birds. It may be said to begin with, that it is unpardonable in anyone keeping a bird to neglect attending to the few and simple requirements of a little creature whose well-being depends on them. No one should take a bird out of the care of a dealer or bird-fancier without getting full directions on its diet and general treatment, and following them closely. It is not either wise or kind, moreover, to get into the habit of offering a small bird anything in the form of an eatable which may be in sight. This is a weakness common to the amateur bird-fancier, who seems to have the idea of making amends by such means for the loss of its liberty—even though it is known that over-fed birds, like most other creatures, are apt to come to a painful and ignominious end, as the result of such indulgences.

But without being tempted to offer our feathered guests such things as are not suited to their needs—a partiality for sweetmeats may be mentioned as an instance of an acquired and perverted taste among birds—there are other things which will afford variety in the songster's bill of fare, and still not be harmful.

A bird of any species will never fail to show an interest in a handful of green things, such as leaves and sprigs of almost any plant or vegetable; not only lettuce, and the tender stalks of beets—which are best known as greens acceptable to the birds—but berries in their season, and also apples. There are many of the weeds we regard as useless, which contain in their leaves and seed-pods rare dainties for the feathered folk.

A vacant lot, overgrown by weeds in a manner not at all approved of by its owner, is possibly regarded by some of these little bird people in much the same way that an orchard or garden is looked on by a small boy.

Chickweed, thistle-heads, the plantain with its spike of seeds, a stray sunflower—all these are acceptable; with other things—game for instance—consisting of insects and the like to be found in the recesses of the plant stalks and leaves, and which are doubtless bagged by the feathered hunter with as much enthusiasm as would be shown by any other pot-hunter.

Cleanliness All-Important.

It would be impossible, within ordinary space limits, to describe the needs of all the different birds found in cages, and the treatment required by each, but it may be said that the least which can be done for any of them, and a rule which holds good with all, is to keep everything belonging to a bird's surroundings as clean and fresh as possible. A bird always shrinks from uncleanly surroundings, and it is contrary to its natural habits in every case to stay in the atmosphere of such.

Clean, pebbly sand, a cage scrubbed at least twice a week with soap and hot water, drinking water changed several times in the day, and a bath if it seems looked for—all these things are absolutely necessary to the health and well-being of a cage bird.

Another hint to the possessor of a pet bird which may not be out of place, is that a bird appreciates a change in its surroundings almost if not quite as much as a human being might be expected to under the same circumstances.

A Canary will make it very evident that it is pleased with the change afforded by hanging its cage in a different window than that it is accustomed to be in, just for the sake, apparently, of the novelty afforded by seeing things from another point of view.

A DAY WITH THE BIRDS AT THE SCOTTISH ZOO. By Dan McArthur (EDINBURGH).

GIVEN a beautiful site within easy distance from town, and enthusiastic members, the Scottish Zoo could hardly help being a success. The policy of educating the public resulted in funds being gradually secured, and our Zoo became an actual fact last year. Despite dismal croakings it paid its way from the start and now that each month sees improvements and new arrivals, it has entered on its second year with prosperous days ahead. "Plenty of freedom amidst natural surroundings and no coddling," has been the motto; and the ratio of illness shows how well it has succeeded. Needless to say there are no "performing animal" exhibitions here—Thank goodness! The average visitor, attracted no doubt by the wild animals generally associated with the word Zoo, is probably unaware of the birds that are to be seen, or gives them scant attention. This is a great mistake, as there are many interesting, rare and beautiful birds in the collection, and though many of them are not cage birds a little description of them may be of interest.

Aviaries Amidst the Roses.

The number of birds is between 250 and 300, comprising about 70 species. The aviaries (which are hidden away in a quiet corner midst the beautiful Rose Garden) have been skilfully thought out with due regard to the natural habits of the birds, and their captivity is of a very happy sort indeed. The Peacocks and the Silver and Golden Pheasants strutting in and out among the splendidly wooded grounds add a rich touch of colour to the scene and at once catch the eye of the visitor as he climbs the hill. Then the gentle cooing of the Doves (Ring, Stock and Turtle) greets us. But we pause on our way to look at a very quiet little quartette of Quails and Sand Grouse in a natural-looking shaded nook with a sandy floor. The birds of prey (in a corner by themselves, of course) include a splendid pair of Golden Eagles, a huge Griffon Vulture, a Red-tailed Buzzard, Tawny, Short-eared and Barn Owls, and a smart little Jay. All are good specimens, but not particular bright-looking, save the Jay; but could a Jay be otherwise?

Special Prizes at Falkirk Good Intent Show.

SIR,—In reply to Mr. Hunter's letter, I may say that I am making no mistake in regard to the specials in the British section at the above show. To prove who is right, Mr. Editor, I am enclosing catalogue for reference. I may add that if this way of allocating specials is a sample of "fair and square" dealing, then any interest which I have had in this show will certainly cease. This will be my last letter on this subject.

INTERESTED.

Another Opportunity for Crest Fanciers this Season.

SIR,—May I be permitted to remove the impression that Crest fanciers will not have another opportunity to exhibit this season under such extended classification as is provided at the Scottish National Show. The Welsh National Show, to be held at Cardiff on the Palace dates, provides the same number of classes, with liberal prize-money and specials, and exhibitors who intended exhibiting at the Crystal Palace should embrace this opportunity and show their appreciation of the plucky Welshmen.

W. SAMPSON.

Hon. Show Manager,
Welsh National Show.

The Novice Problem.

Our Opinion is Asked Upon Several Ticklish Points.

SIR,—I should feel greatly obliged if you would answer the following queries:—

- (1) In what sense was either the Clapham or the L. and P.O.S. show not considered an open show?
- (2) Has either one or both of these shows been classed in previous years as open?
- (3) What really constitutes an open show?
- (4) If a novice wins three firsts at a society's show, of which he is a member, and the said show is open for, say, a radius of 12 miles, does he become a champion?
- (5) If a novice wins a 1st in open novice competition does he become a champion; or has he to win three such firsts to become a champion?

(6) If a novice wins a 1st in one Canary class in an open show, does he thereafter become a champion in all varieties of Canaries?

J. A. H.

[(1) Both shows were restricted to exhibitors who could deliver and fetch their birds. (2) Previously Clapham has been an open show. The L. and P.O.S. Autumn Show has sometimes been open and sometimes confined to members. (3) Broadly speaking, a show at which no one is barred from competing. If, however, any show is open to more than exhibitors residing in the county wherein the show is held, or the price limit (if one be fixed) is over £5, it is considered to be an Open Show (vide the novice rule in the schedule of the Crystal Palace Show). (4) No. He may, however, become a champion (or an amateur, if there is such a section) at shows of his own society, and this depends upon the rules governing the said society. We might add that at all shows it is the general rule that all members of a family, or residents in the same house, must show in the highest section in which any of them may have to compete. (5) He has to win three firsts. (6) Yes.—EDITOR, "C.B."]

Is the Norwich Developing Into a Nondescript?

SIR,—What is the remark one hears when visiting a show? "Do you call them (the birds that are winning) Norwich Plainheads?" I myself say No; they are a nondescript, simply winning because they are big birds. The judges find the big birds in the classes, then select the most uniform bird—a very easy matter. But is this procedure to continue? If so, the Norwich Plainhead is doomed, and will lose its place as the most popular variety. We don't want great, big, bowy, sulky-looking, crouchy, inactive birds, lying on the perches and with no daylight under them. What we do want is the acknowledged type of the N.P.C. Compare this with what you see winning. Let us ask for birds to be "judged," then we shall see a great improvement in the popularity of the variety.

BARKER CLEGG.

Recent Polar Expedition pictures have made us more familiar with "the solemn, stately Penguin" than we used to be, and they are almost as interesting (and greedy) as their neighbours the Pelicans. They lose all their solemnity at feeding time, and their appetite must be the despair of their keeper as well as the envy of any dyspeptic visitor who sees them! There are two species, and they have a small pond to themselves.

Other new birds from "The Woolly South" are the Giant Kingfishers and Brush Turkeys, and in a big enclosure are the Rheas. They are a special attraction just now as (spurred on no doubt by the many "little strangers" born in the Zoo lately) they made a nest (it's just a scratch in the earth) and the cock bird is busy sitting on the eggs. The hen, having laid them, apparently thinks she has done enough, or else "Wants the Vote!" As the eggs take about seven weeks to hatch out it's a policy of "Wait and see" right enough for him.

Birds the Children Love Best.

The Parrot Aviary is perhaps the most popular section and the children love it best, next to the monkey house. The only trouble is to keep the birds from eating too many dainties! It is a large aviary (78 x 15 x 15), roughly, with a big night house, plenty of barrel-nests, etc., and all the inmates seemed lively and healthy. The species include about a dozen Rose Cockatoos and the same number of Lemon-crested white ones—the latter being very confiding and anxious to get their polls rubbed—a few nice little green Parrots and half-a-dozen gorgeously feathered Military Macaws. There are several talking ones among the lot, and one kept on welcoming visitors with his distinct "Come on," while he didn't forget to cry "Good-bye" after you; and, space being limited, I'll follow the example. By the bye, the Zoo officials are always glad to receive gifts of birds, animals or reptiles, should any reader feel so disposed.

Lodgers from the Palace.

Since writing the above the collection of birds has been increased by over a hundred "lodgers" sent from the Crystal Palace "for the period of the War," the space they occupied there being required for the troops. The birds are mostly of the Parrot tribe, though a quartette of little Wood Owls make a pleasant attraction.

Waterfowl a Great Attraction.

The commoner Water Fowl are in great numbers and endless variety: Geese, Gulls and Ducks, with three nice ponds all to themselves. Undoubtedly the foreign Waterfowl ponds are the biggest attraction, as the inmates have hitherto only been known to most of us from stuffed specimens in our museums, or from books. It is indeed a splendid sight to see such unusual birds as the gorgeous Flamingoes (always motionless on one leg in the water), the quaint old Stork, the aristocratic Demoiselle Cranes elegantly walking about; the Crowned Crane executing his amusing dance for your special benefit; the Oyster-catcher and the Gannet lazily watching you in case you have any fish; also the pre-historic-looking Pelicans. The latter are the latest arrivals, and to see them

CORRESPONDENCE.

The Novice Norwich Classes at Doncaster Show.

Sir,—I was surprised to note a certain win in the novice Norwich classes at Doncaster show. I understood that the exhibitors had already won a first prize in open competition at a certain show held in the Midlands on Nov. 28 of this year. If this is so, then I think some explanation should be given for the benefit of the other novices at Doncaster. Further, did not the same exhibitors also win another first in a novice class (this time at a certain Midland show) after their success at the open show alluded to above? WANDERING RUSSIAN.

Watford's Deserving Venture.

Sir,—Now that the Watford C.B.S. has decided to run an open show, it behoves every exhibitor to do his utmost to make it a success. Many well-known exhibitors are members of the society, so we need have no fear; the exhibits will be well cared for. The foreign and British bird exhibitors are doing their best to make it a success, and I hope all Canary exhibitors will show their appreciation of the very fine classification by sending as many entries as possible. The show is being run on the lines of Plymouth and the L.C.B.A., i.e., with money prizes for all birds in the cards. It rests with exhibitors if this system shall become general, or otherwise. Make it a success for Watford, as a return for their pluck in running an open show. F. EASTERLING.

When is a Novice Not a Novice?

Sir,—This is only one of the questions which keep cropping up time after time, and which I think it is time should be settled either one way or another. For instance, why should a bird which has been shown (and has won) in open competition be allowed, merely because it has changed owners, to compete as a novice exhibit? Also there is the question of the man who is still a novice after 20 years' experience. Then there is the overlapping of different societies, and the commanding of each other's show dates. Then the judges sometimes give reason for a grumble. I am not in any way disparaging the judges. I believe we have got as competent and as honest a set of judges as we could wish, and even better than we deserve, considering the happy-go-lucky way in which we make the selection. But the question is: Will these muddling-through methods always answer? I am afraid not. I think it about time we revived the Cage Bird Union, or some other body with the power and the ability to set these and other points straight.

I could go on for another column with these points which require deciding. What about the exhibitor who keeps a variety for which novice classes are seldom provided? How long has he to remain a novice? However, I will now "dry up," or I shall have someone telling me that any fool can find fault. Perhaps someone with more experience will take up the matter and let us have the benefit of that experience. I am quite willing to take a hand in reviving the Cage Bird Union, or in forming another governing body, if your readers will signify their desire for either. In the meantime I desire to be known as Foreign Birds at the Welsh National Show.

Sir,—I am desirous of drawing the attention of your readers to the fact that the patronage of the Foreign Bird Exhibitors' League has been conferred on the Welsh National Show, to be held at Cardiff on Feb. 5, 6 and 8. Mr. Allen Silver, the hon. sec. of the League, in your last issue reported that it had been conferred on Cardiff show. This may be misunderstood and confused with the Cardiff Cage Bird Society's show, but the Welsh National show is distinct from the Cardiff Society's show, the latter society being only one of the affiliated societies. W. SAMPSON.

The Value of "Push."

Sir,—Having joined the merry band of bird-breeders again, I take an interest in all bird matters, and I always prefer to discuss birds and not persons. With the article concerning the value of "push" in the selling of surplus stock by Mr. Allsopp, I cannot agree. Good birds require very little push to sell; it is the wasters that want pushing. To my way of thinking, there is far too much "push" in advertisements already. You see birds described as real champions, with everything required, for from 20s. to 40s. each. When you receive them they are quite the reverse. I never knew a breeder who had good birds but someone else knew of them, too; and a short description of them when for sale is sure to be responded to. To make a profit out of surplus wasters, one must be able to put together a flash advertisement, and have a very elastic conscience, making Tom-Tits into monsters, pinched heads into "Bull dogs," and long-sided birds as "round as balls." What I should like to see, however, instead of discussing persons, is a good discussion upon the modern Norwich, and how to produce it. Now, Mr. Allsopp, start it and I will join in. Moseley. J. BASTOCK.

A LANCASHIRE ENTHUSIAST AND HIS BIRDS.

Sir,—Duty called me to the neighbouring town of Ormskirk several weeks ago, so as a break in the monotonous routine of duty, I contrived to combine it with a little pleasure and called on Mr. J. W. Johnson, the well-known British Bird and Hybrid exhibitor. I found him possessed of a fairly large stock, as well as a few Border and Norwich Canaries. Contrary to many fanciers he had had a good season with his Canaries, as he happened to be in possession of a good lot of feeders, both hens and cocks. One Norwich cock seemed to have combined the duties of father, mother, foster-parent and a sort of relieving officer at one and the same time, for when we saw him he had about ten young Canaries dependent on him, averaging from 17 days to a month old; and he did pump it into 'em!

If every fancier in the district were to exhibit as much and as frequently as Mr. Johnson, there would be less need for the cry of short entries and classes cancelled. Go to which show we will within a reasonable distance from Ormskirk, there you will see Mr. Johnson's exhibits; and when we remember that Ormskirk is one of the most awkward places imaginable for railway service, and that it is often Sunday evening when his birds arrive home, even from a show close to, Mr. Johnson's enthusiasm must be of that sort that "won't wash off." Nor is he of the growling class (luckily very scarce in the Fancy) when his birds don't win. Like Artemus Ward, he thinks that a "grudging sperrit is worse nor tite boots"; so when a bird beats him, he looks out for one better.

Amongst his British we noticed a very good Greenie, not his well-known last year's winner (about the largest Greenie we ever saw). The latter he had breeding with a hen Canary, and it died just when its services would have been most appreciated—perhaps from unrequited love! Another noticeable bird was the well-known Yellowhammer, a bird which has had unusual success wherever exhibited, and as all British improve with age, so long as they keep in good health, Mr. Johnson will be justified in expecting a fair share of the spoils where his old "Hammer" is exhibited in the future. We noticed a good Hawfinch, also a very large and beautifully marked Corn Bunting, which has a fair number of wins to its credit. His old winning Linnet was in rare fettle. Several other Britishers were noticed, too, which should uphold the reputation of this room.

Amongst the Hybrids were two variegated Greenie-Canaries, a jonque and a mealy. Then there was the noted Canary-Bullie, a bird which accounted for one of CAGE BIRDS coupon specials last year. A very fine light Goldie Mule was conspicuous; and lastly we noticed two young Goldie-Bullies, which should develop into grand birds.

A few questions about methods elicited the information that Mr. Johnson did not believe in hard and fast rules as regards feeding, but in altering cases to suit circumstances; on the whole he favoured a good and varied diet. He likes plenty of baths, especially at moulting time, as they give the desired sheen; and believes in plenty of handling, because it has the tendency to steady and to give confidence, without which no British bird, however good, is of use for exhibition. Mr. Johnson, one can see, is an enthusiastic over his hobby, and takes the same pride in his pets, as an astronomer does over the discovery of a fresh comet with a tail as long as a wet Sunday. May his lucky star never stop blinking. T. JOHNSON.

Mr. Rukin's appeal to Lizard fanciers was noted.—J. Peacock, hon. sec.

WINCHBURGH C.B.C.

Annual general meeting, Dec. 18. J. Robb chair. Treas. Mr. Russell gave his financial report, and announced that he was able to pay 6s. per class prize money, which was unanimously agreed to. Office-bearers for ensuing year—Mr. J. Robb was re-elected pres.; Mr. W. Murray, vice-pres.; J. Russell, treas.; A. Bishop, Sec. Unanimously agreed that all specials in the shape of goods be balloted the night before the show. All moneys to go to the funds of the club. Vote of thanks to the chairman closed the meeting.—A. Bishop, Sec.

STOKE-ON-TRENT C.B.A.

Meeting, Dec. 20. Sec. reported that the show-room was not available for the members' show intended for Boxing Day. Decided to postpone the fixture until Jan. 2, at Red Lion Hotel, Stoke. Mr. C. J. Robinson judge; and a good entry is anticipated. Decided that special prizes for best birds not awarded at Burslem show should be competed for at this show, in addition to club specials. Mr. Dalton is giving the usual six bottles of whisky, and Mr. Bullock 2s. 6d. cash, to be awarded as last year, for first to seventh most points.—J. Pitchford, Sec.

HALIFAX C.B.S.

Pic upper and social evening, Dec. 17, headquarters, Trafalgar Inn, King Cross, Halifax. 30 members and friends sat down to a splendid repast, very well arranged and catered for by the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Morton. The social evening was well presided over by our chairman, Mr. E. Stobart. Messrs. Wright, Copley (bass), R. McAndrews (humorist), J. Hamer (tenor), and Albert Brooks (baritone) entertained with songs and duets in their usual efficient manner. Mr. J. E. Priestly accompanied at the piano, and quite excelled himself. A hearty vote of thanks to the artistes, the host and hostess, the accompanist, and to all who had helped to make such an enjoyable evening, was moved by Mr. A. Sutcliffe, seconded by Mr. J. Felder. Mr. Copley replied on behalf of the artistes, and said it gave him pleasure to be amongst the cage bird fanciers; he was very much struck with the keen and friendly rivalry that existed between the members, and with the fine specimens that were shown by them. He was very much surprised at what could be done by working-men fanciers in their spare time, and was pleased to have the opportunity to reply on behalf of the artistes, as they all appreciated their thanks. Mr. Morton replied on behalf of himself and the hostess, and was met with the ringing "For he's a jolly good fellow." 11 o'clock brought a pleasant evening to a close.—A. Sutcliffe, Sec.

NEWTONGRANGE.

Second annual show, Lothian Hall, Newtongrange, Dec. 19. Entries numbered 400, much the same as last year. Borders and British were a grand show, but the many Norwich fanciers in the district might have taken better advantage of this show considering so many others had been cancelled. The officials are all ardent fanciers, and with such men as Messrs. A. M. Gardiner, President, Wm. Thomson, Vice-President, and Mr. J. Nelson, sec., supported by a hard working committee of fanciers, Newtongrange should be able to hold a show second to none in this part of the country. Sp. best Nor. was won by Mr. E. Bell, with a fine variegated, shown in lovely bloom. Open B.F.C.C. medal, A. and W. Thomson, with a gem of a Green; Novice B.F.C.C. medal, A. Kitchen; best Mule or Brit., R. Heggie, Glasgow, with his well known cl. Greenf. Mule, put down in rattling order. Judges were: Norwich, Mr. J. Calderwood, Kilmarnock; Bord., Mr. R. H. Douglas, Loanhead; Brit. and Mules, Mr. J. Mason, Peebles, and their awards were well received. The surplus is to be divided equally between the Belgian and Red Cross Funds.

HASTINGS & ST. LEONARDS C.B.S.

16th Annual Show, November 17, Holy Trinity Parish Hall. Although the show this year was confined to members, entries numbered over 300, considerably over the total of the last open show. The success was mainly due to the untiring efforts of the hon. sec., Miss Irene Kirk-Bullock, and the magnificent results achieved must have afforded her considerable pleasure. The proceeds were devoted to the benefit of the Belgian Refugees, and the show was to have been opened by H.R.H. the Duchess of Vendome, Princess of Belgium. H.R.H. having, however, been called to Paris upon Red Cross duties, the Mayoress of Hastings kindly performed the ceremony, and was supported by the Mayor (Councillor E. A. Hocking), and a very influential company, including a number of wounded Belgian officers and soldiers. Special winners were: Yorks Champ. Cup (outright), F. Wright, who also had the runner-up, besides winning the Kirk-Bullock trophy for best Yorks. A. Walker; Nor. cup, Nor. G. Cramp; nov. Yorks. A. Walker; Nor. cup, W. Ellis (outright); cup best Brit. or Hyb., H. Howick; best For., Dr. Lovell-Keays. Other specials were won as follows: Best Hyb. and best among cup winners, H. ABERDEEN.

Annual exhibition of the Aberdeen Amalgamated C.B.S., Music Hall Buildings, Dec. 18 and 19, under the distinguished patronage of the Lord Provost, Magistrates and Town Council of the City of Aberdeen, also the Cinnamon C.C. Chairman Mr. John Hector works very hard to make things work smoothly, and he is well backed up by the Vice-Presidents, Messrs. Wm. Rae, M. Rae and J. Sandison. Mr. Wm. Allison acted as Sec. and Treas., and Mr. John Bryson Ast. Sec., and a large staff of experienced fanciers formed the committee. The entry was a grand one, no less than 750, the best the Society has had for many a year, while quality throughout was of the very highest, many Southern exhibitors sending up grand teams. Norwich were the outstanding feature. Mr. Wm. Allison gained the N.P.C. medal for best Canary in show, also the Challenge Cup best young bird; Mr. E. Taylor, sp. best British, with a lovely Black Redstart; Mr. T. Haytor had a very nice team of exhibits and Mr. J. Palmer; they were outstanding exhibits and were greatly admired. Mr. Robertson showed some lovely Foreign birds which were well worth seeing. Mr. James Smeaton, Musselburgh, and Mr. J. Ritchie, Brechin, judged Norwich; and Mr. Wm. Bishop, Stirling, the remainder, and their awards were well received.

NEVER IN THE MEMORY

of any fancier has such Crests and Crest-breds been offered for sale—i.e., such quality at reasonable prices; no other person has either such a collection for sale; show and stock birds, with large bodies and crests over ends of beak; and what is more, they include clear yellows and buffs, both light and dark crests—not on paper, but can be seen. Send for list, or state wants (enclosing stamp). Throw on one side foolish prejudice and have on approval. I guarantee them to include best blood obtainable and without the base falsehoods advertised by a certain class of dealers: W. Rudd, The Bird Specialist, Norwich.

HARTZ CANARIES.

Explanatory Notice.

A well-known American dealer having purchased a very large number of the famous Hartz Mountain Canaries for the New York market, has decided to postpone his departure for a month on account of private affairs. He has therefore handed over to me some part of his consignment for quick sale. These birds are absolutely the pick of the entire market. This explains why for the time being I advertise Canaries. During the past ten days 2,100 hens have been sold. I have now received some cocks of two distinct classes, which will give unbounded satisfaction. I am well aware it is customary to advertise these songsters, under high-sounding titles, and most flowery descriptions, but a Roller is a Roller all the world over. (1985)

Our Books and a Common-sense Application of the Advice therein MUST bring you Profit as well as Pleasure.

All the experience of years of careful study by experts is at the disposal of readers.

AVIARIES, BIRD-ROOMS, AND CAGES, 2/3 (cloth gilt). By H. Norman. Contains ten lovely full-page photographic plates. A practical guide which deals thoroughly with the proper building, fitting, and management of aviaries and bird rooms, and the making of cages.

YORKSHIRE CANARIES, 1/1.—By H. W. Batty (Past President of the Yorkshire Union). Absolutely the very best Handbook dealing with the Yorkshire and its sub-varieties. Contains complete instructions upon pairing, breeding, moulting, and successful exhibiting, also how to treat in both health and disease.

NORWICH CANARIES, 1/1.—By C. A. House. Tells the fancier all that he needs to know to enable him to become successful as a breeder, and exhibitor of the Norwich Plumhead. The chapters on "Forming a Stud," and "How to Produce the Ideal" are worth the cost of the whole book.

THE SECRETS OF HYBRID BREEDING REVEALED AND EXPLAINED.—By many notable Mule and Hybrid breeders. Among the contributors are such well-known breeders as Messrs. R. Colton, W. H. Vale, C. Houlton, C. J. Ward, J. Boswick, G. Lander, T. H. Kitch, T. Smith, etc. This Handbook, which contains 212 pages, 7 inches by 5, is brimful of the most practical information on the highly interesting subject of Hybrid Breeding. Price 1/-, post free 1/2.

PARROTS FOR PLEASURE AND PROFIT, 7d.—By C. P. Arthur. A practical handbook, dealing with the keeping, feeding, and general treatment of the Grey, the Amazon, etc. It explains how to sex these birds, the treatment of newly imported specimens, and cures for their various ills.

SEEDS, FOODS, AND WILD PLANTS FOR CAGE BIRDS, 1/2.—By various leading authors. Full information on the seeds suitable for all cage birds, their food values, uses, etc., with descriptions and illustrations of the wild plants indispensable to the successful keeping of British and other birds.

HOUSE'S CANARY MANUAL, 1/2.—By C. A. House. A thorough, practical guide to the general management and breeding of Canaries, dealing fully with the breeding, etc., of every member of the Canary family, including the Roller (or Singing) Canary. An illustration of each bird, by the master Canary artist, Mr. H. Norman; exhaustive chapters on aviaries and cages, breeding procedure, moulting, exhibiting, diseases, and seeds—a compendium of knowledge.

BUDGERIGARS AND COCKATEELS, 6d.—By C. P. Arthur. The breeding of Budgerigars and Cockateels is recognised as one of the most profitable and pleasure-giving sides of foreign bird-keeping. This eminent authority gives full details on how to keep, feed, breed, tame, and teach them to talk.

FOREIGN BIRDS FOR BEGINNERS, 1/1.—By W. T. Page, F.Z.S., etc., Foreign Bird Expert to "Cage Birds." A highly instructive Manual. It contains a magnificent coloured plate and a number of black and white illustrations. Indispensable to all keepers of Foreign Birds.

BRITISH BIRD MANUAL, 2/3 (cloth bound).—By H. Norman; or may be had in two parts, Part 1: "Hardbills," and Part 2: "Softbills." Either Part, price 1/1, post free. Each part contains a beautiful and life-like coloured plate and numerous illustrations of birds and cages. Up-to-date information on the keeping of British Birds.

THE STOCK BOOK, 7d.—By G. E. Weston. Of our invaluable "Breeding Room Register" a well-known fancier has said:—"It makes bird-breeding easy." No breeder of birds can possibly afford to be without it. It simplifies the operations in the bird-room and makes it possible for everyone, even the veriest novice, to breed his birds as they should be bred. Contains both Pedigree, Breeding, Young Bird, and Show Registers of simple and unique character, in addition to useful account pages.

CANARY BREEDING FOR BEGINNERS, 7d.—By Claude St. John. A Practical, up-to-date guide to Canary breeding, designed specially for the use of the beginner. Deals very fully with the choice, sexing, and mating of the birds, feeding for condition, the cages and their fittings, the bird-room, egg-food, nest-building, rearing and moulting the young, colour-feeding, training for show, and all the difficulties likely to confront the breeder.

CAGE-BIRD HYBRIDS.—Complete bound in cloth, 7/6 carriage paid. This great work is written by Charles Houlton, an authority with a reputation extending over 25 years as a leading exhibitor and a leading expert and judge. (Associate editors, J. E. Weston and C. A. House). Magnificently illustrated by that great bird artist, H. Norman. There are no less than sixteen coloured and sixteen art plates in this work. Each plate is a perfect study of an individual Hybrid.

FANCIERS' PRINTING.—Fanciers requiring business notepaper, postcards, trade envelopes, etc., should write us for a quotation. We are now in a position to supply these at specially low rates combined with first-class work. Artistic memos, with block of any desired bird, and fancier's name, address, and words of description as desired, 2/0 5/-, 500 7/6, carriage paid.

Twitterings.

Mr. J. Hulton, sec. Middleton C.B.S., writes that he has removed to 35, North Street, Middleton, where all enquiries and correspondence should now be addressed.

Mr. H. J. Chick (Nottingham) points out that a printer's error (which we regret) occurred in his advertisement of last week, the price of the Corn Buntings appearing as 1s. instead of 15s.

A letter we sent Mr. W. F. Lewis (Swansea), to the address given by him, has been returned marked "not known." If he requires it, he must communicate again with us.

My compliments to your artist for the sketch of my yellow-green Yorkshirecock at the Horticultural Hall show. He looked so natural and life-like, and it was a pleasant surprise to me to see him in CAGE BIRDS.—W. Jones (Birkenhead).

An old advertiser, of 12 years standing, Mr. J. Jones (Brighton) informs us that he is again about to offer his mealworms through our advertising columns. That they are exceptionally fine mealworms, a sample to hand proves, and they are, we understand, fed solely on bran and barley-meal.

Mr. C. E. Hylton, hon. sec., Idle C.B.S., 2, Croft Top, Idle, writes "the society, the youngest in the Bradford area, only wants some more real Yorkshire fanciers as members to make it second to none. Its trophies and prize list are unique. There is a ten-guinea cup for champions and a five-guinea shield for novices."

OBITUARY.

It is with great sorrow, writes Mr. A. Hudson, hon. sec. Barrow in Furness C.B.S., I have to acquaint you of the death of one of our most willing exhibitors, Mr. Jos. Jones. He was such a keen fancier that although of late his health had been much against him, he was an exhibitor and attended at our show as late as five weeks ago. He was laid to rest on New Year's Eve and leaves a widow with two sons serving under the colours. We all join in sending her our deepest sympathy in their sorrow.

It is with deep regret, writes Mr. E. Thomas, sec. Cardiff C.B.S., that I write to inform you that Sergeant G. Shellam, 2nd Welsh Regiment, has been killed in action. He was a brother of Mr. Alf. Shellam, the well-known Mule exhibitor. I am sure that all fanciers will extend to Mr. Shellam and family deepest sympathy in their hour of sorrow.

Halifax O.S. Smoking Concert.

I made a mistake when I sent you the notice about our smoker and social, writes Mr. H. Clegg, Sec., Halifax O.S., I said it was on Jan. 17, I should have said Saturday, the 16th.

Entries Extended at Tredegar.

We are compelled to extend closing date of entries until first post Monday morning, as up to date I have not received a single entry, writes Mr. W. B. Watkins, hon. sec. Tredegar C.B.S., 63 High Street.

An Interesting Sparrow.

In one of the roads leading off Clapham Common there is said to be an interesting Sparrow. With the exception of its head, the bird is completely white, and shows up very clearly among half-a-dozen Sparrows in their natural-coloured plumage.

Bute's Great Success.

The Bute Fanciers' Association's recent show was the most successful ever held by that body, writes Mr. W. Connelly, and as all profit was to go to the Red Cross Society's funds, it is very pleasing to be able to announce that they have £15 to hand over—very satisfactory indeed.

A "Hairy Plane."

The other day I espied a Heron leisurely flying over Clapham High Street, and a little girl greeted the appearance of the unusually feathered visitor with "Look, mother, there's a hairyplane!" The bird's outstretched wings and long, drawn out legs certainly in a way suggested the simile.—"Angling News."

NEXT WEEK

A Highly Interesting

BIRTHDAY NUMBER

It will contain a wealth of articles from the pens of some of the most brilliant writers in the Cage Bird Fancy, be illustrated with many charming drawings and photographs, and include a study of one of the most popular birds we have.

A BEAUTIFUL AND EDUCATIVE COLORED PLATE

ORDER IT AT ONCE. The Price this year will be 2d. only.

ADVERTISEMENTS will close on Tuesday, January 12th: and as a unique opportunity for appealing to the largest possible number of purchasers, our Birthday Number holds the field.

REMEMBER that all communications must reach us, at latest, on TUESDAY NEXT (preferably first post), and as the amount of "copy" to be got through will entail a heavy strain upon all departments, including our printers, we shall appreciate the early receipt of advertisements and all other communications intended for this great Birthday Issue.

We invite birdkeepers to write us on any points of interest to fanciers; we shall be delighted to publish their experiences of birds and bird-keeping in our next week's Birthday Number.

L. and P.O.S. Festivities.

The London and Provincial O.S. annual dinner will be held at the Holborn Restaurant on Thursday, Jan. 21, tickets 4s. each, writes Mr. C. W. Law, the hon. sec. (Brimley House, Woodhouse Road, North Finchley). Members and friends of other societies are warmly invited to be present with us. A splendid musical programme is being arranged.

Aberdeen Show Report.

Owing to the regrettable illness of our representative, Mr. P. Lyon, who is at present laid up in the Military Hospital, we are unfortunately unable to complete the report of Aberdeen show, a portion of which was published last week. We would have given the awards in the remaining classes, but the secretary has not sent us a catalogue, although applied for.

Scared the Birds.

A Middlesbrough lady relates a remarkable incident concerning the recent bombardment of the Hartlepoons. She noticed that vast numbers of birds, uttering weird cries, passed over the Tees, shortly after it commenced. Their fright confirmed her worst fears that the terrific explosions, which shook the windows of her house with extraordinary violence, had a tragic meaning.

A Complete Victory.

In addition to winning the Diploma with his clear-cap Silver Lizard at the Horticultural show (see front page this week) Mr. F. Hamer also won the award of merit for the best Gold, thus being adjudged the owner of the best bird of each colour, a feat of which he is justifiably proud in view of the importance of the show, and the fact that all the best Lizards were competing.

Llanely Wants a Record.

The show on Jan. 12 is probably the last I shall run, writes Mr. D. John, the sec. Llanely C.B.S., therefore I should like to have a record entry, and nothing will be left undone on my part which can help the exhibitors and the exhibitors. I will accept entries up to next Sunday morning's post (Jan. 10); see review of schedule in this issue. Our hall is one of the best in the kingdom, and will hold thousands staged in single tiers, so that all can see the birds to perfection. Send your entries, fanciers, please; Mr. H. Norman and Mr. J. Robson, judge.

Baldness in Birds.

This disfigurement may be due either to a dry and scrofulous condition of the skin or else simply to plucking by a companion. The latter cause occurs quite commonly amongst Waxbills and other small foreign Finches which have been huddled together in large numbers during importation and owing to enforced idleness have learnt the pernicious habit. If the plucked one is isolated and allowed to bathe freely the feathers will grow again in due course. Should the trouble be due to scurf, cool and purify the blood by giving a dose of fluid magnesia every third day for a fortnight (unless the bowels should become unduly relaxed); dose, one part magnesia to one part water for drinking. Wash the bald part daily with tepid water, dab dry and anoint with a little pure lard, coconut oil, or purified paraffin.—R. Mannerling, in "The Bazaar."

An announcement which should have the careful attention of all bird-keepers, bird-dealers, and traders generally appears on page 368.

SHOW DATES FIXED.

To secure insertion in this column, a guarantee that the show will be advertised in "C.B." to the extent of at least 25/- must be sent to our manager. Please note that we only insert those that guarantee, so our list is a bona-fide one.

White Sparrow near Woking.

Among the feathered friends who come to share my breakfast I number a white Sparrow. This little hen—and I judge her to be a hen from a certain roundness of contour combined with a gentle unaggressive manner—has, with the exception of two small brown feathers in the upper wing coverts and the same at extreme wing terminals, no feather darker than a greyish white, the upper parts, with exception named, being pure white, and the bird on the wing and in sunshine appears as a brilliantly white one. The beak, legs, and claws are yellowish white, and the eyes apparently normal in colour. Knowing that all species, including the human, are liable to albinism, it seems strange to think one can live sixty years before seeing a white Sparrow.—F. Baddeley (Woking) in the "Sunday Times."

AN UNCOMMON BIRD PET: THE ROOK.

By
A. H. MUDGE
(Wimbledon).

As a cage bird the Rook is by no means common. Properly speaking, it is more suited for aviary life; or it may be kept loose in a garden or yard with one wing clipped. My experience with these birds is limited, being confined to two which I possessed, one of which lived only a short time, and the other, the subject of this article, for nearly two years. A specimen which is cream-coloured, with pink eyes, may be seen at the Zoo in London. I also read about a pure white one being hand-reared (this summer, I think it was). I saw a letter in "Country Life" giving the history of this bird.

Get Him when Young.

If caught when adult the Rook is wild and intractable, often refusing food and pining away; is this possibly because these birds pair for life? Both my birds were caught when just ready to leave the nest, so that they were fully fledged. One, which was caught in June, died in a short time, apparently more from fright than anything else. The other was caught in July. This bird had first to be forcibly fed, but after a few days it began to take food readily. It grew tame, and when it could fly it escaped and was loose for some hours, but as it was unable to feed itself, it soon returned.

After this one wing was clipped, and the bird was allowed to range the garden; formerly it had been left in a large, movable netted pen, with one end covered. When the moult commenced it was caged in a small aviary with a Jackdaw. This Rook moulted out pied, which is an unusual occurrence, the normal colour being glossy black, with, in adults, a bare patch of skin at the root of the beak. This patch of skin, which is white and rough, is absent in young birds, and not perfect until the second, or sometimes the third, moult.

The merits of the Rook as a pet are many. My bird was "finger-tame" to myself, but it was nervous if a stranger approached its abode. At evening this bird became restless and noisy, though at other times quiet. It was a great bather, enjoying a bath daily, even in the coldest weather, and kept itself in perfect condition.

The one great disadvantage of the Rook is that it does not learn to feed itself for months. My specimen, at any rate, took three months of hand-feeding before it showed any signs of picking up food; it was also very noisy when young.

I fed it on, as a staple food, hound meal, soaked in boiling water for about ten minutes, then strained dry. Hard-boiled egg, raw meat and dead Sparrows or mice, were given (alternately) once or twice a week, besides a few table scraps on rare occasions and mealworms and insects almost daily. As a great treat I sometimes gave Trower's "Cecto," which I find a good food for most Softbills.

I found the Rook to be a delicate bird if not attended to carefully, and very hard to keep in good condition during the moult. The bird died this year during that critical time, owing to the carelessness of the person who was attending to my birds during my temporary absence.

As before stated, the bird was kept in a small aviary. If kept in a cage the Rook would need one similar to those which Choughs or Magpies have; it would then need cleaning out daily. In conclusion I should like to say that this bird did not seem very anxious to break through its prison bars, as some good people would have us believe all cage birds are willing to do. It is only one instance out of many which I have come across of captive birds being perfectly content in "durance vile"; they doubtless are in nine cases out of ten when properly cared for.

THE SELECTION OF NORWICH and YORKSHIRE BREEDING PAIRS.

By
A. THOMAS
(Frimley).

It is no use, obviously, for a man to try to breed an exhibition specimen from a pair of common (or worse) Canaries; but I do not think it necessary for him to pay a large sum of money for a suitable pair. My advice is to start from the bottom. I think it best to send, or go, to a reliable breeder and tell him just how much you are prepared to pay, when he will no doubt fix you up with the necessary pair or pairs. I do not recommend the novice (that is, an absolute beginner) to start with more than two or three pairs.

The "Proudest" of them all.

The Yorkshire, there can be no doubt, is the "proudest" bird in the Canary tribe. Try and frame in your mind what a good Yorkshire is like. They are, of course, often depicted in CAGE BIRDS. The chief points to be considered are length, shape, feather and style. Most of our judges will award the prize to a bird nearer 7 inches than 6½ inches, although the latter is the standard length (other points, of course, being equal). It is wise to have for stock purposes at least one cock bird that is over the standard length.

The head should be round, with a small beak, neck well filled in, but showing the very slightest of curves. The body should be long and slim, and evenly tapered off from the shoulders, which should be narrow, to the tip of the tail.

The wings should be long, and closely carried (not crossed at the ends), reaching to and resting on the base of the tail. The tail should be long and neatly folded and carried in a straight line with the back. The legs should be lengthy and show plenty of thigh, well covered with feathers and free from any loose ones.

The plumage should be of a silky quality and free from any roughness. Avoid those birds that show a frill or have prominent chests. Always breed yellow to buff, and if quality of feather is carefully studied there will not be much wrong with the colour. I prefer to use yellow cock and buff hen, but I have had just as good results the other way round. Generally speaking we get size and colour from the cock bird and type and quality from the hen. Hence the reason why you should keep good hens.

When the show cage is handled the bird should shoot up into position at once, showing plenty of nerve, or "swagger." Colour, i.e., artificial colour, is not so important in this variety as in some, but if a bird has a good hot colour it certainly gives it a better finish; much more attention has been given to this point the last few years.

Whence the "Swagger" Comes.

There should always be a certain amount of Belgian blood in the stock, as it is from this that the Yorkie gets his nerve, or swagger; but it is far better for the novice to buy a bird with some Belgian blood in it than to introduce the pure Belgian.

The chubby Norwich has always held a warm corner in my heart, and if I had to lose mine I should feel very sore. In the first place we want a bird with a wide, first, nicely-rounded skull (a narrow skull is no use); neck short and thick; chest broad, deep, and nicely rounded (similar

The Difference 'Twixt Mule and Hybrid.

SIR,—Will you kindly explain, through CAGE BIRDS, the difference between a Mule and a Hybrid, that is, if there is any difference. Many thanks for the very valuable hints obtained from your paper.

CORKHILL.

[All crosses are Hybrids, properly speaking, but by long usage the word "Mule" has come to be recognised as indicating a cross having a Canary as one of the parents, the word "Hybrid" being applied to crosses with no Canary blood in them. This division, of course, is purely a fanciers' one; a matter of convenience.—EDITOR.]

Is the Norwich Plainhead Developing into a Nondescript?

SIR,—Always jealous of the reputation of the Norwich Plainhead as a popular variety, I was a little surprised to see that Mr. Barker Clegg had developed into a pessimist regarding present-day winners and their type. Discussion is at all times entertaining and educational so long as the correspondence is conducted by fanciers with a proper sense of perspective, like Mr. Clegg possesses, but his letter is a bit vague. He says: "We don't want great, big, browy, sulky-looking, crouchy, inactive birds, lying on the perches, and with no daylight under them" (certainly we don't!) . . . and, "when one is bred that conforms approximately to the N.P. standard, the judges always find it." Isn't it curious?

Has Mr. Clegg seen the champion unflighted yellow cock of the year? Only once has he been missing from top place, and then he was pegged back by a judge with the reputation of being antagonistic to the "great big, browy, etc., etc.," and he is so devoid of all the faults which Mr. Clegg enumerates that one wonders what sort of a bird that judge really does want, and it makes one wish for a view of the bird that beat it. If Mr. Clegg will be at Ardwick show (I suppose he resides in the Manchester district) no doubt he will see it, and in spite of the increased cost of seed I'll lay a hard-earned guinea to a juicy gooseberry that his eyes exude covetousness as he handles it. In any case, perhaps he will give us his impression of the bird next week.

Personally, I think there has been a great improvement in the Norwich Plainhead of late years. There have been phases when certain points have been "gone for" at the expense of other necessary points, and in defiance of the standard; but at no time have we had judges who understood the variety better and who selected birds which were nearest in conformity to the standard. No doubt at the smaller shows birds so adjectively described do creep more or less into the prizes; but a judge can't put good birds up if they aren't there. Good ones are sadly too few. In a discussion on the points of the variety, known birds ought to be referred to so as to make the discussion less vague. I don't think the owners would object so long as the criticism was honest and nought set down in malice, and the deductions adduced the result of clear thinking.

The Novice Problem.

From British Into Canaries.

SIR,—I should like to see this answered in your valuable paper, CAGE BIRDS, regarding a Novice. Suppose I bought my British birds from a local catcher and he said to me he had a real good Linnet or two, and I bought one or two from him. After doing so I make it known to a fancier or two, and invite them to come and see them. They take a fancy to a certain Linnet and they try hard to get it from me. But I am told it is a show bird, and instead of selling I loan a cage and exhibit it. It happens to win. Now is it right I should be classed a champion in Canaries? Anyone with only a few coppers may have the luck to buy a real good British bird. If he afterwards chooses to start in Canaries, however, can he compete with the other champions on a few coppers?

SANDY.

[Our correspondent is apparently labouring under a misapprehension, as wins in British bird classes do not affect an exhibitor's status in the Canary section.—EDITOR.]

to the Bullfinch, or Robin type); back broad and well filled in, rounding off nicely at the sides; shoulders broad, but not prominent.

The legs should be short and set well back, for if they are too forward the bird will look stilty; tail short and compact; wings short, neatly carried and fitting close to the body, the points meeting evenly, but not crossing. The bird should be brisk and sharp (not sluggish) in its movements.

The plumage of a high-class Norwich should be fine and silky in texture, no coarseness about it, and very compact. The highest quality birds are usually the best coloured when colour-fed. Therefore aim at breeding them. Every breeder should keep a bright yellow-green cock-bird in his room; it is the stepping-stone to feather and colour.

In selecting Norwich to breed exhibition stock, always choose good thick-set ones, about 6½ inches to 6¾ inches long, if a little shorter so much the better. This matter of shortness applies more to the hens than to the cocks. Again, pair yellow to buff. You will be wise if, after your first season, you choose the breeding stock about Christmas time, from the second and third rounds, for the next year. If you intend exhibiting you will have to colour feed.

I am, let me tell you, a firm believer in Cinnamon blood; it is undoubtedly the source of that fine feather we all like to see. Avoid all flat-headed birds, as they usually come from crested stock and are deficient in quality. Avoid all those complications known as inbreeding, etc., for they are dangerous to the novice, and should not be attempted until experience has taught him something. Inbreeding should only be done when it is desired to fix some particular trait in a strain, in order to get it reproduced with more certainty in the next generation, and these related birds so mated should be as strong and lusty as possible.

THE EXHIBITION LINNET.

Its good points and its feeding described.

THE exhibition Linnet that commends itself to me is one of good size, bold in body and head, good in width of skull, with large, well-set eyes, a nut-brown back and shoulders, fading down to a shade lighter on the body, the breast and thigh markings well defined and running down in harmonious, gradual streaks. The back, too, should be well marked, also the head, so that one could fancy a grainer had been putting some beautiful "reliefs" on a nut-brown bird. The bird should be completed with a fine show of "whites" to each wing (i.e., the outer flight feathers) and on each side of a nicely drawn tail; and last, but not least, should carry that beautiful lustre of feather that one reads of in the description of the 1st prize Linnets at some of our foremost shows.

Ensuring Health and Condition.

Your show Linnet can be kept in good health and condition on the following mixture: Canary and teazel 2 parts each, summer rape, linseed and charlock 1 part each. A little hemp, cracked sunflower seed and maw seed should be given frequently in addition; also some of the refuse wild seeds from a threshing machine will be most beneficial. As regards conditioners for exhibition purposes the wild seeds, the hemp and the sunflower are good, and the former should always contain a fair quantity of gold of pleasure, dandelion and thistle seeds. Chickweed, shepherd's purse, plaintain, watereress, hardheads, etc., are good "green meats." Put plenty of good sharp sand in, and have a bath always hanging on the front of your stock cage, which should measure somewhere near 18in. by 11in. by 13in.

Special Prizes at Falkirk Good Intent Show.

Sir.—In answer to "Interested's" letter of Jan. 2. The next time you write to the press re specials at the Falkirk Good Intent Show, seeing you had not the courage to come to the general meeting, where you would have got every civility and an explanation of the delusion you are labouring under, you might be a man and sign your name and not put "Interested," as I think the only time you are interested is when you are getting specials and prize money. I am almost certain you are not a member of this club, but an individual of some other body trying to do as much harm as you can to this association. I see you say in your answer to Mr. Hunter's letter (which I hold is correct) that your "interest will cease." If this is the way in which you put your own interest before a society's welfare, then every society would be better rid of individuals of your stamp. However, I have no doubt the editor will see for himself who is right from the catalogue you have sent.

Sunderland Show Appeals for Your Support.

Sir.—With reference to our open show at Sunderland on Jan. 15 and 16, I should like to announce that a very large number of schedules have been sent out, but owing to the lack of open shows this season, the names and addresses of exhibitors have been difficult to obtain. In consequence, and owing to removals, etc., a number of fanciers may not get our schedule. Under these circumstances, will exhibitors kindly let me have their names and addresses? To give them time, I will accept entries which are posted so as to reach me on Tuesday, Jan. 12. In the Lizard section, a cash special of 2s. 6d. is given for best bird without a card; this was received after schedules were printed. In spite of the unsettled state of things through the great war, we have increased our classification, without interfering with the entrance fee or prize-money in any way. We hope that exhibitors will give us their confidence as in the past, and send us a bumping entry, even exceeding the record for Sunderland last year.

JOHN PEACOCK, Hon. Sec.

6, Whitburn Terrace, Fulwell, Sunderland.

And a Few Words on the Modern Norwich Plainhead.

Sir.—Mr. J. Bastock, I am afraid, does not appreciate the fact that the "push" which I particularly recommended only concerns the disposal of reliable birds, a circumstance which you, Mr. Editor, were careful to point out in the heading to the article. That "push" of a doubtful character sometimes appears in advertisements in an endeavour to dispose of still more doubtful birds, I do not deny; but I am content to leave the authors of such to work out their own destruction. For Mr. Bastock to say he never heard of a breeder who had good birds for sale but that someone else knew of them, is too sweeping a statement; it does not take into consideration hundreds of good breeders in remote localities, or those of a shy disposition who are only unearthed by accident. I quite agree "that a short description of the birds when for sale is sure to be responded to"; as a matter of fact this is just the thing which, in my article, I begged such breeders and sellers to give.

In spite of the fact that failure to succeed as a breeder and exhibitor may be attributed in 90 per cent. of cases to certain factors being lacking in the individuals, and not the birds, my critic declares "he should like to see, instead of discussing persons, a good discussion upon the modern Norwich." Well, I don't mind a little bit; but why will some folks always endeavour to swallow the bottle instead of the medicine? For a start might I ask: What must breeders regard as the modern Norwich? The legacy from Plainhead breeders of many years ago, but built upon more generous lines; the active, clean-moulded, rich-coloured bird, with neatness everywhere, or the type which Mr. Barker Clegg refers to as brawny, sulky-looking, crouchy, inactive birds, lying on their perches and with no daylight under them? Both types are in evidence. Which is to be the choice? And then, how best may we breed them? Really something to discuss, this, that will last, I hope, much longer than the present war.

E. W. ALLSOPP.

Sir.—I was very much interested in Mr. Allsopp's article on the above subject. When I commenced reading the first part of the article I thought "here is a chance to earn something," but I must confess I was somewhat disappointed when I got to the second part. I breed Norwich Canaries as a spare time hobby, and for the last two or three years I have found difficulty in getting a fair price for my surplus stock. I have sold cork birds for 7s. that were honestly worth 15s. to 20s. each. I advertised in "C.B.," I also advertised in a local paper and got one postcard. Being only a working man I am bound to sell, even if I cannot get a fair price. Can Mr. Allsopp tell me how to remove the difficulty for a novice to dispose of his surplus stock? H. COCKER.

A Show by Affiliated Societies at Rochdale.

Sir.—The Committee has decided to hold a show confined to members of the affiliated societies. It is to be held at the spacious rooms of the R.O.C., Bailen Street, Rochdale, on Sat., Jan. 23. We have secured the services of Mr. C. A. House as judge, and hope once again to have a good entry. I will be posting schedules, etc., of the show to the respective societies during the coming week, as we meet on Sat. night to complete the classification, etc. Should be pleased to accept any specials to be competed for at the show.

Are Scotch Fancy Exhibitors Overstepping the Mark?

Most Prize-winners Alleged to be Faked.

Sir.—I was very pleased to see the remarks by our old friend Mr. W. McClure, and he rightly states this matter is really troubling the Fancy. The cry to stamp out faking is an old cry; it is 50 years now since I heard it first, and I am sorry to say it is more rife now than ever before. The question is: How can we stop it? In order to arrive at a true answer, we must look the matter fair in the face. I have arrived at the conclusion that most, if not all, of the prize-winners are now faked; and the saddest part of it is, that many who "scorn" the idea of faking are nevertheless our greatest sinners in this direction. What we want is to examine the birds for faking, and not the owners.

Another point is: Should all faked birds, irrespective of the degree of faking exercised, be shelved? My answer is, most decidedly, "Yes." And so show committees must instruct the judges ere starting duty that they hold them responsible to shelve any faked birds, irrespective of degree, and should a judge fail to do his duty through fear or influence, it then is for the committee to refuse such a person as judge in future. Would this stamp it out? It might, or it might not. Influence and name have terrible weight even in committees. But is it worth while now trying it, for there are only quite a few open shows left to Scotch Fancy exhibitors?

The latter fact, to my mind, calls for more immediate attention. What has happened? I remember 30 to 50 years ago, prices then were not a fourth what they now are; shows were in every town; the hobby was a hobby. Alas! no longer is the Scots Fancy hobby what it used to be. Working-men have dropped off one by one in hundreds, until now only a few survive. Moneyed men have cornered the market, raised prices, and caused the hobby to give place to money-making, and it is this which, to my mind, has broken the backbone of the Scots Fancy hobby, and brought the other evils in its train. Stamp out the one and you stamp out the others. The question is, then: How are we to stop this horrible price-raising which now exists in our midst? I would suggest that this body of well-meaning fanciers of which Mr. McClure speaks should consider the great evils of price-raising and price-raisers, as also faking and fakers. I trust to see something definite done on this subject.

LANCS. AND LIZARD F.A.

Meeting, Newmarket Hotel, Manchester, Jan. 2. We were sorry to learn that since our last meeting Mr. Cook, the genial landlord of the hotel, had succumbed to an attack of pneumonia and other complaints. Much regret was expressed by our members present. The question of club show was gone into, and sec. had a valuable list of specials to put before the meeting. Entries were accepted, and there is every reason to believe that the show will be a grand one both for numbers and quality. All the season's winners will be on view, both in Lancashire and Lizards. Up to time of writing Lizard entries total 72, Lancashire 22. Mr. Noah Stansfield (Denton) is the judge, and our members can depend upon careful and expert judging, though this is Mr. Stansfield's debut as a Lancashire and Lizard specialist judge. The show will be held at the Volunteer Inn, George Street, Oldham, Jan. 9. Fanciers are cordially invited. Mr. E. Fuller gives a special of 2s. 6d. for best Lizard shown by a novice (this is not mentioned in schedule). Much appreciation was expressed at the generous way Sunderland show was providing for the Lizard section. Mr. Fuller, who has been prevented coming to meetings for some time now, put in an appearance, and was very warmly received, especially when he expressed his opinion regarding the Lancashire Canary as shown at the present day.—John Rukin, Hon. The Shows.

WINDHILL.

A Noted Winner Wrong-Classed.

27th Annual open show of the Windhill Shipley C.B.S., Jan. 7, 2, Carnegie Hall, an ideal place, well lighted, and free from draughts. Entries totalled 260, and quality was quite up to standard, many notable exhibits being benched. The mainstay of the show was the novices as usual. The strongest classes were the unflighted, no less than 35 were entered in the two novice unflighted classes. A notable feature of the show was the wrong classing of Mr. L. Dykes' Buff Tkd., which should have been shown in the cl. or invisible tkd. class; it has such a slight tk. that most would be likely to miss it. The society has a very strong working committee. Show Manager, Mr. Matt. Broadley, had full charge, and he and Mr. Taylor, the sec., were always hard at it. The Sec. paid out prize-money in good time. Show stewards were: Messrs. Mason, Garnett, Ellis, Atkinson, Sutcliffe, and Denton, and gate men, Messrs. Hopwood, Harney, and Ellis. Sales were looked after by Mr. R. Garnett, but did not come quite up to expectations. Specials were won by Messrs. Sutcliffe and Son, Ogden Bros., Harney and Studd. Mr. Chittenden, judge, although not enjoying the best of health, got through his work in good time, and seemed to give general satisfaction.

THE SCOTTISH NATIONAL SHOW.

PLUCKY FIGHT AGAINST ADVERSE CIRCUMSTANCES.

The Officials come through with flying colours: A splendid attendance of bird-lovers: Grand display of birds, with a record entry of Crests: The sensational Hybrid comes a cropper.

THE Scottish National C.B.S. held another highly successful show, Dec. 31 and Jan. 1. Handicapped by having to secure a fresh show-room (the Corn Exchange having been let for National Insurance and Labour Exchange offices), the committee eventually decided upon the Grindlay Street Halls, as their venue for this year's show, but almost at the last moment were obliged to change from the upper hall, which has a splendid roof light, to the lower hall, which, though it has plenty of floor space, is not well lighted. Had it not been for the fact that schedules had been issued the show would probably have been cancelled, as the upper hall was unexpectedly required for military quarters. Members faced the situation bravely, however, and decided to "carry on as usual," and they are to be heartily congratulated on a very successful show. Entries were about 400 down on last year, but the classification was 22 classes less, therefore the loss of entries is not quite so serious as the figures would seem to indicate, the total being 1,600, or only an average of 1 per class below last year's record. The attendance on Friday seemed as large as ever, but the hall being smaller gave a more crowded appearance than used to be the case in the Corn Exchange. All preliminary arrangements were carried out in the usual masterly way, the management being led by the president, Mr. Jas. Witter, vice-pres. Mr. S. Bnglass, and Mr. R. Craig show manager. The committee, Messrs. A. Rodger, W. R. Finnie, T. Todd, J. G. Easter, W. B. Smart, G. W. Brown, P. Murray, J. Charlton, W. Allan, A. Paterson, M. Petrie, A. Weston, P. McNeiven, C. Sykes, A. Bowie, A. Hoyle, J. Goulay, S. May, R. Spence, W. Turnbull, W. Carson, D. Morris, L. J. Ayrigh, H. Norton, with J. R. Meikle as sec., carried out the various details in splendid order, Balfie, F. A. Watt, of Banff, rendering valuable assistance. The staging was again in the hands of the expert, D. Kindlay-side, who did all in first-class style. Some of the exhibits were considerably delayed on route, Messrs. Martin and Archer's birds and some others not being delivered until after judging had commenced, but the committee kept the classes back as long as possible in order to give all late arrivals a chance. There were few casualties during the show, but Mrs. Taylor's fine Redstart was unfortunately found dead on arrival. Sales were not so numerous as in former years, and no sensational prices have to be recorded, but a fair number of birds changed hands. The gate receipts amounted to about £36.

Mr. Parlett's noted exhibit again provided one of the attractions of the show, and a sensation, also, as the judge declined to accept it as being eligible for the class in which it was entered, namely, A.V. variegated Canary Muie. The Bullfinch Variety class was for Darkies only. Evidently, therefore, the judge, Mr. McQuiston, did not accept it as being a Canary-Bullfinch Hybrid. The bird again had many admirers, and very varied were the expressions passed as to its parentage.

Entries from English exhibitors were below previous years, the uncertainty prevailing as to train services no doubt being the main reason, but those who did send were fairly successful. The Dewar challenge shield for best bird in show again crossed the Border, Messrs. Martin and Archer being the fortunate winners with their celebrated Light Linnet Muie, "Perfection." The Aitken cup and the Gibson cup also were won by English birds, Mr. W. Crawshaw, of Ayrington, securing both these trophies with his Norwich exhibits. The Patterson cup was won by Mr. W. Dodds, of Edinburgh, and the foreign bird trophy by Mr. P. Arnot, of Alloa.

Judging was rendered more difficult than usual as the light in some parts was very poor, and the birds had to be carried to the end of the hall. Had the committee been able to retain the upper hall, they would have had a splendid light.

The judges were: Messrs. A. Maxwell and W. N. Turner (Norwich); J. Brotherton (Crests); A. Leslie and A. Livingstone (Scottish Fancies); J. F. Dewar (Belgians, Yorkshires, and Lizards); J. Johnstone and J. Patterson (Border); P. McQuiston (Mules); Livingstone and McQuiston (British); C. Sykes (For.)

THE NORWICH CANARIES. Judge, Messrs. A. Maxwell and W. N. Turner.

Norwich Plainheads were a bit back in numbers, there being 222 birds in 17 classes, but although wanting in number, there were some very nice birds on view. Mr. Crawshaw won the Aitken cup with his lovely nuffing, yellow cock, the best Norwich we have seen for some time. Mr. Grewar won S.P.C. medal for best cock, and Mr. Chalmers S.P.C. medal for best hen. Mr. Thomas won Ramsden's silver crucet for best fed hen. The awards of the judges seemed very favourably received.

THE CRESTS & CRESTBREDS. Judge, Mr. J. Brotherton.

The Crest and Crestbred section proved to be a record, and Scotch exhibitors well held their own. Every class had its complement of noted winners doing battle for the last time for 1914 show season. Excellent teams were forward from all the noted breeders, and the comment was heard that it was one of the best displays ever seen at the Scottish National, both as regards the wonderful size of the Crests, and the immense skulls of the Crestbreds, combined with size and substance. The hen limit class had an entry of 39, and not a bad one among them. Mr. Brotherton, the judge, had an arduous task separating the various winners, but he got through his work right well.

THE YORKSHIRES AND A.O.V. Judge, Mr. J. F. Dewar.

The Yorkshire classes were not so well filled as we would like to have seen them, but what was lacking in numbers was made up for in quality, some grand yellow and buff cocks being staged; the team belonging to Messrs. Ogden Bros. were gems all over, and grandly staged. We would like to ask where were all the breeders of this variety in Scotland; surely there must have been something wrong when they had such a poor entry. Mr. J. F. Dewar, who placed the eards, did so to the satisfaction of all present.

CL. OR TKD. YELL. CK. SCOTCH FANCIES AND BELGIANS. Scotch Fancy Judges, Messrs. A. Livingstone and J. Watson (jointly). Belgians, Mr. Dewar.

The Scotch Fancies were staged along the bottom side of the hall, and all exhibits seemed very comfortable, as well they might be, as they were attended to with every care and consideration by Messrs. W. Allen, A. Paterson, M. Petrie and Co., a line tribute to our national bird to have such champion attendants. The exhibits here were of a very high class order throughout, some real champions were amongst the winners. Novice classes contained many fine birds. Selling classes were very heavy, and some good birds amongst the tickets brought good money at the sales. One regrettable feature was that the judges decided to disqualify a few birds in this section for trimming, and rightly so, as this sorely needed the attention of judges, if others will only follow and keep at it, the variety will be much strengthened. In our opinion some others had been cleaned out in neck, and although kept back in the prize list would have been better on the top shelf.

Belgians were fairly well represented, but some of them seemed to show the Scotch Fancy cross. Some grand shouldered birds were on view, and came in for a lot of attention from the Scotch Fancy breeders, who are always keen on one to improve stock. On the whole the judges did right well.

CL. YELL. CK. (8): 1, Black, good one, fine weight, great size, subs., drive, shoulder, and reach, handles well; 2, Carson, similar, fine length, good side, fails a wee bit in shoulder; 3, Simpson, grand size, shoulder, drive, and subs., shows signs of age now; 4, Curtis, fine shoulder, drive, and action; 5, sp, Edgar; vhc, he, Pringle; c, Allan. YELL. PIED (7): 1, Allan, hard up, decided drive, prominent shoulder, rare action and side; 2, sp, Edgar, a little smaller but nice and free, good shoulder, fine side and wing; 3, Chapman, more size, must have pressed, hard up, decided drive, prominent shoulder, well placed on legs; 4, sp, Menzies, line position, very nervy; 5, Thornton; vhc, Service. TKD. (4): 1, sp, Rodger, good one, splendid shoulder, length of side and wing, great subs., reach and action; 2, Keith, a shade lighter build, somewhat lucky to beat; 3, McLennan, grand size, fine shoulder, drive, and subs., going strong when we handled him. GR. THE BORDER FANCIES.

Borderers were in our opinion the second best feature of the show. Although our love of the "wee gem" stands second to none, premier place must here be given to the crest section, clear were a handsome lot, and the quality we thought the finest yet seen at this great fixture. Mr. H. Bennett turned out a gem of a bull hen, which won B.F.C.C. medal and also best in section. If ever perfection dwelt in every feather which goes to make up a perfect Border, her mantle has fallen on this exquisite hen. Marks were also first class, and the leaders in all classes were birds of distinct eye markings, with type and qual. combined, special mention may be made of Mr. Rintoul, of Methil, Fife, a young fancier, whose birds were turned out to perfection, and proved a great credit to him. The ticked class was also a good one, and contained the cream of the season's breeding. Greens were a treat to look at and handle. Colour, pencilling, and type is gradually coming more into vogue in this variety. Special mention might be made of Messrs. A. and W. Thomson's young yellow green cock, which we have described as the best youngster seen out, he won special best in section. Another very nice yellow hen won the Novice B.F.C.C. medal for Mr. Montgomery. Cinnamon turned out very strongly and some good ones were on view. Mr. Wilson won the medal for greens and cinnamons with a gem of a yellow. Many birds in the variety are showing a tendency to length of wing, and breeders have need to pay attention to the fault.

Mr. J. Patterson's Classes.

CL. YELL. CK. (13): 1, G. Bennet, grand col., extra well put down, splendid feather of beautiful qual., rare type, jaunty carr.; 2, Hislop, similar build, line col., type, and symmetry, fails a little in flight; 3, Denholm, extra sweet head, jaunty carr., fine col. and cond., scarcely ready in head; 4, Dods, fine col. and qual., with a little more style he would be a hard nut to crack; 5, Auld, grand head and front, nice col. and qual.; vhc, Smith; he, Birhan; c, Voy. HEN (22): good class; 1, runner up for clear medal, G. Bennet, little beauty, in the pink, beautiful head, line neck, grand back, wing, and tail carr., rare col., qual. and cond.; 2, 5, H. Bennet, not much between them, put down like wax, splendid type and charming movement; 3, Smart, well known hen, often described, but fails to-day in cond.; 4, Craig, another good one, beautiful sound head, finely balanced throughout, just a shade slow in movement; vhc, sp, Brooking; he, Aitchison; c, Voy. CL. BUFF CK. (15): 1, Craig, real model throughout, put down in splendid trim, grand deep col., level throughout, splendid col. of feather, true model; 2, H. THE MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Judge, Mr. P. McQuiston.

Mules and Hybrids were hardly up to the usual numbers, but many of the winners were very well-known, and "champion" birds of their kind. CL. TKD. ETC. (9): 1, 2, sps, Dewar shield, 6, Martin and Archer, well-known clear Linnet-Canary Mule, "Perfection," in grand col. and good feather; 2, c, Maddison, cl. Gold-Can., very smart and neat, well carried wings, nice feather; 3, Lawrence, cl. Goldie, rather more size, but hardly so tight feather, good shape; 4, Heggie, cl. Greenf. Mule, capital col., good head, wings; 5, Lamb; 7, Oldham. VAR. CAN. MULE (9): 1, 2, Martin and Archer, eyes, neck, and wing mkd. Goldf. Can. leading, a fine specimen, 2 neck mkd. buff Greenf. Can., in grand order, hold shape, grand head and wings; 3, 4, Maddison, neat yell. wing mkd. Goldie-Can., full of qual., good shape, very neat, 4 neck mkd. buff Linnet Mule, of nice size and good feather; 5, Lamb; 6, Mackie; 7, Connochie; wrong class, Parlett, "White Rose." GOLDF. CAN. DK. (10): 1, spl, Crone, well-known winner, one of the finest Mules staged, grand size and shape, lovely bloom; 2, Gilchrist, another big winner, still in grand cond. and rare feather; 3, Roy, plenty of size, good shape, hardly so tight in feather; 4, Lamb, tighter feather, good size and capital shape, nice col.; 5, Nicoll, 6, Rollo; 7, Wilson; 8, Carson. LINNET-CAN., DK. (10): 1, Duncan, "Highland Leader," a grand one, great size and shape, lovely col., extra grand feather, good head and wings; 2, Crone, very close up, short thickest shape, a big winner, very good col., and in grand bloom; 3, Craig, not quite the size of leaders, but a good one, neat shape, and good col.; 4, Marlin, capital col. and feather, finer drawn, neat head and wings; 5, Wilson, stouter shape, good size, hardly so rich col.; 6, Kennaway; 7, A. Watt; 8, Martin and Archer. GREENF. CAN. (10): 1, Parlett, old champion, marvellous col. and feather, still keeping a grand shape; 2, Roy, capital size, nice head and neck, good wings, rich col., and good qual.; 3, Whitney and Son, rich yell., silky feather, not quit the col. of winners; 4, Finnie, very similar to 3, grand qual. of feather, hardly so stout; 5, Dewar, very rich col., grand shape; 6, Adams; 7, Lawrence; 8, Wilson. A.O. CAN. MULE, except Can.-Bullf. (9): 1, Craig, buff Siskin-Can., capital size, well mkd., neat wings, good head; 2, Goodall, smart Redpoll-Can., rich col., line feather, neat head; 3, Roy, Siskin-Can., triff smaller, but grand col., and well faced flanks; 4, Crone, Siskin-Can., nice head, good wings; 5, Heron, good sized Twee-Can., nice feather; 6, Marlin; 7, Rollo; 8, Calder. DK. BULLF. HYB. (10): 1, 2, Crone, the champion Canary-Bullie leading, last year's shield winner, marvellous col. and qual., grand head and back, 3 good Redpoll-Bullf., neat shape, rich col., grand breast and feather; 2, 7, Wilson, Can.-Bullf., not quite the size or col. of winner, but a grand bird; 4, Oldham, good Goldie-Bullie, rich blaze, good head and nice wings; 5, Parlett, Can.-Bullie, not quite the size of winners; 6, Fyfe; 8, Allan. A.O.V. HYB. (11): 1, spl, Martin and Archer, noted Greenf.-Chaff., in rare feather and cond.; 2, Wilson, another grand Greenf.-Chaffinch, equal in size and shape, hardly so tight in feather; 3, Lamb, neat Goldf. Siskin, beautifully mkd., grand col., nice head and wings; 4, Whitney and Son, neat shap'd Goldfinch-Greenfinch, capital feather, good size; 5, A. Wilson, buff Goldf. Can., good size; 3, 6, Alexander, real good Goldf. Bullf., good bold blaze, nice shape, grand feather; 4, Levick, eyes and wings mkd. Goldf. Can., smart shape, grand feather; 7, Roxburgh.

THE BRITISH BIRDS.

Judges, Messrs. P. McQuiston and J. Livingstone.

The British section was down a bit on past years, only averaging 15 per class, but of course this was only to be expected, owing to so many exhibitors having rallied round the flag, and being unable to give their birds the necessary attention. Quality throughout was good, and here and there an outstanding bird was noted, especially in the Bullfinch, Twee, and Ted Siskin classes. The winners here stood by themselves for merit, as did also the winning Meadow Bunting. Colour effect was spoiled a bit, through the hall being artificially lighted all day, giving the Goldfinches and Greens a faded appearance. The judges, Messrs. McQuiston and Livingstone, were happy in their selections, except in a very few cases, which were inevitable in such a task. Fanciers were out in strong force, and we were pleased to meet many well-known judges and exhibitors, a specially large company being up from Newcastle-on-Tyne. The attention given the exhibit was up to the usual Scottish National standard, the stewards being untiring in their labour to make the birds comfortable and happy.

GOLDF. (23): 1, sp, Wallace, pink of cond., beautiful depth of col. and polish in a blaze, absolutely perfect in outline underneath, and extending well back over forehead to considerably behind the eye, true British type, perfect size, just a wee shade narrow in skull; 2, Guthrie and Son, line up-standing, nothing behind winner except in depth of blaze, in which he just loses in comparison; 3, Oldham, shade smaller, perfect tanning, smaller face and head than leaders, perfect cond.; 4, Conkie and Loudon, our choice for 3rd, grand chubby type, very full head and neck, brilliant col. in face, perfect tannings, steady to a degree, looks just an over-year bird, will make a champion; 5, Cranna; vhc, E. G. Henderson; he, Almond; c, Skyes; unnoticed, No. 23, very fine Goldfinch, hard lines. BULLF. (16): 1, Dr. Wilson, easy win, just a wee bit too much leg, which may be due to high cond., otherwise perfect larg, well cut, jet cap, broad curving breast, in full springtime bloom; 2, McGregor, Gateshead winner, in better company to-day, fails size and col. to leader, grand shaven all over, splendid thighs, tight as possible, true Britisher; 3, Fairgrieve, claimed, similar to 2nd, only losing in col. in front and density of cap, shows distinct wing bar, very steady; 4, Woods, typical, shows light ring round bib, very full skull; 5, G. G. Henderson, rather large for this class; vhc, Taylor; he, Campbell; c, Peden and Ashcroft. LINNET, H.M. (15): 1, Dr. Wilson, grand bird of his own type, proper Yorkie, could do with more body and weight, very distinct breast markings, extended right across front, splendid soft col. on front, and rich back, carrying mass of work, shows pure flights; 2, Allan, clubbier, good breadth across front, very full head, but dark in breast col., or might have beaten leader, stands like a soldier; 3, Oldham, similar type to 2, grand front, clove full of work, carried down to tail; 4, Mitchellson, grand soft col. on front, well pencilled all over, showing pure whites on wings and tail, with a bit more size would take some stopping; 5, Hilson; vhc, Messer; he, Simpson; c, Fairhurst. F.M. (16): 1, Neilson, good win, lovely feather and cond., steady as a rock, very profuse pencilling, grand size and type; 2, Skyes, fine wedge shaped body, steady, grand front, full of work, very full head, well pencilled over crown and back, grand wing carr., pure in flights; 3, vhc, Allan, after winner's stamp, smaller head, put down in faultless order, best front in class, purest ground col., very evenly pencilled, good chubby type, nice size; 4, Parlett, Gatehead winner in new hands, fine bird, come thought house-mounted, but shows moons on breast when blown, might have gone up a bit, right type, good size, splendid front, and an abundance of small pencilling right across, should make a sterner next year; 5, Conkie and Loudon, another gem, very large, full head, grand wings and tail, splendid front, correct col.; he, Dalton; c, Lloyd-James. BRAMBLE AND CHAFF. (17): Good class; 1, 5, 6, Skyes, leader gem of a Bramble, very rich col. on breast, carried very far down, distinct head and mantle, back a mass of spangles, profuse flank markings, steady as a rock, a champion all over; 2, Henderson, Chaffinch, monster for size, great whites on wings, deep rich col. on front, fine blue poll and deep bar; 3, Parlett, Bramble, lacks brilliant chestnut of winner, a good one, but meets a sterner to-day, loses in mantle work and spangle; 4, Galloway, Bramble, largest in class, will improve with age, too unsteady to do himself justice; he, Conkie and Loudon; c, Allan. GREENF. H.M. (19): 1, Nicholson, bouncer for size, great broad skull and full chest, grand wing bars, very soft pure col., wins in a good class, shows for all he is worth; 2, he, Skyes, grand col. and type, could do with more size and breadth of head, shows clear bars; 3, Fairhurst, nicely fed, rare cobby broad-headed type, grand close feather, nice style and cond.; 4, Lawrence, similar type, rare broad wing bars, takes good pos.; 5, Adamson; vhc, Aitken; c, Campbell; No. 15, unnoticed, seem'd good enough for 1st, but was rough when judged, probably through bathing. F.M. (16): 1, vhc, Gentleman, large, excellent col. and shape, staged in good order; 2, he, McLennan, beauty, great size, teeming with col., very massive front, fine bold head, splendid wings and tail, might have won, and no one grumbled, should mount a top sawyer; 3, Nicolson, same stamp as winner, good size; 4, c, Skyes, back in size, but all there for pure col., shown in beautiful cond.; 5, Weir. SISKIN, FED (11): 1, Nicolson, stands by himself, fed to perfection, profuse front and flank marks, very pure eye and wing bars, great size, cap perfection in size, a credit to his owner; 2, Carr, Gateshead winner, beaten to-day, very clearly defined markings, beautiful col., fails cap to leader; 3, Martin and Archer, well shown, bit clouded in markings, very good cap; 4, Calder, good size, splendid cap, grand chubby type, very bold head and front; 5, Cranna; vhc, Fyfe; he, Mason; c, Southern. NON-FED (7): 1, Nicolson, exceptionally large and well mkd., enormous bib, very distinct, grand broad cap, a beauty; 2, Brownlie and Cook, a bit behind winner for size, but a gem for col., most perfect bib and cap; 3, Arnot, well up in size, flank and frontal markings, just a shade grey ground on flanks, staged in beautiful cond.; 4, Craig; 5, White; vhc, Calder; he, McGregor and Boyd. MEALY REDPOLL OR TWITE (11): 1, Conkie and Loudon, gem, and no mistake, one of the best Twites seen for a long time, giant for size, pencilled to perfection, on grand ground col., very bold head, best of wing carr. and pos., shows himself to perfection; 2, Oldham, Twite, beaten, but not disgraced, not so rich in col., lacks grand pencilling of leader, nice size; 3, 4, Heul, large Mealy leading, very clear front, jet bib, heavily laced on thighs, 4 Twite, very rich col., loses size to winners; 5, Hope; vhc, Duncan; he, Weir; c, Parlett. WISHAW WIPES OUT ITS RECORD.

Wishaw C.B.S. held its annual show on Jan. 1 in the Watson's Hall, a very suitable one, well lit and free from draughts, and kept at a fine temperature. The enterprising management, it is gratifying to report, were rewarded with another record entry, close on 600 birds facing the judges, about 200 increase on last year. The quality too was of exceptional merit. The birds were neatly staged on the three tier principle. There was a large attendance. Owing to the crisis, the committee refrained from collecting specials this year, but this proved in no way a drawback to the entry.

The management was all that could be desired, every one working hard and none did better than the general secretary, Mr. Jas. Watson, who had all arrangements well in hand, and was ably assisted by that popular fancier, Mr. Dan McPhee, and by the excellent Pres., Mr. W. Cringles, and Vice-Pres., Mr. R. Gemmill. Committee: Messrs. R. Richmond, A. Allardice, junr., A. Rae, D. McAllister, J. Nimmo, W. Watson, T. Dickson, Jas. Wright and Jas. Sheen; they were quite jubilant over the splendid entry.

British birds were the mainstay, averaging 16 per class. Goldfinches were particularly strong, numbering 30. Norwich also came up well, averaging 14 per class. In Borders, Mr. J. Campbell (Alexandria) secured B.P.C.C. medal; the novice medal was captured by Mr. J. Nairn. Yorks were a fine lot, and are improving every year. The gate receipts must have been extra, as the hall was packed from end to end. The judges were: Norwich and Crests, Mr. G. Smart (Carmyllie); Brit. and For., Mr. P. McQuiston (Ayr), Mr. Gollan Hislop (Stirling) the remainder, and their awards met with general approval.

GLASGOW SCOTCH FANCY ASSOCIATION.

The initial venture of this society, Jan. 2, was an undoubted success. The National Halls, the scene of so many great shows, not being available, a capital substitute was found in the Union Halls, West Nile Street; it is well lighted and provided with everything that would conduce to the comfort of both exhibitors and exhibitors. We have never seen a better collection of Scotch fancies at any show, and the entry of close on 250 birds was considered very good. The fancy at large rallied round the plucky promoters right well, and our Glasgow friends were in raptures of the glorious and exceedingly meritorious exhibits that were placed under their care. The management was admirable. Mr. J. D. Brown, East Kilbride, the much-respected president, his underslady, Mr. W. Robertson, and a very able committee, worked with a will, all giving of their best, while laudable efforts were put forth by Messrs. W. Gray, A. Ferguson, A. M. Baird, and J. A. Stewart, who stewarded during judging, and the energetic and courteous Mr. A. McLaughlan, whose tact and perseverance placed him amongst the most valued of officials. Sp. best Nov. was won by Mr. Seywright's cl. buff ck.; best bird in hall, and best young hen, Mr. W. Gray's yell. green hen, truly a beauty; best young cock, Mr. A. Allardice's buff fowl cock. The judges, Messrs. D. Black, Govan; G. Fulton, Partick; A. Livingstone, Paisley; R. Menzie, Edinburgh; R. O'Donnell, Paisley; J. Smith, Bowmore, got through their work in good time, and their awards gave entire satisfaction.

TROON.

Annual show, Jan. 1 (postponed from August) with an entry very similar to last year—nearly 300. Classes did not fill up to expectation, owing to so many shows clashing, but quality was all there. In ladies and British Mr. P. McQuiston swept the decks and secured the silver plate for most points. Sp. best bird was won by Mr. Hamilton's pied yell. Scotch Fancy cock. Mr. John Hunter makes a good and obliging sec., and had everything in apple-pie order; he was ably assisted by the President and committee, who all worked for the comfort of exhibitors and exhibitors. Mr. Alex. McMeeking, Ayr, judged.

SCOTCH. CK. (6): 1, sp., Hamilton, pied yell., grand length, rare neck and reach, gets well under; 2, he, Ferguson, buff, fine quick action, showing line shoulder, hard to separate; 3, vhc, he, Robertson, cl. buff, plenty of nerve, good drive, fine quality. HEN (4): 1, 2, 3, Robertson, cl. buff, grand subs., rare curve, plenty length of drive, very nervy, 2nd similar, 3rd good cl. yell., fails reach, slow in action; 4, Hamilton. NOR. YELL. CK. (6): 1, Devoy, grand size and type, good head and neck, neat wings, splendid carr., hot fed; 2, McKean, nice size and shape, rare chubby type, shade warmer col., beaten head; 3, Raiside and Savage, lovely qual., good head, grandly braced wings; 4, Ferguson; vhc, Stevenson, soft when taking notes; he, Murray. HEN (7): 1, 2, Devoy, leader cl., cobby, full cheek, grand head and tail, though shade narrow on head; 2nd eye mtd., nice qual., typical; 3, Alexander, varieg., very nice head and wings; 4, Stevenson; vhc, c, Ferguson; he, Anderson. BUFF. CK. (16): 1, Murray, heavy varieg., great size and subs., rare chubby type, splendid wings and tail, Kilmarnock and Ayr winner, improving; 2, 3, Devoy, leader exceeds in type and meal, beaten size by winner, 2 d. extra chubby, failing in head; 4, Aitken; vhc, Hamilton; he, Raiside and Savage; c, Alexander. HEN (9): 1, 2, Devoy, beauties, short and thick, leader wins on head properties, grand head and neck, nice short wings and tail, 2nd shade warmer col., fails head; 3, Alexander, presses hard, almost equal on all points; 4, H. Ferguson; vhc, c, James Ferguson; he, Aitken. BORD. CK. (5): 1, D. Dempster, rare rich col., nice jaunty carr., good weight, very typical; 2, Mossie, shade smaller, put down in A1 cond.; 3, Krozen, not far behind, very free carr., just we shade thin in neck, good col.; 4, Smilie; vhc, H. Ferguson. HEN (8): 1, Smilie, wine here, very taking little lady, great col. and cond., model for size and type, grand carr.; 2, Krozen, shade in inner build, sweet head; 3, McKean, different type, more chubby, in rare fettle; 4, Clark; vhc, J. DOUBTS AND DIFFICULTIES SOLVED BY SPECIALISTS
FOUR RULES SEE ISSUE OF DEC. 19.

CANARY QUERIES

Answered by CLAUDE ST. JOHN.

CANARIES GOING BLIND (T. A. L.). There is no infectious disease likely to affect the eyes in the way you say without some other very pronounced symptoms, and I am inclined to think that the trouble is due to mechanical injury of some kind, or to some vicious element at work. Your best plan would be to show the affected birds to a veterinary surgeon, who could make a personal examination and advise you much better than it is possible to do without seeing them. You might try the effect of the following treatment, and if not successful write again in a month or so and I will advise you further. Get a few camomile flowers from a chemist. Place eight or ten in a tureen, fill with boiling water, and cover and allow to infuse for an hour or so besides the fire. Then strain and add 30 drops of tincture of opium to the infusion and bathe the affected eyes with a little every morning and evening as soon as you notice them to be affected; continue the bathing daily until they have returned to a normal condition. Use a little fresh fluid and a fresh pledget of wool or linen for each eye that is to be treated, and burn at once that which has been once used.

PROTRACTED MOUTLING (H. H.).—See that the bird is not exposed to cold draughts, as this is in all probability the exciting cause of the continual moulting over so long a period. In addition to the staple diet of canary and rape, give your birds, provided only that they are not hung very near to it, or much higher up towards the ceiling than the position of the lamp. Even the latter would be of no great moment if the light is only required now and again, and is not in constant use for a long time at a stretch. As you have no gas, I expect electric lighting is also out of the question, otherwise that would be the best form of lighting. But if not available there is no reason why you should not go on with the oil lamp. Keep it trimmed clean, and do not allow it to smoke, and its casual use will have no detrimental effect whatever on the bird's health.

GREY LICE (A. E. A.). Yes, they are grey lice that are on your birds. The only reason that they do not leave the birds so readily now is that they are less active at this season than during the hot summer months, and also your birds appear to be only slightly troubled with them, and it is only when very numerous that you find them get on your hands when catching a bird. I should think it would be quite sufficient if you gave the birds a bath in which you had mixed a few drops of essence of quassia twice each week for a time. If, however, you prefer washing the birds, and cannot easily get Creolin, Jeyes' Cylin will answer the same purpose. Use it in the two first waters, used in washing in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a quart of water. No, it is not correct to say that these two articles are one and the same thing. But it would be correct to say that they were two preparations of the same substance, viz., carbolic acid, and will serve much the same purpose.

B.R.C.C. ROLLERS (C. Morgan).—These birds require no different treatment from any other class of roller. For ordinary singers give a staple diet of two parts canary to one part summer rape, and for a higher class of singer a staple of equal parts canary and rape. Otherwise treat just the same as you will frequently see advised in this column, as, for instance, to "Ritep (2)" in last issue. Or you might get a copy of the Nutshell booklet on the Roller, "No. 10," 23d. post free, from our Manager, or twopence from your local newsagent, wherein you will find full details for the treatment of Rollers generally. With regard to keeping the Hartz cock in a separate room apart from the others this entirely depends upon the quality of its song. If it is an untrained bird, or has an objectionable song in any way, it would be essential to keep it out of earshot of the better class of birds if you wish the latter to retain their song in a pure form for any length of time. If the Hartz remains in the same room with a family song the better class of singers will be practically certain to become corrupted in song sooner or later, and generally it is not very long in coming about.

BRITISH BIRDS, MULES AND HYBRIDS.

Answered by H. NORMAN.

THRUSH NOT FEEDING (Bad Appetite).—I have carefully read your two letters, but cannot quite understand what you think is wrong with your bird. You say "his food does not give him satisfaction." Do you mean that he is in poor condition, or that he does not, in your opinion, eat sufficient? Kindly remember that Thrushes are not big feeders. If your bird is well and lively, I do not think there can be much the matter with him; anyway, if you are not satisfied with his feeding, I would advise you to try a good brand should consult Houlton's great work, "Cage-Bird Hybrids" (7/6); Norman's "British Bird Manual" (2/3); or Part 1 "Hardbills" (1/1), Part 2 "Softbills" (1/1); "Acanthids, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods, and Wild Plants" (1/2); "Secrets of Hybrid Breeding" (1/2); Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 1 "Goldfinch," No. 2 "Linnets," No. 3 "Siskin," No. 4 "Song Thrush and Blackbird," No. 11 "Bullfinch," No. 13 "Chaffinch," No. 15 "Greenfinch," No. 22 "Siskin, Redpoll, and Twite," No. 25 "Small Insectivorous Birds," No. 26 "Large Insectivorous Birds," No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 12 "How to Mould British Birds." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

of insectile mixture, as used for Nightingales and small Warblers, mix a little grated carrot or boiled potato with it making it just crumbly moist, not sloppy or too dry. You could vary this with No. 2 recipe in the British Bird Book. He should do well on these two. I do not like your mixture; it would be just the food to upset his digestive organs, and probably cause fits.

FEEDING A LINNET (H. Bolton).—Wild seed mixture for your Linnet can be bought in packets, and if it is a good brand, it will contain quite a quantity of genuine wild seeds, but if you are unable to get it, and would like to mix your own, the following would be suitable, 2 ozs. each of gold of pleasure, niger, plantain, sesame, thistle, and 1oz. of each of mustard, dandelion, maw, cornflower, lettuce. Give him a teaspoonful of this every other day; a little cracked hemp about twice a week will soon bring him into song. You could continue this feeding during the winter, but in the summer the mixture should only be given about twice a week, because if he does not require such generous treatment, and you are then able to gather bunches of wild weeds that are just ripening their seeds. These are much better for him than the dry stored seeds.

SITE FOR AN AVIARY (First Pair).—Of the two sites given, I like the No. 1 better than the other. It is not necessary for a bird room to have the sun shining in it all day, especially during the breeding season, when the heat in an exposed room is almost unbearable. If you can get a couple of hours early in the morning, it starts the birds well for the day, and then with a little more later on they should do well. If you use corrugated iron for the roof, you should have rough boards underneath, and even then it would be as well to cover them with cheap felt. The reason is that the iron is liable to "sweat," and then you have beads of moisture hanging to it, which makes the whole of the room damp. If you send me a rough sketch of your proposed building, giving measurements and other particulars, I shall be pleased to advise you further.

GOLDFINCH RESTLESS (R.B.).—The Goldfinch is naturally a restless bird, and when first caged is constantly clinging to the bars of the cage and rattling them with his beak, so yours is no exception. I would advise you to keep him in a box cage until he has steadied down, and whenever he flies on to the front wires, gently remove him by placing the finger near him. Then when he is quieter he can be placed in the open cage, with part of it covered up. This covering can be removed gradually. It is simply a case of time and patience overcoming his natural restlessness. Do all you can by handling the cage to get him tame and confiding.

FEEDING A REDPOLL (McCarthy, Morrogh).—You will have no difficulty in feeding your Redpoll, as they are easily catered for. Make a mixture of three parts canary seed, two parts teazle, and one part rape. Let this be his staple food. Then procure a packet of good wild seed mixture and give him a spoonful twice a week. In addition to this he should have a spray of greenfood every other day during the summer, and occasionally during the winter, but not when there is any frost on it. The most suitable wild plants are dandelion, chickweed, shepherd's purse, and seeding grass. Let him bathe frequently, but only during the morning, so that he is quite dry before roosting time. Keep in a cool airy room, removed from fire or gas, and away from draughts.

GREYPATES FOR MULING (Beginner).—Your Greypate and young Linnet would be quite fit for breeding in the spring, in fact you could not wish for anything better; all you have to do is to keep them fit and introduce them to their partners during the winter, either by keeping them together, or letting them have a fly in the same cage occasionally. Do not force the Finches, but let them come along naturally, then about the end of April you can give them a breeding cage and nesting materials; they may not pair for some time afterwards, for Finches do not as a rule nest quite so early as canaries.

FOREIGN BIRDS.

Answered by WESLEY T. PAGE, F.Z.S.

AILING PARROT (A.M.E.).—Thanks for your letter, which we much appreciate. Pleased to hear of so happy a result.

CUTTING ITS WING (Bluebell). The Orange-flanked Parakeet becomes so tame that usually wing-cutting is not necessary. It is impossible to do this without some little disfigurement, but this is least evident when only the webs of feathers are cut away, leaving the shaft intact. Of course, the process must be repeated at each moult. If you have these birds in a cage and merely wish to give should consult Page's "Foreign Birds for Beginners" (1/1); Arthur's "Budgerigars and Cockatiels" (6d.); Arthur's "Parrots for Pleasure and Profit" (7d.); "Acanthids, Bird-rooms, and Cages" (2/3); "Seeds, Foods and Wild Plants" (1/2); Dr. Clarke's "Septic or Bird Fever" (7d.); "Colour-feeding" (3d.); or the "Nutshell" booklets (2d. each); No. 6 "Ailing Birds and How to Cure Them," No. 9 "The Disinfection of Cages, Bird-rooms, etc.," No. 14 "Goldfinch Finches," No. 16 "Budgerigars," No. 17 "The Grey Parrot," No. 18 "Adacacats," No. 19 "The Pekin Robin," No. 20 "Warbills." All thoroughly practical and instructive. Prices quoted are post free from "Cage Birds," 154, Fleet Street, London, E.C.

to the seed dish held in the hand, and, of course, with such climbers as the Psittaci, windows must not be left open without protection, whether the wings be cut or not.

GENERAL.

Answered by THE EDITOR.

NOMO.—Special prize-cards are not sent out by all shows; some use only the small gummed slips affixed to the cage fronts. We have no information as to whether the Horticultural Hall Show issued, or intends issuing, special design cards. We note you say that "prize-money is negligible, but cards a source of pride to the exhibitor"; that is the proper sporting way of looking at it.

POST MORTEMES.

Mr. G. Yates, M.R.C.V.S., 1, College Road, Harrow, Middlesex, will examine and report upon dead cage birds for a fee of 1s. 6d. each bird; for reply direct, 2s. 6d.; analysis, 2s. Subject for post mortem examination must be sent packed in a box direct to Mr. Yates, with the fee, this and any accompanying letter being kept from contact with the dead bird. Send by letter post; it is cheaper and quicker than parcel post. Any bodies sent to the office of this paper will be thrown away, and if a fee is enclosed the loss will be the sender's.
